Editor's Column

STUART R. PADDOCK

BACK HOME!

It is rather nice when we meet people on the street and they say, "We kept track of you by reading your column." We now realize they were "fellow travelers" during our comings and goings during the winter months.

We pause and think. "Did we do anything of which we would not want them to know?" As we are doing the reporting, the answer must be "no."

When we left home in December, this column promised we would faithfully keep a diary. In fairness, we must admit that we lost enthusiasm for it after the first month.

We did not receive a single speeding ticket. We credit Illinois license plates for many of the traffic courtesies shown us. Parking tickets? No.

We did not play any slot machines; the cost of gas took all our spare nickels and quarters.

We went to church every Sunday and dutifully placed the usual stipend upon the collection plate.

We may have lost our way a time or two. Picturesque landscapes and southern plantations have a fascination for us, and we frequently avoided cement highways.

After traveling over 6,000 miles, we are glad to be back home. We find many changes in the northwest community. The cold weather did not freeze the civic spirit and enthusiasm of those who stayed home.

When we left our desk last December, the only "talents" we gave our editors to invest were recognition of the service they owed their communities.

We received a report on how wisely they invested those talents at a three-hour luncheon last Friday. We wish our readers could hear word for word what they told us. It was mainly good news. Europe has a Cold War, but there isn't any in northwest Cook County.

If you are one of those inclined to grumble about the fuel bill of the past year, let it be known that with the help of your dollars, the Northern Illinois Gas Company has done quite well.

The press was guest of that company last Thursday at Glenview Country Club. We do not know if any of the attending newspapermen own stock in that firm, but President Chandler gave some facts and figures abouts its growth and prosperous condition today that made us wish we owned some NIGC stock in place of depending upon newspaper profits for an "easy life."

Friday night we were present at the YMCA when awards were given to swimming teams of the year. The recipients were boys of all ages whose fathers were as proud of those ribbons as were the boys who had won them. We were proud of all of them.

On arriving in town Tuesday noon, we were warned that the Arlington Heights Police Department is enforcing speed laws. We will be as careful as we were driving through Georgia.

We could have been arrested Saturday afternoon as we attempted to vote "out of precinct" at the Palatine School election.

As we asked for a ballot, a courteous official inquired if we read our own newspaper which, she explained, plainly stated that the Stuart R. Paddock School was the only place where Stuart R. Paddock could legally vote.

We have always considered that Inverness, our abode, is north of the tracks because we have to travel three miles to get south of the tracks, (the business district).

Easter is on the way and we will join the Easter parade even if we wore out our springtime clothes while in Florida the past winter.

Myer, Sortor Win School Seats

Victor Myer, 47, a lawyer who lives in Scarsdale Estates, and Harold Sortor, 37, a tax and financial analyst living in Sherwood, were elected to the Arlington Heights elementary school board Saturday.

Myer received 783 votes; Sortor, 646. The third candidate for the two seats on the district 25 board, Norman B. Scheffel, of 717 S. Vail, received 519 votes.

IN SEVERAL of the precincts, Sortor and Scheffel were fairly close in the voting, with Myer polling a comfortable margin. Both Sortor and Myer were picked as candidates by the caucus nominating committee. Scheffel ran as an independent.

Myer is an incumbent, having been elected to a short term two years ago to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of a board member.

There had been little preelection campaigning by the candidates, who took the position that a seat on the school board was not an office for which one campaigned, unless the person had a particular criticism of the schools and the way they were being run.

MYER - SORTOR

In the election Saturday, ten persons received write-in votes, three ballots were spoiled and not voted, and 21 ballots were defective. Write in candidates who received one vote each, with the school at which the vote was cast in parentheses, were:

ROGER BURKE (Ridge); Len Garasha (Ridge); Glen Guskie (Wilson); Robert O. Pritchard (Wilson); Tom Johnson (North); Thomas J. Houser (North); Lynn C. Lemons (Kensington); Joe Tomlinson (Park); William Hogate (Park); Wendell Swenson received two write-in votes at Windsor School.

By precincts, the vote as tabulated by board secretary Peter Bakas, was:

PCT. 1 (Ridge) — Myer, 115; Sortor, 97; Scheffel, 57.

PCT. 2 (Wilson — Myer, 62; Scheffel, 49; Sortor, 46.

PCT. 3 (North) — Myer, 93; Sortor, 87; Scheffel, 84.

PCT. 4 (Windsor) — Myer, 118; Sortor, 100; Scheffel, 89.

PCT. 2 (Wilson) — Myer, 62; er, 41; Sortor, 40; Scheffel, 30.

PCT. 6 (Dryden) — Myer, 163; Sortor, 108; Scheffel, 82.

PCT. 7 (Park) — Myer, 157; Sortor, 132; Scheffel, 102.

PCT. 8 (Westgate) — Sortor, 36; Myer, 34; Scheffel, 26.

The total vote, including spoiled and defective ballots, was 1,983. At the last School District 25 election on April 8, 1961, when four candidates were vying for three seats on the board, the vote was 4,189.

There has been no official speculation concerning the 50 per cent decrease in voters from last year. One factor may have been that in 1961 the Wilson school district (24) had been annexed and there was a question of whether it demanded representation on the District 25 board.

There will be an organizational meeting of the new school board April 23. Myer will again be seated on the board, and Sortor will replace Roger Burke, board president for the past year and a board member six years, who did not seek re-election.

PLAN FULL CLOVERLEAF FOR EUCLID, ROUTE 53

Tell Revised Road Plans

by HESTER KLINE

Extension of Euclid Avenue as an expressway from Wilke Road to Barrington Road, with a full cloverleaf interchange at the new Route 53 expressway, was the heart of revised plans announced this week by the Illinois Division of Highways.

Roger Nussbaum, deputy chief highway engineer, revealed the plans Monday night at an informal meeting of the Rolling Meadows city council. Palatine and Arlington Heights officials have not yet seen the newest drawings.

THE PLANS particularly concerned the stretch of Route 53 expressway between Algonquin Road and Northwest Highway. No change is proposed in the previously approved center line location of this route. However, certain modifications were made in the location of the interchanges and ramps.

Provision is made for a full interchange with Euclid Avenue, which the Cook County Highway Department proposes to construct between Barrington Road and Wilke Road. William Mortimer, county highway superintendent, confirmed Tuesday that Euclid from Wilke to 53, along the south line of Arlington Park Race Track, will be under contract this year.

Mortimer was not at Monday night's session, but was represented by Lou Quinlan, his assistant. Marshall Sulloway, District 10 engineer, accompanied Nussbaum.

PROVISIONS ARE also made for traffic to and from the south to have direct access from the expressway to Kirchoff Road, Rolling Meadows' main artery and business street. "Access from Kirchoff Road to the neighboring suburban towns to the north will be unchanged and those motorists will continue to use Hicks and Rohlwing Roads," Nussbaum stated.

Ultimately the Route 53 expressway will provide throughways between the northwest area as far north as Grayslake and Mundelein and Chicago's Loop, via the Congress Expressway.

The current plan does not contemplate an interchange between Algonquin Road and the new Route 53. Proximity of the tollway interchange presents a situation which precludes this possibility, said Nussbaum. Motorists orginating west of Rolling Meadows that now use Algonquin Road to attain access to the tollway will in the future proceed easterly on Euclid Avenue to the new interchange and then southerly on Route 53 to the tollway, he pointed out.

THE EXPRESSWAY will fork south on Kirchoff, with the west route leading to the Northwest Tollway interchange, and the east branch carrying north-south through traffic around the big cloverleaf. Nussbaum said the cloverleaf bridge is inadequate to carry the full volume of traffic.

The map looks like a plate of spaghetti, as the roads fork and are bordered with access and frontage roads.

The swerve of the east branch brings an access road within 135 feet of the Central Road School building.

Rolling Meadows aldermen were disturbed by several facets, besides the proximity of the road to the school.

One of the newest subdivisions, Plum Grove Hills, between Central Road and Algonquin, will lose its model homes no wnearing completion.

PLUM GROVE Countryside will be bisected by the extension of Euclid. The Euclid cloverleaf takes a big bite of industrially zoned land. Homes in the Philippe subdivision adjacent to Rolling

AN ESTIMATED $12,000 damage was done to the W. S. Stout home at 341 S. Newbury Place, Arlington Heights, late Sunday afternoon by a fire which evidently started in the kitchen. No one was at home at the time of the blaze, which was confined by fire fighters to the kitchen. Smoke damage was extensive, however.

Fire, Smoke Cause $12,000 in Damage

Fire and smoke caused an estimated $12,000 damage to the W. S. Stout home, 341 S. Newbury Place, Arlington Heights, late last Sunday afternoon while the family was out to dinner.

Fire Chief Harvey Carothers said the blaze apparently started in the kitchen near the refrigerator, probably from an overheated motor.

No one was injured in the fire, but the Stout dog was found in an upstairs bathroom, asphyxiated.

THE FIRE was confined by firefighters to the ground-floor kitchen area, but smoke damage was extensive throughout the two-story frame house.

Chief Carothers said the fire was reported by a neighbor, who saw smoke billowing out of a window. Two trucks were dispateched.

Firefighters have been kept particularly busy the past few days.

April 11, they were called to put out a grass fire at 1145 N. Belmont, and Monday afternoon they put out two grass fires, one at 1018 N. Dunton and one in the 200 block of S. Kaspar.

Last Saturday, they had a call of a different nature when they were summoned to 214 N. Beverley to remove 10-year-old Tom O'Hagen from a tree. He had caught his knee in the crotch of the tree.

AMONG OTHER calls last week, which included one inhalator call and one call to put out a fire in a clothes dryer, firefighters were summoned to 1201 N. Chestnut Monday to put out a fire apparently started by vandals.

No one was home at the Chestnut address, the residence J. . Moret, and Carothers speculated that vandals had crawled in an outside cellar window under the back porch, stacked up some boards, and started them afire.

The fire was reported by a neighbor who saw smoke coming out from under the porch. There was no appreciable damage.

Cancer Crusade

The week of April 23 has been designated Cancer Crusade Week in Arlington Heights by Village President John G. Woods. He invited every citizen to participate in the crusade.

Roller Mill Sold

Theatre Buys Historic Site

The site of one of Arlington Heights oldest buildings, the Arlington Heights Roller Mill, and the parking lot immediately north of the mill, have been purchased by the Arlington Theater, of the Lucas Theater Corp.

Sale of the property was announced this week by Don Knapp, general manager of the Lucas corporation, and Al Popp, owner of the roller mill.

KNAPP SAID detailed plans for the site will be revealed next week, and will include extensive enlargement and modernization of the theater. The Lucas corporation owns several theaters in the Chicago area.

Popp will vacate the roller mill premises sometime in June. The mill is located at the corner of Wing Street and State Road, and extends a half-block north and half-block west.

Immediately north of the buildings is the parking lot which the theater has been leasing for many years. It was included in the sale.

The sale actually was concluded about a month ago, and plans for modernization and enlargement of the theater have been underway since.

POPP HAS not announced his future plans.

In an unrelated but pertinent action, the Chicago & North Western Railroad has begun efforts to re-acquire rights to the short roadway south of the Sterling Oil Co. property across Wing Street from the roller mill.

The roadway, known as Mors Parkway, is an east-west passageway through the triangle of land bordered by State Road, Wing Street and Northwest Highway.

The village was granted a permanent easement for the roadway many years ago, but the railroad now seeks to reacquire its rights to the property. It owns the sliver of land between the parkway and Northwest Highway also.

At the village board meeting Monday night, the railroad asked the village to consider vacation of Mors Parkway, which was conveyed to the village by an easement deed dated Oct. 11, 1923.

ED LYONS of Hendrickson Realty appeared at the village board meeting and said he is acting as broker to sell both the railroad property and the Sterling Oil Co. property.

He said the railroad wants the parkway vacated so it can sell it as part of the package. Lyons said his realty firm is exclusive agent for both the railroad property and the Sterling property.

He added that the value of each is enhanced by the other if sold as a complete package, and the value of each suffers if sold alone, but the railroad property will suffer less since it has frontage on Northwest Highway.

Lyons said the price on the Sterling property is $75,000, and the owners have turned down offers as high as $60,000 for the 5,600-square-foot parcel.

IF THE VILLAGE should agree to vacate the parkway, and the railroad then sells its property, the value of the Sterling property to the rear would be seriously affected, Lyons said.

For this reason, the village decided to take no action on the request for vacation of the land until officials have conferred with owners of the Sterling property.

Also yet to be discussed si

Also yet to be discussed is the price the railroad would have to pay the village to vacate Mors Parkway and relinquish its easement rights. The village board indicated the price might be quite high in view of the value of the property, and plans an appraisal before negotiating.

Village Buys 150 Maple Trees

Approval was given Monday night for purchase of 150 Norway maple trees from Spears of Mount Prospect for $17 each, for a total of $2,550.

Spears' prices for designated trees were lowest of four bidders, including Kalze, H. W. King, and Klehm. The trees will be used to repiace trees removed.

Funeral Monday

Civic Leader Solon Dies

John J. Solon, of 614 S. Mitchell, Arlington Heights, died last week in Resurrection Hospital. Mr. Solon, 54, was superintendent of the employe relations department of Peoples Gas, Light and Coke Company.

Active in the affairs of his community, the gas industry and other organizations, Mr. Solon was vice president and a director of the Office Management Association of Chicago, chairman of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners in Arlington Heights, and a member of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

JOHN J. SOLON

MR. SOLON entered Resurrection Hospital April 1 for chest surgery, and died the morning of April 13. He is survived by his widow, Mary; one daughter, Joan; two sons, James and Patrick; a sister, Mrs. Mary Farris; and a brother, Chicago Police Sgt. Joseph Solon.

A wake was held Saturday afternoon at Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, Arlington Heights. The funeral was held at Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church Monday morning, with interment in All Saints Cemetery.

Besides his other activities, Mr. Solon was a member of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, the American Gas Association, and the Illinois Athletic Club.

HE BECAME associated with Peoples Gas in April, 1925, as a mimeograph operator. Among the various positions he held were assistant supervisor in the general service department, senior methods and routines engineer, executive office assistant, assistant superintendent of personnel, and superintendent of employment.

He was named superintendent of employe relations in July, 1956.

PILES AND PILES of trash, brush, bedsprings, stovepipe, cinders, Christmas trees, back doors, bottles, and unidentified objects of all descriptions lined Arlington Heights streets early this week as the first days of the free spring cleanup came around. Last Monday Laseke Disposal Co. workers were clearing the northwest section of town; today (Thursday) it will be the northeast section. Monday, April 23, is the southwest section's turn, and Thursday, April 23, the southeast section's. Almost anything except dirt, concrete and building materials will be picked up.

Scalded Tot Is Improving

The condition of a 15-month-old boy who was scalded when a vaporizer tipped over recently was described as "improving" this week.

John Alternini, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin John Alternini, Heights, suffered second degree burns on 30 to 40 per cent of his body and was in critical condition when taken to Northwest Community Hospital the morning of April 8 following the accident. (AF

Appoint Proebstle Postal Assistant

Robert J. Proebstle, of 1222 E. Kensington, Arlington Heights, has been appointed assistant postmaster of the Arlington Heights Post Office, it was announced this week by Mrs. Virginia F. Dodge, postmaster.

Proebstle will fill the vacancy created by the death late last year of Louis A. Zinkel.

Proebstle has been an employe in the village post office since September, 1945, when he accepted an appointment as a substitute carrier two days after his return from three years in the Army.

HE HAS served as a carrier, clerk, foreman, assistant superintendent of mails, and superintendent of mails.

"His experience provides him with a fine background for his new position in this rapidly growing community," Mrs. Dodge said.

Full Cloverleaf For Euclid Ave.

Meadows will be sacrificed to the cloverleaf.

Mortimer explained Route 53 will link the Palatine Road junior expressway and Euclid, giving a speedy east-west throughway. Continuation of the Palatine expressway through the heart of the village would be too expensive, he said.

No time table has been set for the extension of Euclid west of Route 53. "No Money," Mortimer commented succinctly. "But it is a part of our program." As for widening of Euclid through Arlington Heights east of Wilke, he said it was on his program 15 years ago but the village did not want to sacrifice the trees.

"Much thought and study has gone into the development of this plan by the Illinois Division of Highways," said Nussbaum, "and it represents what we believe to be the best solution for the movement of traffic in the Rolling Meadows area."

OK Subdivision

Approval of Chestnut Ridge subdivision, on Chestnut Street north of Palatine Road, was granted Monday night by the Arlington Heights village board. It is owned by Harold Best, and consists of five lots with houses on two of them. (A

Easter Egg Hunt Is Scheduled for Tots

The first annual Easter Egg Hunt for Arlington Heights youngsters will be held this Saturday, April 21, at Recreation and Pioneer Parks, sponsored by the park district.

Activities will get under way at both parks at 10 a.m., with children nine years of age and under instructed to meet at the fieldhouses. A short program is planned for the youngsters while they wait for the "Easter Bunny" and his helpers to hide the eggs.

BILL APPLEBY, superintendent of recreation, said the park district will hide 50 dozen eggs at each park, with the help of local Camp Fire Girls, who will also assist in coloring the eggs.

Several specially marked eggs will bring their finders some type of prize.

In case of bad weather, Appleby said the hunt will be held at 10 a.m. Monday, April 23.

Burglars Break Into Car Wash

The Arlington Car Wash on W. Euclid was broken into Tuesday night and an undetermined amount of prizes and premium gifts stolen. Det. Clint Hefferen of the Arlington Heights Police Department said the exact amount of the loss has not yet been determined.

Easter Cantata Is Set for St. Peter

A 200-voice choir will present a new Easter cantata, "Christ Is Arisen!", written especially for the occasion by Donald Hermann, at the 6 a.m. Easter sunrise service at St. Peter Lutheran Church, 111 W. Olive, Arlington Heights.

Hermann is minister of music, choirmaster and organist at the church. The new Easter cantata was written for three children's choirs and two mixed choirs.

The 200 voices will be made up of the congregations's intermediate boy's choir, the intermediate girl's choir, the chapel choir, the senior children's choir, and the adult choir. The massed chorus will be under the direction of Hermann.

HERMANN ALSO composed Two easter selections for the regular worship service at 10:45 a.m., which will be sung by a massed children's choir of 160 voices directed by Mrs. Helene Bartz. The selections are "Come Ye Faithful, Raise the Strain" and "Christ the Lord Is Risen Again."

The pastor of St. Peter Lutheran Church, the Rev. R. O. Bartz, will deliver the Easter message at both services, which will be broadcast over radio stion WNWC-FM.

The Easter Matins service at 8 a.m. will include two choral selections by the cherub choir, directed by Miss Cynthia Wexler, as well as an anthem by the adult choir and chapel choir. The vicar, Donald Meyers, will deliver the message for the Matins service. (A

High School Election

'New' Board Setting Plan for Referendum

First problem to be faced by High School District's 214's "new" board of education is the setting of final plans for a May 19 bond issue referendum for a fourth high school.

As newly elected members George Paris, Mount Prospect; and Charles Lockwood, Arlington Heights; joined returning president John Haas, Prospect Heights, on the board of seven this week, the group looked to the May 19 referendum.

To be decided is a $4.9 million bond issue to construct a 2500 student high school at Route 83 and Hintz Road, near Wheeling.

Haas emphasized that the bond issue must carry if the district is to avert a serious overcrowding situation by the 1964-65 school year, two years away.

"WE'RE IN a rather unusual position, asking for another school before the third one is open," Haas stated, referring to Forest View High, which opens next fall.

"However, if we are to keep ahead of the growing teenage population, we must plan ahead. It's a little frightening to see that we would have a surplus of some 2,000 students by 1965-66 if we don't build additional facilities."

Haas is optimistic about the bond issue. "I am certain that our district's residents want to maintain the same fine educational a program as is presently offered to high school students. Any overcrowding or double-shift system would seriously hurt the program."

HE EMPHASIZED that two factors which need to be "brought home" to the voters are that two years are needed between the passing of the bond issue and the opening of the high school and that failure to build a school in the Wheeling area would affect children from all areas of the district.

All three schools — Arlington, Prospect, and Forest View — will be at capacity year after next.

The district's enrollment projections are based on a study by Northwestern University's Dr. Jack Childress. The study has been verified by a Lay Citizens' Committee examining the board's plans for a fourth school.

THE CITIZENS' Committee's sub-committee on area growth emphasized that the projections were "conservative" and were not based on some anticipated housing boom. "The students are here now," chairman Dwight Hall, Buffalo Grove, reported. "They're in the grade schools, some 28,000 of them. In fact, this year's freshman class will be seniors when the classroom crisis comes."

Grade school enrollment charts show that if no other children were brought into the District the high schools would still have 10,000 students in four years.

The Citizens' Committee report emphasized that there seems to be no appreciable let-up in construction new housing, and the evidence promises "a continuous population expansion for the immediate future."

THE COMMITTEE concurred with board plans to use the Route 83-Hintz Road site, which, according to the report, "seems to be the center of the present high school age population which would be served."

On the brighter side, the board was pleased with the economy of the proposed high school and at the district's increased tax base. "Despite the higher construction costs, the fourth school will actually cost the individual taxpayer less than he paid for Prospect and Forest View," Haas informed.

The board is expected to release detailed building plans next week. (ACM-EG

A "FEW RULES" are given to Charles Lockwood (center) and George Paris by John Haas, president of Arlington-Prospect High School District 214. 1962 Miss Illinois Pageant Planning Is Now Under Way

Planning for the 1962 Miss Illinois Pageant, official state preliminary contest to the 1962 Miss America Pageant, is well under way, according to James B. Snyder Jr., Elk Grove Village, state director for the Illinois Jaycee-sponsored event.

Miss Illinois 1962 will be chosen in Elk Grove Village on the final evening of the four-day pageant, June 27 to 30. More than 50 girls from throughout the state are expected to compete for the title in an atmosphere closely simulating the annual Miss America Pageant.

THE WINNER of the Miss Illinois Pageant, in addition to $7,000 in prizes and awards, will represent the Prairie State in the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City, N. J., September 3 to 9.

Snyder, as state pageant director, will guide the winning Illinois queen in her training and preparation for the national event, this fall. Should Miss Illinois 1962 win the Miss America 1963 title, she will be the first Illinois entrant since 1927 to wear the coveted national crown.

Miss America 1963 will receive a $10,000 scholarship and an estimated $75,000 in modeling and personal appearance contracts.

Snyder has appointed an executive committee and chairmen of those committees concerned with coordinating and staging the Illinois pageant. All committee members are Elk Grove Village residents and members of the local Jaycee chapter.

ROBERT G. Larberg, Jack E. Walsh, and Robert G. Beaupre are assistant pageant directors under Snyder.

Committee chairman and their respective responsibilities are: Norman S. Burtt - staging and production; Henry S. Villars - hostesses, chaperones and transportation; Robert L. Black - judges and awards; Edward P. Skubec and Phillip A. Roth-program books; Robert G. Snell - entertainment, Thomas P. Epps - parade; Charles R. Runyon - housing; and Ronald F. Jones - finance. Fred J. Thulin will serve as official pageant photographer.

Ticket sales are under the direction of John J. Flaherty who has announced that 12,000 tickets will be available next week. Prices and sales locations, as well as purchase by mail, will be announced shortly.

SNYDER SAID that preliminary community contests from which Miss Illinois entrants are selected will be held throughout the state during May and the early part of June. These contests are being sponsored by Illinois Jaycee chapters in conjunction with other community service organizations and civic-minded commercial firms.

Scholarship awards and prizes for winners in the Miss Illinois Pageant are being provided by such prominent firms as the Pepsi-Cola Bottlers of Chicago, Philco Corporation, and Centex Construction Company. Centex, developer of Elk Grove Village, is also donating land area and much of the construction materials required for pageant activities.

Snyder added that many additional civic-minded individuals and commercial interests in this area continue to indicate their interest in supporting the pageant.

Mal Bellairs, popular Chicago radio personality, was previously named by Snyder as Master of Ceremonies for the June event. (B8

MISS AMERICA 1961, Nancy Anne Fleming, crowns her successor, Maria Beale Fletcher of Asheville, S.C., at last September's Miss America pageant in Atlantic City. Miss Fletcher, America's First Lady of Beauty in 1962, will be in Elk Grove Village for the 1962 Miss Illinois Pageant, June 27-30. (B8

McDonald's Store to Observe Anniversary

The man who has served a whopping total of 3,200,000 hamburgers to families in this area is getting ready to celebrate his fourth anniversary as the biggest seller of hamburgers in Arlington Heights.

He is Richard Linnell, manager of the McDonald's Hamburger Restaurant at the corner of Northwest Highway and Wilke Road which will mark its fourth anniversary in business on April 27.

The local McDonald's is part of the big national chain which now numbers 345 units in 40 states. Nationally, McDonald's has sold more than 600 million hamburgers since the chain operation began in 1955.

"THE overwhelming acceptance which families in this area have accorded McDonald's has been extremely gratifying, and I would like to take the occasion of this anniversary to say thanks to them for helping us become part of the community," said Linnell.

Local families have flocked to McDonald's ever since its opening, lining up at self-service windows for hamburgers to take home or eat in their cars—and proving the effectiveness of the unique McDonald's concept of a carry-out restaurant keyed to the family trade and concentrating on America's favorite family fare, the hamburger.

McDonald's represents a big departure from the usual drive-in restaurant serving transients. An estimated 90 per cent of McDonald's business comes from local families.

MCDONALD'S restricts its menu to just 10 items—hamburgers, cheeseburgers, French fries and drinks—to speed service and keep prices down.

"McDonald's has found many ways to turn the preparation and serving of hamburgers into a science—and to pass the savings of this scientific approach along to the customers by holding the 15-cent price line," says Linnell. "Not only in quality of food and in atmosphere, but in consideration for the family budget is McDonald's keyed to the family trade."

Science-minded local youngsters—and their fathers—get a special treat from watching McDonald's turn out hamburgers at a mass-production pace, while mothers are able to inspect the spotless kitchen, Linnell reports.

THE ENTIRE preparation area is on view behind glass windows, and exhibition cooking is a major attraction at McDonald's.

The need for streamlined speed and assembly-line efficiency in turning out hamburgers is pointed up by the fact that locally McDonald's uses up to two tons of beef, a ton and a half of potatoes and almost 50 gallons of catsup in an average week. Last year the entire chain used 8,500 tons of beef and 1,200 carloads of potatoes. (B-8

Wilkins Asks 'War' On School Dropouts

Higher welfare rolls, delinquency, robbery, family tragedy and higher taxes are largely caused by those students who fail to complete their education, according to George T. Wilkins, superintendent of public instruction, who challenged parent-teacher associations to launch a frontal attack on the school drop-out problem.

Speaking this morning in the Illinois State Armory to delegages attending the 60th annual convention of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, Supt. Wilkins said the next decade will see 7½-million youths fail to complete their high school education; 2½-million will not finish grade school.

"The school dropout will work at menial jobs for low pay, he will be employed only seasonally and he will have to deny his family many of the decencies of life," Wilikns said.

"There's never been a time in history," he stated, "when illiteracy, ignorance and technological inability carry such a high price tag."

Wilkins told the PTA convention that the solution to school drop-outs will be found only through wide-spread, co-operative programs formed with the participation of school PTA's, business, industry, school boards and administrators to keep students in their classes. The state official added that local PTA's could render outstanding leadership in this one field alone.

Other pressing problems confronting Illinois schools and needing continued PTA support, according to Wilkins, are the following:

1. The development of a system of Junior Colleges throughout Illinois;

2. Good school legislation is essential if an efficient educational program is to be maintained. Although school aid has been increased by 75 per cent over the past three-yead period, a continuous effort must continue.

3. A comprehensive curriculum program must be offered by our high schools. Needed is continued emphasis in science, mathematics and foreign language; new emphasis in the field of vocational-technical education and additional emphasis in the general area of the humanities; and

4. Parents and teachers must cease the occasional tendency to over-look the moral and spiritual development of a child. (A14

Last Meeting Of TPC Set

The final portion of the Prospect High Teacher-Parent Council program for the 1961-62 school year will be held Tuesday, April 24, in the field house of the school, 801 W. Foundry Road, Mount Prospect.

Preceding the program will be a short business meeting set to begin at 8 p.m. promptly. Major item on the business agenda is the election of officers for the coming year.

At 8:20 p.m. the second phase of the evening's program will be divided into two major categories. For parents of 1962 elementary school graduates a series of orientation lectures and discussions will be held.

INFORMATION available at this special session is planned to aid parents in helping students make the transition to the high-school level of study and extra-curricular activities.

During the same period, a Parent-Teacher-Student round-table panel discussion on "Today's High School" will convene. Subjects listed for discussion include communication, careers and counseling as well as the problems of maintaining order and discipline among teenagers.

Representing parents on the panel are Chairman Mynderse Taylor, Mrs. Gilbert Liebenow and William Swanson. Faculty members are Miss Jane Mahin, chairman of the English Department; John Rowe of the Mathematics Department; and Prospect Dean Lewis Schultz.

STUDENTS WILL be represented by Douglas Vaughan, president of the Student Council; Dinah Mobus, council vice president; and Donn Smith, former student and graduate of Prospect who is now enrolled at Northwestern University.

In the final program, the student body has instituted a program for the Student Council Scholarship Fund, with Vaughan acting as publicity director. The goal of the evening is to obtain greater parent participation, to bring a $50 contribution to the fund on behalf of the Teacher-Parent Council. (ACM

Dryden Place Paving One Step Nearer

The way was cleared Monday night for further action on proposed paving and improvement of S. Dryden Place from Rockwell to Davis, north of Dryden School.

The Arlington Heights village board approved guarantee of payment of 25 per cent of professional fees involved in planning the project, which means engineering and other work may now be done, and the engineers are assured of 25 per cent of the normal fees, even if the project does not go through.

THE PLANS will be based on a street not to exceed 36 feet in width. The Board of Local Improvements now can take whatever action it deems advisable.

Several residents of the area attended the meeting Monday night, and indicated the board's action was in accord with their sentiments. (A

'Home Town' Voting Pays Off in Victory

Loyalty to "home town" boys paid off for John Haas, George Paris and Charles Lockwood in the election for the Arlington - Prospect High School District 214 Board of Education.

Record numbers of voters turned out in Prospect Heights, giving Haas a total of 702 votes for a three-year term and bringing his total vote in the district to 2,662. Haas, a resident of the area, is now serving as president of the high school board.

MOST DRAMATIC effect of the Prospect Heights vote came for Charles Lockwood, now a resident of Arlington Heights, but a former Prospect Heights "boy." With all precincts reported except Prospect Heights Lockwood trailed Lois Rezner of Mount Prospect 1,720 votes to 1,728.

When the final Prospect Heights tally was added to the high school district vote, at 2 a.m. Sunday, Lockwood won handily with a total vote of 2,312 to 1,969 for Mrs. Rezner. The fourth candidate for a three-year term was Gene Sackett of Wheeling who polled 982 votes.

Paris won his board seat for a two-year unexpired term without undue pressure. Of the 25 precincts Paris carried all but 10. His total vote was 2,239 compared to 901 for E. L. "Bud" Mills and 950 for Walter P. Strobel, both of Arlington Heights.

In his home town of Mount Prospect, Paris pulled 1,055 votes alone.

VOTING WAS very light in Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove and Feehanville School Districts in the high school election. Turnout in Wheeling and Arlington Heights was "average" with the Prospect Heights vote hitting record numbers.

Reason for the high turnout was an effort by some members of St. Alphonsus Catholic Church to promote a write-in campaign in the Prospect Heights elementary school board election. Parochial school parents in the past few months have unsuccessfully attempted to obtain public school bus transportation for St. Alphonsus pupils. A write-in campaign for three of their own candidates was felt to be a possible solution to the problem.

When word of the write-in campaign reached parents of public school students on Friday afternoon, the day before the election, a furious counter "get out the vote" campaign was started to support the caucus candidates for the board.

(A legal opinion on the question of transportation for parochial students is being awaited from the state by the elementary school).

THE RELIGIOUS school issue worked to aid Haas and Lockwood in their bid for seats on the high school board. Lockwood and Haas are both former members of the Prospect Heights elementary board.

Almost 1,100 voters turned out for the Prospect Heights election. Last year there were little more than 200 voters in the school board contest.

Peak in the Prospect Heights voting came between 5 and 7 p.m. About 300 voters were "in the doors" waiting to vote when the polls officially closed at 7 p.m. Actual voting was not completed until 9:30 p.m. and counting for the high school election was not finished until 2 a.m. Sunday.

At the organizational meeting of the high school board Monday night, Haas and Mrs. Eugenia Chapman of Arlington Heights were re-elected as president and secretary of the board without opposition.

Actual vote counts by precincts for the high school election are carried on an inside page.

Included on the panel will be teachers and administrators of the school. Typical of the questions to be discussed are "How are high schools rated?", "How are your teachers selected?", "What are the big changes being made in high school subjects?", and "What are the subjects being taken in preparation for college, business and industry."

Some Flat Notes

Northwest Symphony Sharp in Its Finale

by JIM PHILLIPS

Flats and sharps were active Sunday evening at Maine Township High School, the setting for Northwest Symphony Orchestra's musical farewell to the '61-'62 season.

By and large, the orchestra was sharp, but a number of musicians were flat—and what made matters even more difficult, the flattest was the solo oboe, which consequently offered an inaccurate tuning pitch for the rest of the orchestra. Coming in as a close second in disharmony were the second violins.

Until the featured work, they couldn't find the cause of their hampered harmonics. And the only reason the problem was finally solved was the fact that the piano was used as the "in tune" norm.

THIS IS not to say the concert itself wasn't a success. It was, thanks to Conductor Perry Crafton, who doesn't try to make a Chicago Symphony out of his group. He is easy to follow from the back-of-the-music-standpoint, and he has an acute understanding of the problems of getting an amateur group to sound as professional as possible.

Sunday evening's program began with the Mendelssohn Italian Symphony, which is a weirdie as far as symphony works go. It has as much Italy in it as a plate of chow mein, but it does have the flounciness of Mr. M's composition library, and in certain instances (especially in the final movement) it pleasantly reeks of Felix's incidental music to A Midsummer Nights Dream.

The orchestra brought a good amount of seasoning to this Italian tossed salad, and thanks to Mr. Crafton's idea of what should be forte and what shouldn't, the strings were held down in volume to let the woodwinds wind their slurred phrases in and out of the four movements in delicate fashion. The crispness of the 16th and 32nd notes came through, all the way to the rousing finish of the fourth movement.

FOLLOWING the opener was a performance of "Valse Trieste," better known to much of the older generation as the theme for the radio thriller, "I Love A Mystery." The orchestra's handling of this composition only further proves that it's going to be a long time before this universe comes up with another Jean Sibelius.

The strings were in their glory in this waltz-like melody, which has been called "Salon music" by certain bone-headed Chicago critics. It goes without saying that Northwest has the finest group of cellists it has been my fortune to hear. There was real body and flavor in each deep note played by these accomplished instrumentalists, and it showed up in nearly every selection on the program.

I say "nearly" because of the selection following "Valse Trieste." It's a deep jump from the Danube to the Rhine River, and even the cello section got a little splashed in the leap. Wagner's "Siegfried's Rhine Journey" provided a change of pace in the program and an excuse for getting the rest of the brasses out of the washrooms backstage.

AND THE trombone - trumpet-tuba-tooters did themselves justice until it became time for the Wagnerian power to burst through. It didn't burst. It glided. Somehow or other, the staccatos melted into legatos, and all that was left was French Horn—beautifully played, but with little support from the rest of the brass family.

At this point, the tuning disease spread into the clarinet section, and between the single reed-double reed battle going on, you couldn't tell a sharp from a flat, except when it was supposed to be a natural. Again, it was the orchestral whole that suffered.

The intermission came, the audience gossiped, the piano was brought to center stage and Mary Sauer took her place behind the smiling teeth of the grand. The Tschaikowsky First Piano Concerto in B-flat Minor entered the musical starting gate, and when the baton-bell rang, Mary and orchestra broke out like front-runners. Miss Sauer's fingers pounced on the keyboard like a pair of spiders ambushing a quarry of flies.

FROM OCTAVE progression to glissando, she was in complete command of her role in all movements. Probably the high point was her interpretation of the beautifully - lyrical second movement. The spiders to butterflies. Her phrasing was as soft and delicate as a baby blanket.

The third movement at times caused her some trouble, strictly because she attempted to cover a lot of ground at a greater speed than necessary.

However, the missed notes were not easily detected, and as far as the suburban audience was concerned, they couldn't care less. They like Tschaikowsky in any way, shape or form, and from Miss Sauer's standpoint, the Concerto No. 1 was a huge success.

FROM MR. Crafton's podium point, it was a job well done. His orchestra is worth a greater audience than was present Sunday evening. As the program notes state, the concerts musical compositions chosen "are for the whole family." The denote the creation of a "mom, dad, and kids" atmosphere.

Like many other fine programs of entertainment in and out of Paddockland, this concert series points the finger of choice at all of us. Are we going to admit to being unintellectual clods, automatoned vegetables, and victims of television tuberculosis, or are we going to arise from our discount house furniture, put on our "community-conscious" clothes and take advantage of the finer things of life.? Urge Jr. College District Be Formed

(This is the second in a series of six articles covering the major recommendations of the junior college survey just completed by the 90-member citizens committee from nine high school districts included in the proposed college area.)

by HELENE BRISTOL

After months of study and investigation, a 90-member citizens survey committee issued a final report and recommendation last week, stating that a community junior college district was "feasible" and recommending establishing of the school or schools.

Included in the study were nine north and northwest suburban high school districts, but the final report of the committee urged a "core" area start work immediately to give residents results of the study leading to a referendum on setting up the district.

The "core" area covers the five high school districts of Palatine-Schaumburg, Glenbrook, Maine, Niles and Arlington-Prospect.

Among the recommendations was the acquisition as soon as practical of two sites for prospective junior colleges, with each school to handle no more than 5,000 students.

Suggested site areas were in Wheeling or Elk Grove Townships, except near O'Hare Field, or in the western part of Northfield Township.

HIGH SCHOOL districts which participated in the survey and which are not included in the "core" area are Ridgewood, Evanston, New Trier and Highland Park. These areas were considered to be less likely to take early action to establish a junior college district, while the "core" territory was judged to be "relatively" more likely to consider organization of the district.

The study, made by a committee composed of ten citizens from each of the nine districts with university-experts for technical advisors, was aimed at five major purposes.

The 90-member committee was divided into five subcommittees covering each of the categories, with two members from each high school area serving on each subcommittee.

THE FIVE purposes as shown in the committee report were:

1) To collect and examine data relative to the population of the territory, including potential demand for higher education, potential population growth of the area and projected demand for community-junior college education.

2) To develop judgments regarding the possibilities for an education program in a college or colleges which might be established in the territory.

3) To gather and analyze financial data from the underlying secondary school districts which might reveal information regarding the financial ability of the area to support a regional college and to secure from other sources related financial data which would aid in determining the probable costs of a community college.

4) TO SECURE and correlate data relative to building needs and the possible designation of sites for the establishment of a college or colleges within the territory.

5) To compile and disseminate factual and correct information regarding survey procedures to the citizens of the territory.

Basic to much of the study were the results of the population survey. In this study, the subcommittee found that the area included in the survey had shown a 113 per cent increase in population between 1950 and 1960.

POPULATION of the districts was 274,549 according to the 1950 U.S. Census, while the 1960 census showed a total population of 583,068. This population is estimated to be more than 600,000 today.

In a recent study, the National Education Association predicted a percentage population increase in the State of Illinois. This study showed the increase in working age persons (from 22 to 64) at 9 per cent, elementary age children (from 6 to 13) at 22 per cent, high school age persons at 49 per cent, and college age persons (from 18 to 21) at 58 per cent.

A similar study on the national level showed college age increase in population again leading the categories with a predicted 57 per cent rise.

THE POPULATION subcommittee stressed that since the survey area is expected to grow three times as rapidly in the next 10 years as the country as a whole, "the urgency of providing higher education facilities commensurate with needs is plainly evident."

Noted also by the subcommittee was the increase in enrollments in Illinois in both public and private higher-educational institutions. Private school enrollments rose 8 per cent between 1950 and 1960, while public school enrollments increased 95 per cent.

In 1950 about one-third of Illinois college students attended public schools, while in 1960 this had changed to one-half of the total college enrollments. The survey pointed out that "barring a fortunate reversal in favor of private school enrollments," publicly-supported colleges must bear a large part of the enormous increase forecast.

THE SURVEY also developed that the schools covered in the survey area send about 70 per cent of their graduates to college.

Based on census figures, the subcommittee found that the survey area includes many more professional, technical, managerial and sales workers than does Chicago, the entire metropolitan area or the entire suburban area. There also was found to be a substantial "though slightly lower" requirement for craftsmen, foremen and kindred workers than in the larger community.

The subcommittee concluded that the area covered by the report makes greater educational demands on its workers than the city or metropolitan area, and that future wage earners will demand greater than average educational facilities and programs in the survey area.

TIED IN with these conclusions was a study which revealed the nine high schools districts had about 20,000 adult-education enrollments in the current school adult education programs. Of these, almost one-fourth are "academic" classes.

Based on a series of complicated enrollment formulas and predictions, the population subcommittee established an estimated enrollment figure for the proposed community junior college. These estimates were developed with present school enrollment figures, projected enrollments in each school district and the averages of part-time to full-time enrollments in similar junior college districts.

Educational experts throughout the country, including Dr. Raymond Young who is known as an authority on college enrollments, state that enrollments in a community junior college would range from one-fifth to one-third of the graduating seniors of the area high schools. Enrollment at the sophomore level of the junior college would be about 50 to 60 per cent of the freshmen enrollment.

USING THIS formula, with the projected school populations in the survey area, the subcommittee estimated enrollments for a "going institution" in 1962-63 would be 5,058.

Since "guesstimates" on the possible opening of a community junior college set 1966 as a probable starting time, the committee's estimated enrollment at that time would be 7,826. This ranged from an estimated "high" of 9,628 students to a "low" of 6,024.

By 1970-71 this would rise to 10,513 by the subcommittee's best estimates, and continue up to 11,893 in 1972-73.

(In the third article of the series covering the report of the junior-college survey committee, the findings and recommendations of the educational subcommittee will be presented.) (B8

THE "CORE" area for a proposed community junior college district to serve the northwest suburban area will cover the five high school districts shown above. The four shaded districts — Evanston, New Trier, Highland Park and Ridgewood — may drop out of the proposed college district before the issue is placed before voters. The nine districts all were included in the "feasibility report" of the proposed college district.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Under the leadership of Mrs. Marge Stevens and Mrs. Ann Blundell, Dancing Daisies had their own fly-up ceremony at their leader's home April 14. Sally Pederson and Beth Ann Radosta from the Chaweehi Camp Fire group, presented the 13 girls with their new ties, and also "gave service" by cleaning up after the festivities.

Mothers of the girls were present also when they received their fly-up honors and certificates. Blue Bird songs were sung after which punch and brownies were served.

Mrs. Stevens had the biggest surprise of all at this affair when her girls presented her with a poem they had composed, accompanied by a gift of money to buy a complete camp fire costume for herself.

These girls and their leaders have also been organizing new Blue Bird groups at one of the schools in Hoffman Estates.

UNDER THE guardianship of Miss Burris, the Oda Konya Camp Fire group, consisting of Donna Rohs, Donna Pellegrini, Gail Lozzi, Gail Dominick, Laurie Meyers, Cathy Rice, Carol Fortney, Debra Jenkins, Martha Fullerton and Sherry Kenyon, appeared before the Committee of Awards to be reviewed for their Trailseeker Rank. Mrs. Charles Schutte and Mrs. Arnold Lozzi, who are serving in this capacity, passed all the girls.

The girls and their guardian celebrated this big occasion with a bonfire get together, given by their sponsors Mrs. Jack Robs and Mrs. Arnold Lozzi. At this time they welcomed a new member, Nancy Thorpe, into the Group.

The Grand Council Fire will be held at Schaumburg Junior High School May 4. These girls will then receive their five purple rank beads and rank charm that is to be worn on their membership pins.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Decorations at the Regional Conference were reported a "big success."

Mrs. Dorothy Braun, who was responsible in Arlington Heights for these plans being carried out ,thanks all leaders and their girls who gave time to make forsythia branches, peach blossoms, and red, white and blue hats for centerpieces.

DAY CAMP

Blue Bird Day Camp is June 19 and 20, Camp Fire Day Camp is June 21 and 22. Theme this year is Pioneering—Westward Movement.

Mrs. Kathy Graham, camping chairman, needs helping hands at Camp Fire Day Camp, not chairman necessarily, just workers. She asks volunteers to call her at Cl 3-1999.

MOUNT PROSPECT

KoWeeGah Camp Fire Girls, whose leader is Mrs. W. Miltzow, and assistant leader is Mrs. J. Kamppinen, are presently hard at work on their Woodgatherer's Rank. Their service project is an all important one for the Cancer Society in Mount Prospect. The girls are busy stamping 2000 leaflets for the organization. Marsha Tajima and Doris Stevens made all of the arrangements for the project and are marshaling the job their fellow Camp Fire sisters, Gail Allen, Leilani Baehr, Susan Kamppinen, Bonne Kecker, Kathleen McGovern, Judith Miltzow, Kathy Piepenbrink, Sandalee Schultz, Donna Snyder and Ruth Walter, are doing.

All is not work, however, as this same group spent an enjoyable Saturday, April 7, at the New Villa Venice in Northbrook, to attend a luncheon and an Easter Parade of teen fashions presented by Young Debs of Old Orchard.

AFTER THE program the girls were allowed to go back stage to take a better look at the fashions and try some on if they wished. They also took a jaunt around the villa grounds, snapped pictures, and were especially interested in the villa wishing well.

Busy Busse Blue Birds report a busy month so far. Wednesday, April 4, they made Easter egg tray favors for the children's ward at Northwest Community Hospital. Wednesday, April 11, the group went on a tour of the United Airlines Stewardess Training Center in the newly-completed United Airlines building in Elk Grove. The girls, Marilyn Beila, Donna Engstrom, Janet Garlinghouse, Dana Grantham, Virginia Laflen, Ann Livingston, Ursula Seyring and Kathryn Lannoye, are led by Mrs. L. Livingston who is assisted by Mrs. A. Biela.

March 1, ToWonKa Camp Fire girls became a kitchen-band contestant in the talent show conducted at St. Paul Lutheran School. Each girl carried an instrument improvised from a kitchen tool and wore a hat and apron of a culinary motif. Judges rewarded them with a first prize blue ribbon. Girls in the band were Cathy Buhrke, Judy Gewecke, Kris Granzin, Janet Haase, Patti Haedike, Barbara Harney, Ginger Hasz, Barbara Koop, Connie Mainzor, Laurie Nave, Charlotte Rateike, Barbara Scherpelz, Bonnie Schmidt and Linda Seils. They are guided by Mrs. W. Granzin and Mrs. G. Nave. (B9

Victors in the board contests were John Haas of Prospect Heights, E. Charles Lockwood of Arlington Heights and George H. Paris of Mount Prospect.

When I survey the wondrous cross,
On Which the Prince of Glory died;
My richest gain I count but loss
And Pour contempt on all my pride.

THESE WORDS will be sung in Christian churches throughout the world this Easter Sunday as throngs of worshippers review the meaning and the story of the Cross — which began with sorrow and ended in victory. (AF

Dramatists Give Up Vacation for Stage

With only the octopus' role to cast, Arlington High dramatists this week gave up their spring vacation for morning rehearsals of George Kaufman and Moss Hart's "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

The comedy is scheduled for Arlington's Little Theater May 3, 4, and 5.

"The octopus doesn't come on stage," gratefully remarked Director Douglas K. Murphy, "and it's a good thing. We need room for the cast."

Murphy was referring to the cast of 40, representing students of all four years of high school. Size of the group rivals "Romeo and Juliet" as the largest cast of a dramatic production at Arlington.

"Since the comedy consists of a corps of characters who are onstage often and a platoon of people who appear briefly but importantly, original tryouts were held weeks ago. They were followed by rehearsals and then more casting," Murphy explained.

LATEST ADDITION to the cast include:

Robert Bardach, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Bardach, 525 S. Lincoln Lane, as a convict; James M. Ewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Ewart, 349 S. Bristol, as another convict; Hugh Smeed, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Smeed, 533 S. Evergreen, as a guard.

Cliff Hadick, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hadick, 2507 Sigwalt, Rolling Meadows, as the railway expressman; Steve Castor, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Castor, 838 S. Vail, as the radio technician.

Mike Fitzpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Fitzpatrick, 1003 N. Mitchell, and Joseph Mueller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Mueller, 300 E. Emerson, as two deputies.

Rebecca Moulton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moulton, 729 S. Dunton, alternating with Mary Jane Heberling, daughter of Mrs. R. H. Heberling, 819 W. Fairview, in the role of actress Lorraine Sheldon.

The American comedy is almost as famous for its succession of unusual props as for its constant parade of characters, Murphy commented.

AMONG THE gifts sent to the eminent Sheridan Whiteside (the man who came to dinner —and stayed) are four penguins, an Egyptian mummy case, an octopus, and a box of 10,000 cockroaches. Only the octopus is not seen on stage.

Tickets for the production, which has a 7:30 p. m. curtain Thursday night, May 3, and 8 p. m. openings Friday and Saturday nights, May 4 and 5, can be purchased at the high school office or at the door the evening of each performance.

A SCOUT IS REVERENT—and Casey Gresey, of Troop 166, St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights, is a case in point. The youth recently was awarded the Ad Altare Dei, a Catholic religious award, by the Rev. McHale. To earn this award, the youth must be a first class scout, give one year of service to and learn specific duties from his minister, priest, rabbi or spiritual advisor.

Presbyterian Women To 'Open Windows'

A special fellowship meeting will herald Spring for the Woman's Association of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights April 25.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m. by Circle 9 of the association, under the guidance of Mrs. Albert Hawkes, chairman, and Mrs. H. C. Lips, cochairman, and a short business meeting will precede the program for the afternoon.

Mrs. James Harris of Evanston will present the program, "Open Your Windows." Mrs. Harris is the wife of the Associate Pastor of Northminster Presbyterian Church of Evnaston, and has studied at Hastings College, graduating with a degree in piano, and has completed graduate work at Deller Quaille School of Music in New York City. She has been active as church organist and director of choirs, as well as presenting musical programs for many organizations in the area.

MRS. HARRIS and Mrs. Donald Hartung, musical secretary of the association, will "open the windows of our lives to music," playing several selections as a piano duo.

Mrs. Melvin Born, a member of the association, will be leader of games and songs "opening our windows" to fun, and "windows" will also be opened to poetry, read by Mrs. Raymond Anderson.

Mrs. George Landgren, also of Evanston, will "open our Windows to love," through the medium of songs. Mrs. Landgren is director of choirs at Northminster Church, and is a graduate of Oberlin College with a degree in voice.

"OPENING our Windows to joy," will be a mother and daughter duet; cellist, Mrs. Donald Everhardt, and accompanying her on the piano, Miss Ellen Everhart, a junior at Arlington High School. Mrs. Everhardt, a member of the Association, is a graduate of Dennison College, with a bachelor of music degree. She is presently a private teacher of piano and cello in Arlington Heights. The program will terminate with a devotion, "opening our windows to wonder," by Mrs. Arthur Wolfinger.

The program committee of the association, under Chairman Mrs. Elmer Zilen, is inviting all women of the church and their guests to be present at this unusual fellowship meeting. Reservations may be made through church circles or by calling the church office, CL 3-0492.

SOUTH ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

Sixth Grade Troop 584 gave a folk dance party for Troop 551 at Pioneer Park. For several weeks the troop has been teaching folk dances to Brownie troops as part of a badge requirement. Guest at the April 9 meeting of Troop 131 was Ozzie Hoff, a native born Norwegian, who showed slides. This fifth grade troop recently ventured into pottery-making, and is now enjoying narcissus blooms planted in bowls they made themselves.

Intermediate Troop 514 collected clothing and toys to be distributed to the Spanish-American families in this area. This troop has also been learning folk dances and has taught Brownie Troop 108 two dances and three singing games. The skating badge was completed by Fifth Grade Troop 355 at the local skating rink. In addition to forward and backward, the girls were taught how to stomp, the waltz, the bunny-hop and safety rules.

NORTH MOUNT PROSPECT

Seventy fifth through eighth grade Scouts and their leaders enjoyed a splash party at the "Y." Following the swim they met in the all-purpose room around the player piano and had refreshments. The evening was climaxed by viewing the films, "Close-Ups 1961-62" and "The Colorado Round-Up." A film of North Mount Prospect scout activities was also shown.

SOUTH MOUNT PROSPECT

Senior Mariner Troop U.S.S. Enterprise 65 is taking orders for log-planters, suggesting them as Mother's Day gifts. Members are making the planters which will be sold for $1.25 without a plant, $1.50 with a plant. Proceeds of the sale will help defray costs of a 1963 camping trip.

Anyone wishing to order a planter may call Mrs. Harold Drew at 253-1010. The Mariners are planning an international dinner at the home of their co-leader, Mrs. Regis Balkey, April 24. Each girl will bring a dish representative of a foreign country and wear the costume native to that country.

Troop 499, eighth graders, also are raising funds for a camping trip. The troop will sponsor a baked goods, white elephant and rummage sale May 19 to help finance an out-of-state camping trip in late June. Offers of donations are being taken by Mrs. Edward Schimek, CL 3-0072, and Mrs Orville Williams, HE 9-0626. The troop is assembling an Easter basket to be delivered by the leader and three members to an elderly Chicago couple whom the troop has befriended for several years.

Members are working on the sports badge and recently learned to play shuffleboard.

Troop 477 seventh graders, led by Mrs. Floyd Caldini, entertained a large group of preschoolers with the dramatization of a folk ballad, thereby fulfulling child care and Magic Carpet requirements.

Intermediate Troop 212, led by Mrs. John Welch, was host to Brownie Troop 708 last week and this week the Brownies reciprocate.

Three eighth graders from Troop 499 also visited Troop 212 to advise the younger girls on their April 30th cook-out.

ROLLING MEADOWS

A program devoted to water, soil, wildlife and forest conservation was presented by the Lady Waltonians of the Izaac Walton League, Des Plaines Chapter. Invited were the Intermediates and Junior High Scouts of Rolling Meadows with their leaders, special attention being given to the girls working on their Conservation Badge.

Three movies were shown, dealing with trees of Illinois and their products, fish hatcheries, and soil erosion with a Smokey Bear insert.

A BIRD feeding station and wild flower literature was on display. Edward C. Cooney, assistant supervisor conservation education from the office of public instruction, was present to speak briefly on the meaning of "conservation" and to lead a question period. One statement which he made concerning bird feeding stations was of particular interest to all bird lovers, "Do not put up feeding stations if you cannot keep them daily supplied with sunflower seeds, suet, etc. The birds do not fly south, counting on the use of the stations. If the feedings taper off to nothing, the birds must die."

Program arrangements were under the direction of co-chairmen, Mrs. Walter Smith and Mrs. John Wertz, and club president, Mrs. W. Crowley. Refreshments of cookies, milk, and coffee were served.

PALATINE

With the help of the League of Women Voters, four junior high troops are fulfilling requirements of the My Government badge. Troops 430, 221, 560 and 347 have met Monday nights. Mrs. Richard Wallace opened the sessions with general information on parties and elections. Mrs. Joh Sharda explained the primary ballot.

An aide to Voters group is being organized by Mrs. Byron Finegan. The girls will offer to baby sit for friends and neighbors while they vote. Saturday they handed out reminders to vote in the school board election. Aides can be identified by their red and white striped arm bands.

Tuesday evening, April 3, girls from Troop 430 and their families gathered at Christ Lutheran Church to receive badges they earned during the last six months. The Court of Awards opened with a presentation of colors and a candlelight ceremony. Of the 32 badges earned, World Trefoil and Campcraft were troop badges. Individual badges were: Speaker, Salt Water Life, Outdoor Safety, Cat and Dog, Adventurer, Animal Raiser, Outdoor Cook, Dressmaker, Star and Insect.

First Class rank was earned by Susan Hamilton and Pamela VanBoxtaele. Mrs. A. Beck of Northwest Cook County Council spoke about Senior Scouting. The event ended with refreshments. Mrs. George Hasbach and Mrs. Eldon Hall are leaders of Troop 430.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

At the April 12 neighborhood meeting of Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg, plans were discussed for the May 5 fund raising square dance for leaders, parents and scout friends. Dick Smith will be caller for the party; which is being planned by Mrs. William Reynolds and the finance committee.

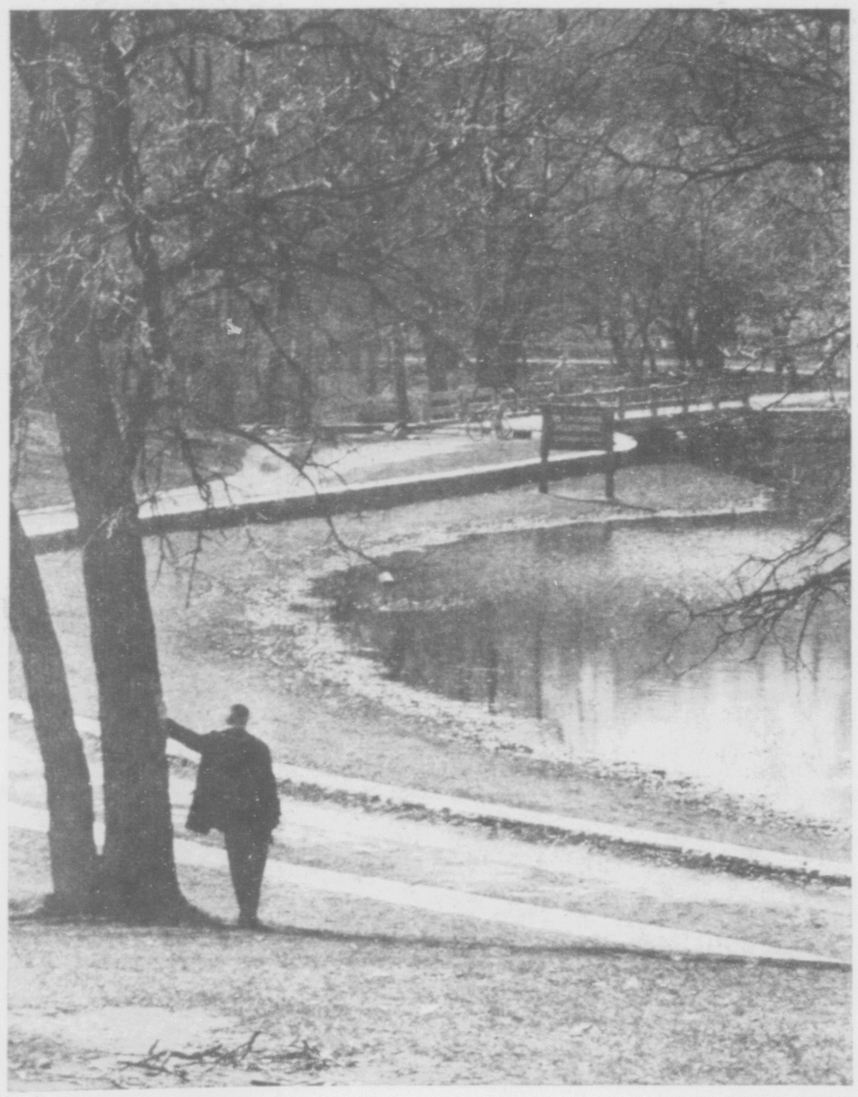
Dimes for Daisy collection sent in following the meeting totaled $64.27. The next neighborhood meeting will be May 10.

Seventh grade Troop 20, under the leadership of Mrs. William Wilkinson, recently presented "Rip Van Winkle" at the Blackhawk School for Mrs. Herb Tyson and Mrs. S. Knudsen's Brownie Troop 793.

TWO FIFTH grade troops from the Lakeview School area are making final plans for their April 27, 28, 29 overnight at Camp Pine. Troop 796, under the leadership of Mrs. William Kollias and Mrs. R. Miskoci, will share a cabin with Troop 362. The group working under Mrs. F. Alexa, Mrs. W. Kumpf and Mrs. P. Shaw plan to complete part of the campcraft part of the campcraft badge.

Seventh grade Troop 590 was busy last month presenting colors for the meetings of the Hoffman Estates Woman's Club, Schaumburg Junior Women's Club and the Campanelli PTA.

An ice skating party is the event planned by the sixth, seventh and eighth graders of Troop 780. During their spring vacation, Leaders Mrs. M. Miyashita, Mrs. J. O'Neal and Mrs. A. Infelise will take them to Michael Kirby's in Meadowdale. (B9



UNDER A CLUTCHING latticework of branches still bared by winter's discontent, a lone figure leans on a Poplar tree as he appears to concentrate on blades of grass being cultivated by the hand of spring. The scene was recorded in the Deer Grove Forest Preserve near Palatine by Paddock Publications Photographer Don Vickery.

Fulle Moves Adoption Of Zoning Requests

Cook County Commissioner Fred Fulle, R-Des Plaines, who had previously asked that two zoning requests in Elk Grove Township involving a subdivision and a golf course be deferred, at a county board meeting Monday moved for their adoption.

The county board was unanimous in adopting the two requests, one for a 40-acre tract for a golf course located south of Mount Prospect, and the other for a 21-acre subdivision located on the southwest corner of Arlington Heights Road and Lincoln Road.

The village of Mount Prospect had objected to both zoning requests. The city of Des Plaines had lodged an objection to the golf course, but later withdrew it, Fulle told the board.

PETITIONERS for the golf course, situated on the west side of Elmhurst Road some 970 feet south of Golf Road were Emily Moeller and Cordia Hasz, representing Kenroy Realtors, 4761 W. Touhy Ave., Lincolnwood.

The petitioners, through their attorney, Robert E. Haskins, had asked for rezoning from the present classification of R-4 single family residence (10,000 square feet) to B-5 general commercial district.

The development is to include a par-three, nine-hole golf course, a driving range, a miniature golf course and club house facilities. The club house facilities would include a restaurant and cocktail lounge.

PETITIONERS said that improvements, including the land and buildings, would represent an investment of $500,000.

The other zoning request which was approved had asked a change in classification from R-3 single family residence (20,000 square foot lots) to R-4 single family (10,000 square foot lots).

Mount Prospect had objected to the rezoning on the basis of lack of storm drainage facilities.

Fulle reported to the county board that this matter of concern had been rectified.

THE PROPERTY is to be subdivided into 71 lots, and public sewer and water systems will be available to it. The area is north of the Nottingham subdivision.

Atty. Dwight McKay represented the petitioners. The property is held in trust by the LaSalle National Bank of Chicago.

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals had recommended approval of both rezoning requests.

On Tree Work

Strike Threat Hikes Costs

To forestall possible work stoppage on the new municipal building, the Arlington Heights village board Monday night rejected the low bid of a non-union tree trimming firm and accepted the second lowest bid.

Upon recommendation of Village Manager L. A. Hanson, the board accepted the bid of B. Haney and Sons for trimming and pruning trees in the village, and clearing away the branches and twigs. The Haney bid was for $4.33 an hour.

Low bidder was the Nels Johnson firm, which offered to do the same job for $3.70 an hour.

HANSON SAID, however, the Mount Prospect Village Hall is currently being picketed by Teamster union members because the Johnson firm is doing work for the Village of Mount Prospect.

The Teamsters have been trying to organize the Johnson firm since last fall when a majority of the firm's employees voted to join the union, and were subsequently discharged.

At that time, Johnson was doing work for Arlington Heights also, and Hanson had to order them to stop work because of the union trouble.

Hanson said Monday night that in view of the current picketing in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights might find itself in serious difficulties if the Johnson firm were hired.

HE NOTED that picketing undoubtedly would be instituted at the new municipal building under construction at State Road and Sigwalt Street, and since all building materials probably are delivered by Teamster drivers, a standstill on the project would be foreseeable.

The board concurred in the manager's recommendation to hire the Haney firm. The other bidders were Davey Tree, $5 an hour; and Appleby, $4.95 an hour. (A-M

IT'S IN THE GROOVE

by ED LANDWEHR

Maybe you know what stereo, monaural and high fidelity mean but questions about these record players at LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Hts. make us suspect that many do not.

Stereo means sound from two sources. You hear a band, for instance, from two sides, each ear receiving particular sounds more than the other. A true stereo record, for example, must be recorded with two separated microphones, each mike recording on its own cut channel within the single groove of the record.

Monaural means one sound source only, one channel recorded from a single microphone. The older records are all monaural.

And high fidelity only means the true reproduction of the original sound through amplifiers and fine speaker systems. In the case of stereo high fidelity, you must have a separate amplifier and speaker system for each channel in the record groove.

Like any fine electronic instruments, these need maintenance from time to time. Phone CLearbrook 5-0700 for experienced services.

Mrs. Frank A. Kolerus, president of the Wheeling Township Regular Republican Club, announced Monday the club will not hold its regularly scheduled meeting tonight, Thursday.

She explained that Holy Week, decorating at the Arlington Heights VFW Hall, and "election fatigue" interfered with the monthly meeting. The club will meet in May and throughout the summer, she said.

Club meetings are held the third Thursday of each month at the VFW Hall, Yale Avenue and Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights. (ACM

Vacations Empty Homes as Celebrations Fill Others

The beginning of spring vacation and the coming of Palm Sunday had many a local family in a happy dither over the past weekend. Celebrations for scores of Sunday's young confirmands filled some homes to capacity and vacation trips emptied almost as many more.

Kathy Wegner, daughter of the Robert Wegners, 726 N. Belmont, was among the 14 young people confirmed Sunday in St. John United Church of Christ. A family dinner marked the occasion and brought Kathy the congratulations of 23 local, Chicago, Antioch and Lombard relatives. Among them were her grandparents, the Adolph Wegners of Chicago and the John Eugsters, also of 726 N. Belmont.

Wisconsin family members, 10 of them overnight guests, filled the Charles Mallon home, 1041 S. Dunton, and honored the Mallons' daughter, Susie, upon her confirmation Sunday in Faith Lutheran Church. A dinner party for 35 included Susie's grandparents, the William Ericksons, and her sponsors, Kenneth Beilfuss with his family and Mrs. Donald Waldschmidt and her family, all of Sheboygan, and her uncle, Howard Erickson, and his family of Elcho. Others came from Milwaukee for the day to add their congratulations and join the family-all-together occasion.sion.

DAVID Gish's confirmation in Faith church also brought out-of-town grandparents here for not only the Palm Sunday ceremony but also for the special service a week ago Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. William Nordin of South Bend visited with the Gishes, 642 S. Chestnut, for the full week and added their blessings to those of David's sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hall of Chicago at Sunday's celebration.

The presence of Eileen Brown's great - grandmother, Mrs. Dora Meyer of Arlington Heights, made Eileen's confirmation supper Sunday evening a 4-generation get - together in the Brown home, 107 S. Dwyer. Eileen's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Sander of Arlington Heights, were also witnesses to her confirmation in Faith Church and added their blessings at the supper party.

Another 4-generation celebration Palm Sunday marked the confirmation in St. Peter Lutheran Church of Linda Piepenbrink, daughter of the Edwin Piepenbrinks, 1112 N. Walnut. Linda's great - grandmother Hagenow of Arlington Heights was among 35 suburban family members honoring the young lady at a dinner party in the Piepenbrink home. Other guests included Linda's grandparents, the William Piepenbrinks of Mount Prospect and Mrs. William Lutz of Des Plaines, and her sponsors, the Henry Lutzes of Des Plaines and Mrs. Gill Grandt of Mount Prospect.

CHRISTINE Clausing, also among Palm Sunday's 51 confirmands in Faith Lutheran Church, was honored at a family dinner for 23 in the Clausing home, 510 S. Highland. Sharing the joy of the occasion were Christine's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Harz of Palatine, and her sponsors, Mrs. Otto Linde, Mrs. Erwin Clausing, Mrs. Elmer Reuter and Miss Cecilia Harz.

A Palm Sunday buffet supper for 85 suburban and Chicago family members and friends commemorated the confirmation in St. Peter Lutheran Church of Sandee Schaerf, daughter of the Henry Schaerfs, 11 S. Forrest. Adding their congratulations were Sandee's grandparents, Mrs. Ida Schaerf of Palatine, the Arthur Olsens of Lombard, and Mrs. Rose Schaerf who sent her greetings from St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mrs. Henry Laabs of Milwaukee ended a week's visit here after the family celebration honoring her grandson, Tom Riesing, 343 S. Vail. Tom was among the young people confirming their Faith Sunday in Faith Lutheran Church.

GLORIA Johnson, daughter of the Gust Johnsons, 1025 E. Palatine, was among the confirmands Sunday in St. Peter Lutheran Church whose confirmation supper was served in the church dining room following the special afternoon service for the young people.

Among 35 family members honoring Gloria at the dinner and later at an evening party in the Johnson home were her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Maierhoefer of Palatine. The recent illness of Gloria's great - grandmother, Mrs. Emily Maierhoefer of Wheeling, prevented her from attending.

A dinner for 47 suburban and Chicago relatives of Donna Schmidt was served in St. Peter Lutheran Church dining hall following her confirmation Sunday afternoon. The celebration to honor the young lady was continued at an evening party in the Schmidt home, 1209 N. Dunton.

Adding their blessings to the day were Donna's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Havlik of Mount Prospect, who garnered congratulations themselves. They observed their 47th wedding anniversary Tuesday and were feted at Sunday's celebration.

THE EMBERT Scharringhausens, 805 N. Vail, hosted at a dinner party for 24 Sunday evening to honor their daughter, Valerie, upon her confirmation in St. Peter Lutheran Church. Among those extending congratulations were Valerie's grandparents, the George Scharringhausens of Elk Grove Village.

The confirmation Sunday of Gayle Grom, daughter of the Charles Groms, 827 N. Pine, brought her aunt and family, the William Laidigs here from Port Edwards, Wis. to be part of the day's celebration. With Gayle's grandparents, the William Kastnings of Arlington Heights and Mrs. A. Grom of Barrington, they attended the afternoon service in St. Peter Lutheran Church, then helped mark the occasion at a family dinner party in the Grom home.

Twenty local and Chicago family members honored Linda Lechelt Sunday evening at a dinner party in the Lechelt home, 227 S. Kennicott, following her confirmation in St. Peter Lutheran Church.

AN OPEN house for local friends and neighbors brought congratulations to Linda Poulos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poulos, 1225 N. Dunton, following her confirmation Sunday in St. Peter Lutheran Church.

Monday afternoon Linda's sister, Margo, celebrated her ninth birthday at a party with four neighborhood friends in her home. Neighborhood moms added their congratulations at a "coffee and" session after the youngsters' fun-and-food session was organized.

Steve Gatewood was 5 years old Wednesday and celebrated the Saturday before at a party in his home, 1303 N. Walnut, with 13 neighborhood friends. The mothers of his guests also enjoyed the occasion, "coffeeing" with Mrs. Gatewood after the carousel birthday cake, ice cream and games had the young set satisfied.

An after-school party Thursday afternoon marked Raymond Perkins' seventh birthday as he celebrated with seven neighborhood and school buddies in his home, 814 N. Walnut. Lots of refreshments designed to fill the school boy-void provided energy enough to see them through the game hour.

MRS. ROBERT Sullivan is home again at 823 N. Walnut after a 2½-month stay in Santa Monica, Calif. with her daughter and family, the Douglas Johnsons. March 20, on grandson Jeff's sixth birthday, Mrs. Sullivan became a grandmother again and Jeff got a sister, Jill, for one of his birthday presents. Since he already has a 3-year-old sister, Peggy, Jeff might have been happier with something different, like a pony, but the birthday celebration with Grandma Sullivan was nonetheless pretty exciting.

There was a happy hubbub yesterday at the Edward Hirons household, 1020 N. Chestnut, as Jerry arrived from Loras College in Dubuque and Peggy came home from Marycrest College in Davenport, Jerry, a sophomore, and Peggy, a junior, will be home until Easter Monday.

Miss Rehfeldt, daughter of the Charles Rehfeldts, will leave soon for Hollywood, Calif. where she begins work May 1 in the west coast office of the Needham, Louis and Brorby advertising agency.

The Rehfeldts' son, Chuck, is home for his spring vaction from Norwich Military Academy and will return to Vermont after Easter.

A dual-purpose party in the Darrel Meacham home, 501 W. Wing, Sunday honored the Meachams' son, Darrel Jr., upon his confirmation and also marked the occasion of baby Denise's christening in St. John United Church of Christ. A dinner for 16 immediate family members followed the confirmation and also marked the occasion of baby Denise's christening in St. John United Church of Christ. A dinner for 16 immediate family members folowed the confirmation and christening ceremonies, and an evening party for 40 suburban and Chicago friends and relatives climaxed the Meachams' big day.

THE CONFIRMATION Sunday of Bonnie Birch in St. John United Church of Christ brought uncles, aunts and cousins here from Indiana to be part of the family celebration in the Birch home, 1027 N. Stratford. Hoosier guests for the day were the Emil Bee and Harry Baurle families.

Twins among Faith Lutheran Church confirmands Sunday were Georgine and Georgette Lalish who shared a family party in their home, 830 N. Dryden. Twenty Chicago and suburban relatives who extended 2-way congratulations included the twins' grandparents, the senior George Lalishes and Mr. and Mrs. George Prins, all of Chicago.

Another of the confirmands in St. John United Church of Christ was Ted Thurman Jr., 1231 N. Mitchell, whose party to mark the occasion Sunday included Bellwood family members, Mr. and Mrs. John Fippinger.

THE COMING weekend visit of an "old" friend from Denver will bring final confirmation congratulations to Sara Livingston, daughter of the Charles Livingstons, 1403 N. Vail, who confirmed her faith Sunday in St. Peter Lutheran Church. Sara celebrated the occasion at a dinner-out party with the family and local friends, and now looks forward to the weekend reunion with Carol Markham, a Denver friend "from 'way back" who is spring vacationing with relatives in the Chicago area.

A buffet supper party for 25 local and Chicago relatives marked the occasion Sunday evening of the confirmation in Faith Lutheran Church of Arthur Skach, son of the William Skachs, 932 N. Walnut. Steve Hausknecht was 5 years old Saturday and celebrated with eight neighborhood buddies at an afternoon party in his home, 1306 N. Walnut. There were lots of games and just as many "oohs" and "aahs" over cake. When the entertainment as well as the cake was sailing along smoothly, the boys' mothers joined the hostess for a relaxing coffee session.

MR. AND MRS. Albert Hawkes came home to 411 N. Carlyle a week ago Sunday after a gala week in Nassau, then were saddened mid-week by news of the sudden death of a longtime friend. Mrs. Hawkes went to Kenston, N. C. Thursday to attend the funeral and returned Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nyquist, 714 S. Mitchell, left a comparatively springlike Arlington Heights last Thursday for a weekend in Lexington, Ky. only to find snow in the south. They attended the Keeneland race meet as they have at this season for several years and despite the unprecedented snowfall, enjoyed the races as always.

Patty Coobs, 401 S. Carlyle, celebrated her eighth birthday Saturday with an afternoon party that was just right for the Easter season. After festive birthday refreshments her 12 guests made Easter baskets and enjoyed an egg hunt, then used up left-over time with miscellaneous games and giggles.

MR. AND MRS. George Bolas returned to 631 S. Beverly Sunday after a 2½-week vacation in Boynton Beach, Fla. with Mrs. Bolas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Govanus. The Bolas boys, Bruce and Bob, joined the family in Boynton Beach for a week's spring vacation and are since back at the books in their college classes. Bruce is in Ann Arbor at the University of Michigan and Bob attends DePauw University in Greencastle, Ind.

The pitter-patter of little feet at the Larry Kussows will be the united effort of grandsons, Scott and Mitch, arriving today with Mr. Kussow from their home in West Islip, N. Y. Mr. Kussow left for New York City about a week ago to attend a convention, "side-tripping" to the West Islip home of his daughter and family, the Ronald Petersons, to pick up the boys. They'll be with Grandpa and Grandma at 815 S. Burton for two months.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilson, 304 S. Wilshire, came home over the weekend after a 2-week vacation trip to Phoenix, Las Vegas and Albuquerque. They relaxed at a guest ranch in Phoenix, were on the go in Las Vegas and visited in Albuquerque with their daughter and family, Lt. and Mrs. Ronald Prater and children.

YVETTE RODIG, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rodig, was among the confirmands Palm Sunday in Faith Lutheran Church and she received family congratulations later at a dinner party in her home, 737 S. Beverly. Helping to mark the occasion was Yvette's grandmother, Mrs. Julia Leibeindguth of Chicago.

The Byron Sayres, 810 S. Bristol, returned Thursday from a week in New York that combined business with the pleasure of a visit with their son Jim.

Joanne Mayer, daughter of the Edward Mayers, 413 S. State, shared the honors of a Palm Sunday confirmation party with her cousin and fellow-confirmand in Faith Lutheran Church, Harry Craig. Family members extended double congratulations at an evening get-together in the Craig home, 35 S. Salem.

TED McKOWN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. McKown Jr., 206 S. Gibbons, celebrated his seventh birthday April 10 at a family party that included his grandmother, Mrs. Edith G. McKown, of Pittsburgh. She was also here for a "little peoples" celebration April 7 when Ted entertained 17 local friends at a luncheon party. After lunch the children enjoyed the hocus - pocus of a magician, then wished for some magic of their own to help them on an Easter egg hunt.

Four local couples enjoyed a respite from the busy pre-Easter flurry and its unspringlike weather with four days in the warmth and hospitality of New Orleans. Returning Monday morning were Lincoln Lane neighbors Dr. and Mrs. H. Paul Carstens, the Fred Robinsons and Fulton Smiths, and Mr. and Mrs. John T. Watson, 713 S. Mitchell. (A

Railroad Reports A Quarterly Loss

(UPI)—The Chicago and North Western Railway Tuesday reported a $4,193,483 net loss in operations for the first three months of 1962 against a $4,867,543 deficit for the same period of last year.

The railroad said it normally operates at a loss in the early months of the year because of the seasonal nature of its traffic.

Total revenues for the quarter ended March 31 were $51,472,759, up from $48,471,263 a year ago.

An unusually severe winter in all states served by the road caused a sharp bump in operating expenses, the C & NW said. Total expenses amounted to $53,748,066 against $51,236,963 in 1961. (B-8

Suburb Teen Set For Military Tour

Mary May of Palatine and Marilou Wilson of Arlington Heights are among 14 teenagers who have been selected to tour American military bases in the far north during June, entertaining servicemen under the auspices of the Federal government and the Talented Teen Foundation.

The troup will leave Chicago June 3 from O'Hare International Airport. The tour includes military installations in Iceland, Greenland, Labrador and Newfoundland.

The troup constitutes a complete variety show, with a band, singers, dancers, a magician and a comedienne.

MISS MAY of 305 E. Chicago Ave., Palatine, a high school senior, is one of the singers, and Miss Wilson, of 115 N. Dwyer St., Arlington Heights, a junior, is the comedienne.

"We have been trying to work out an overseas tour like this for a long time," said George F. Koehnke of Itasca, president of the Foundation and manager of the troupe.

The show is in rehearsal and the rafters of the Itasca village hall echoed the sound of drums, trumpet, guitar, accordian and other instruments last Sunday afternoon as the young performers whipped the presentation into shape.

THE 14 teenagers were selected for the tour by the government. Each made tapes of his act and the tapes were judged by government specialists. Talent and personality were key factors in the judging, but a desire to present a varied show entered into the selection also.

The performers will travel by plane, jeep and boat to isolated bases in the arctic circle to entertain Air Force and Navy personnel of the Northeast Command.

The troupe is expected to be gone until June 30, returning to Chicago via New York City. It is made up of winners from the various Talented Teen clubs in this area.

MISS MAY and Miss Wilson are members of the Arlington area club, as is another member of the troupe, Miss Emily Kastnings, of rural Prairie View, a junior at Ela-Vernon High School, who plays the saxophone.

The band is made up of Robert Beilfuss of Glen Ellyn, accordion; Miss Jacki Lynn of Itasca, a fulltime employe of radio station WRMN, Elgin, who plays bass and guitar; John Caluwaert of Elmhurst, a senior at St. Francis High School in Wheaton, lead guitar; and Bill Throckmorton, a junior at Glenbard West who plays drums.

Specialty musical acts are Tim Hyland of Carpentersville, who attends St. Edwards High School in Elgin, a trumpet player; Miss Kastnings with her saxophone; and Sue Gusler of Aurora, a pianist.

SINGERS ARE Miss May and Carol Bennett of Aurora.

Dancers are Donna Jensen of Elgin, a freshman at Knox College; Carol Perkins of Elgin; and Mary Alice Cremeens of Elgin.

The other novelty act besides Miss Wilson is Gail Fyhrie of Wheaton, who does magic and a top dance routine.

Misses May, Fyhrie and Gusler, all high school seniors, will take examinations early since they will have left on the tour shortly before the scheduled graduation exercises.

Young people with talent who would like to become a part of the many activities of the Talented Teen clubs should contact the club in their club, or the Foundation, Box 142, Itasca.

BELTING OUT tunes like "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun," Miss Mary May of Palatine is certain to make a hit with Uncle Sam's servicemen during a tour of military installations she will make in June under the auspices of the Federal Government and the Talented Teens Foundation. Mary and 13 other Talented Teen Club members will tour the Northeast Command bases. (B8 ICELAND, GREENLAND, Newfoundland, Labrador — these three girls from the Arlington area Talented Teen Club will see them all as members of a troupe which will tour military installations presenting a variety show in June. The three are (from left) Marilou Wilson of Arlington Heights, a comedienne; Emily Kastnings of Prairie View, a saxophonist; and Mary May of Palatine, a singer. (B8

Teens Perform Religious Skit On Local Radio

A group of Talented Teens from the Arlington Heights, Palatine, Prospect Heights and Rolling Meadows area are presenting a short skit entitled "The Symbol of a Cross" on this Good Friday from 9 to 9:30 p.m. over the local radio station WNWC at 92.7 FM.

The program will be produced and presented by the Talented Teens under the direction of Mrs. Mary May of Palatine.

Included in the presentation are soloists featuring Cheryl Philbin, of Rolling Meadows, singing "God So Loved the World"; Sheryl Crittenden, Arlington Heights, "The Lord's Prayer" and "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord" to be sung by Miss Mary May of Palatine. (B-9

Snowman Created By Sun: Climber

MILWAUKEE, (UPI) — Sir Edmund Hillary, conquerer of Mount Everest, Saturday gave an explanation for the Abominable Snowman of the Himalayas and then discounted stories that he could not climb again.

Hillary, who suffered a mild stroke on a Himalayan expedition last year, said he would make the decision to climb again at "The proper time."

"I'm feeling quite fit," he said.

Hillary said his last expedition gave him the answer to the puzzle of the Yeti, the legendary snowman.

HE SAID that the huge tracks, said to have been made by the shaggy creature, actually were the prints of small animals distorted by the sun to grotesque shapes.

He said all other evidence was studied and discounted.

Hillary was here to describe his adventures at a noon luncheon. He is on a speaking tour sponsored by world book encyclopedia, which financed his expeditions. (A-14

Book on Retirement Is Now Available

"Retirement years can be good years." That's the theme of a new booklet which goes on to spell out how retirement may be "a new life of your own."

The booklet, "Now That You Are Retiring," is available at your social security district office. Also available are booklets explaining the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program.

Northwest district social security manager Julius Berman said this week that he felt this booklet would be of help to people now retired, as well as people who are beginning to make their plans for retirement.

"IT ANSWERS a lot of the questions we have heard time and again from people applying for benefits," he said.

The new booklet explores such questions as: "What will I do with my time?" "Will my income really be enough?" "Will my health last — and what if I get sick?" "Where can I go for help when I run into problems?"

A copy of the booklet may be obtained by writing or visiting the social security office at 4255 Milwaukee, Chicago 41, or by calling Kildare 5-8844. DuPage County readers are served by the district office located at 1124 Westgate Avenue, Oak Park. (A14

$23 Million Still Available to Vets

Twenty-three million dollars is still available to pay dividends to some 210,000 Korea veterans who hold "RS" term insurance policies, according to the Veterans Administration Department of Insurance.

This special dividend, the VA pointed out, is available only to those veterans who still hold policies with the prefix "RS" in front of their policy number. No other Government life insurance policyholders are eligible.

The "RS" policyholder cannot be paid this dividend unless he takes one of the following two actions:

1. EXCHANGE his "RS" term policy for a term policy that (a) will generally cost him only one-third of what he is now paying; and (b) the new policy cannot be renewed as term insurance after age 50—but it can be converted to a low cost permanent plan insurance policy at any time before the insured reaches age 50.

2. Convert his policy to a low cost permanent plan insurance policy now.

If the "RS" policyholder takes either of the above actions before September 14, 1963, he will receive his special dividend. These dividends average about $100, depending upon the age of the policyholder and the length of time he has held his policy.

ALL "RS" policyholders have received detailed information about their own policies from the VA.

It is to their advantage, the VA emphasizes, to return the card sent to them or to contact their nearest VA office for assistance in obtaining their special dividend. They must act before September 14, 1963, or the dividend cannot be paid. (A-14

Charge State Bank Growth Is Lagging

(UPI)—Illinois ranked 48th among all states in the percentage of growth in bank deposits in the last 10 years, the Illinois Council for Branch Banking has announced.

Of the 212 cities in the nation with populations of more than 100,000 Chicago ranked 203rd, the group said.

"This is a tragic and completely needless situation," said James C. Downs Jr., chairman of the council. "Chicago and all Illinois banks could quickly reverse this trend if we had limited branch banking here."

DOWNS SAID a survey by The American Banker, a trade publication, indicated that average deposit growth of the nation's 10 largest cities was 56.6 per cent. Chicago deposits rose 23.4 per cent.

Downs siad there was "an obvious connection" between the lagging bank deposits and a lack of economic growth in the state as evidenced by rising unemployment and public aid costs. (A-14

Only Two Traffic Mishaps Reported

Only two accidents on northwest suburban highways marked last week's traffic incidents.

One of these occurred on U.S. 45, three miles south of Illinois 68 on April 9 at 6 p.m.

Edward R. Younghaus, 34, of 415 W. Olive, Prospect Heights, made a left turn in front of a second vehicle, driven by Albert H. Ahrens, 22, of Des Plaines.

THE FIRST vehicle struck the second. Both drivers were injured and taken to Lutheran General Hospital. So, too was a passenger in the second vehicle, Albert H. Ahrens Sr., 63.

Damage to the first car was $800; to the second, $600.

Younghaus was charged with making an improper left turn and with driving with a suspended license.

In the second accident, the same day, Casper H. Kramer, 60, of 324 E. Rand, Des Plaines, was attempting to make a left turn to his residence.

HIS CAR was struck by another vehicle driven by June Heilig, 35, of 616 N. Pine, Mount Prospect.

The second driver was injured and taken to Holy Family Hospital. Damage to her car was $300; to the other, $200. She was charged with driving too closely.

The accident occurred on U.S. 72, a half mile west of Wolf Road. (B8

Press Role Fuzzy In Statistics Ban

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI- —The Illinois Public Health Department said Saturday a new law restricting access to birth and marriage statistics does not specifically outline the role of the press or radio and television.

Acting Chief Statistician E. L. Wittenborn said the prohibitions were not aimed at those who work "In the public interest." He said news media fell in that category.

Wittenborn said he has had several inquiries from newspapers concerning the new law but no complaints of denial of the news. Department Director Franklin Yoder said he felt there was no reason for fear on the part of newspapers.

BOTH Wittenborn and Yoder said the law was aimed at persons who use such information for "private gain," such as merchandisers who find customers in lists of new mothers.

Atty. Gen. William G. Clark said in an official opinion last week that Illinois courts "Have as yet had no occasion" to interpret the law. He also said no mention was made of the news media's role. (A-14

Ridge Park–Sherwood

FROM SHERWOOD

Rome was Nicholas Shuman's destination when he took off from O'Hare April 7. He flew on Alitalia Airlines on their inaugural flight from Chicago to Rome. During his week of sightseeing there, he attended the Rome Opera and visited the Sistine Chapel. Now he is home with his family at 1001 W. Clarendon Road.

TWO SHERWOOD babies were baptized Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church. Patrick James Rohan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Rohan, 1114 Patton, and Gary Richard Oldenburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Oldenburg, 1315 Watling Road, were baptized by Dr. Paul L. Stumpf. Gary's sisters, Karen and Diane, were in church to watch him baptized, and afterwards, the Oldenburgs entertained at a family dinner.

Mrs. Ted LaPin has returned home to 1102 Burgoyne after several days in Washington, D. C., visiting Mrs. B. F. Castle. She reports that the cherry blossoms were almost in bloom, and regrets she couldn't have stayed to see them. The LaPin family are expecting weekend guests, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cary and their children, of Lcuisville, to spend Easter.

FROM RIDGE PARK

Friends and neighbors are welcoming Edwin A. Law home to 824 N. Salemfrom his stay in Lutheran General Hospital.

Sunday was a day for confirmations and celebrations for several Ridge Park families. Kathy Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lee, 1012 N. Ridge, was confirmed by Pastor Behrens at Faith Lutheran Church. Mrs. Lee's nephew, Roy Prince of Wheeling, was also confirmed Sunday at Our Redeemer's Church there, and the relatives divided their time between the two services. Afterward, the entire family and the godparents met for dinner at the Wheeling Church, followed by a buffet supper which the Lees attended at the home of her sister, Mrs. Roy Prince.

JEFFREY Platt, 806 N. Kennicott, was also confirmed by Pastor Behrens. His sponsors were Donald Platt, Mount Prospect, and Mrs. Walter Landsberg, Palatine. They and their families, as well as grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Kieselbach, from Chicago, were on hand. Jeffrey's parents, the Richard Platts, entertained all the relatives for family dinner later.

A Popeye cartoon on the family's movie projector was the highlight of the birthday party for James Kedrow Saturday. Jimmy is six now, and on hand to help him celebrate were his brother Ricky, and guests Melanie, Colleen and Roberta Jones, Debbie Ostrowski, Jimmy Polites, Herbert Christiansen and Cary Howes. Jimmy's parents are the Wilbert M. Kedrows of 908 N. Kaspar. Joining them for dinner and the evening was Jimmy's grandmother, Mrs. Hans Rieken, of Chicago.

Valerie Juhl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Juhl, is home at 831 N. Salem for Spring vacation from Northern Illinois University, DeKalb.

SUNDAY WAS confirmation day also for Dick Sorensen, who was confirmed by Pastor Bartz at St. Peter Lutheran Church. Relatives from Chicago joined Dick's godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denne, of Mount Prospect, and grandparents Mr. George Sorensen, Mount Prospect, and Mrs. S. A. Eitzenhoefer, Chicago, for the service. Afterwards, Dick's parents, Mr. and Mr. Richard G. Sorensen, entertained at 943 N. Kaspar. Among their guests were Pastor Robert Bartz and family, the former vicar, Douglas Lorig and the new vicar, Donald Meyers, and family.

Five days on a convention cruise to Bermuda made Mr. and Mrs. Bud Wallace the envy of many Ridge Parkers. First, the Wallaces visited Oxford, Ohio, where they left son Jack with his uncle. Then they flew to New York, and left from there for Bermuda. Mr. Wallace took the trip as company representative for the National Acoustical Contractors' Association. The Wallaces have returned with memories of riding motorbikes and enjoying their "too short" stay in Bermuda.

Noreen Ronayne was 4 and celebrated with a party Sunday. On hand were her brothers Jimmy and Danny, but since Jimmy is recovering from measles, Noreen's guest list was limited to those of her friends who had previously had the disease. Daniel Klein and Caroline Anderson helped her celebrate. Noreen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Ronayne, 1011 N. Kennicott, celebrated their wedding anniversary over the weekend.

"WE SHOULD never have left Ridge Park," say three busy mothers! Last Wednesday, Mrs. J. H. Niell and Mrs. Gene Eaton took their children to visit Mrs. Bill Vickery, who recently moved from Ridge Park to Des Plaines. First young Tommy Eatbn got lost, and was finally located several blocks away. Then, Ricky Vickery turned up covered with blood, and everyone wound up in the emergency room at Holy Family Hospital.

A happier trip was enjoyed by the Harry Phillipp family, who left their home at 644 N. Salem for a weekend at Marshfield, Wis. Mrs. Phillip's brothers, Norman and Kenny Nelson, went along, too. The occasion was the marriage of Mrs. Phillip's sister, Corrine. Marjorie had an exciting time, for she helped the bride dress and helped serve the buffet supper to the immediate families.

JOAN OERTEL, 708 N. Salem, was hostess Saturday at a small party for former Chicago friends.

Family dinner for 40 was served at the Elmer Schuler home, 922 N. Kennicott, on Sunday. The occasion was the confirmation of their son, Larry, at St. Peter Lutheran Church by Pastor Bartz. Larry's sponsors, Mrs. Bernice Schuler, Wheeling, and Mrs. Violet Patenbrook of Palatine and their families were on hand, as well as his uncle, Paul Rateike of Mount Prospect, and other relatives. Eastwood Events

Among the confirmands at St. Peter Lutheran Church last Sunday was Thomas Nawrot, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Nawrot of 216 N. Hickory Ave. Tom's sponsors were his three aunts, Lorraine Tosch, Florence Behrens and Hilda Rateike, and his grandfather Curt Stoeckel. After the church services his sponsors and other relatives gathered at the Nawrot home for a party in Tom's honor.

Sincerest wishes for a very speedy recovery are sent to Lee Waston of E. Euclid Ave., who underwent major surgery in Northwest Community Hospital on Monday.

Continuing his "winning ways," the Kenneth Behms' German Shepherd, Xantos Von Hohe-Lind, took first place for 9-12 month-old puppies Sunday at the Lake Shore Kennel Club in Hammond, Ind.

CAKE AND ice cream, plus pony rides, made Jerry Hanner's fifth birthday celebration on Saturday an exciting adventure. Arcadia Farms on Arlington Heights Road was the party site, and after Jerry's playmates, Dick Behm, Ricky Kozakiewicz, David Schultz and Randy Brinckman, rode their ponies in the ring, they were treated to party-fare in the Farm's picnic area.

To make his fifth birthday long-remembered, Jerry was honored at a second celebration at home Sunday. Grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hanner and Mrs. Hattie Andree, aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilson and cousin Stuart, and godparents Mr. and Mrs. Bud Lamm, gathered at the Emil Hanner residence, 215 N. Lincoln Lane, for Sunday supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Luker have been seeing spots for the last several weeks! Carol was the culprit who started the measles round-robin, quickly followed by Sharon, Donnie and Kenny.

The children are now all sufficiently recovered to permit their parents to entertain at Eastwood Bridge last Saturday evening. The Lukers were hosts to Alice and Norman Esthus, Lois and Dick Evans and Lucile and Bob Tatge.

A serious case of Roseola sent 10½-month Greg Allan Brinckman to the hospital last week. A very high fever kept him there from Wednesday until Saturday, but Greg is now back to normal and back home with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brinckman, 210 N. Dryden.

Tonight, Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Vlach will be among the dinner guests at the 5th Army Headquarters welcoming party for General Evans. The General has recently arrived from Hawaii to assume duties in Chicago.

AFTER A LONG illness, Mr. Stueber's father, William L. Stueber, died April 7 in Horicon, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Stueber and Kurt and Karen went to Wisconsin and stayed on until after the funeral on the 10th. Sincerest sympathy is extended to the family.

Virginia Vlach, CLearbrook 3-8065, and June McBride, CLearbrook 5-7278, are requesting residents to make their reservations for the Bridge Tournament Awards dinner by May 5. Invitations to attend are extended to all members of the community even though they were not members of the tournament. The dinner will be held at the newly remodeled Old Orchard Country Club on May 19. (A

VIRGINIA TERRACE

Politics may make strange bedfellows, but not tonsillectomies. Last Thursday Linda Rogers, 1313 N. Chicago, and Marilyn Donath, 1421 N. Chicago, were roommates at Northwest Community Hospital as they recuperated from the rigors of tonsil-removal.

Another "cut-up" was April Kearney, 1413 N. Wilke, who underwent a tonsillectomy in Children's Memorial in Chicago recently.

The last of this week's tonsil-stars was Kathy Zaucha, 1409 N. Race, who went to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines on April 13 for her "coming out" party.

A LUNCHONE party was held last Saturday noon in honor of Jimmy, son of Norma and James Elf, 1223 N. Race, who was celebrating his fifth birthday. Guests included Sharon, Sandy and Susan Steed, Gary Crowe, Robby MacMillian, Scott Narup, Tommy Sikorski, Mike Herbert, Joey and Bobby Ninneman and Karen Pedersen. Julie and Mike Trees were unable to attend.

Two Terrace couples, Cathy and Bill Gunnison, 1407 Clarendon and Mary and Ray Funk, 1401 Clarendon, co-celebrated their wedding anniversaries last Saturday night. Starting with dinner at the Cafe Bohemia in Chicago, continuing on to the Schubert for a performance of the "Sound of Music" and then on to the Hearthstone Restaurant in Palatine, before adjourning to the Gunnisons' for coffee.

Cheri, daughter of George and Carol Clarkson, 1259 N. Chicago, celebrated her ninth birthday last Saturday with a movie-party. Guests who enjoyed "Journey to the Bottom of the Sea," in addition to the ice cream and cake, were Marsha Bensinger, Cindy Ross, Virginia Catlin, Mark Elenz, Ellen Olson and Cheri's sister, Melanie.

THE MONTHLY bridge group met last Thursday night at Mation Nielsen's, 1252 N. Illinois. High scorer for the evening was Bertha Wilson, while second-place honors went to Kay Moustakis. Other playing members were Eileen Sanberg, Judy Zare, Winona Duenki, Hazel Howell and Darlene Lichtblau.

A family party was held Monday night in honor of Suzanne, daughter of Donald and Jane Von Ebers, 1410 N. Illinois. Helping to extinguish the three birthday candles were her brothers, Steve, Dan and Timothy, and her grandmother, Mrs. Ellen Hansen of Winnetka.

A two-part birthday celebration was held for Debby, duagiter of Fred and Mary Maybee, 1251 N. Wilke. The first stage was launched Sunday at a family dinner attended by her sister, Kathleen, and brothers, Michael and Timothy, and paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Johnson of Waukegan. Later in the evening they were joined for birthday cake and ice cream by her uncle, aunt and cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Maybee, with Jeff and David, of Wheeling. The last half included a cake, bearing 10 candles, and shaped like a "Happy Birthday Twist" record, which was served at a Monday night slumber party. Guests included Marilyn Hacker, Linda Pilip, Pamela Zoellick and Cheryl Wheat.

FORMER Terrace residents, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Smith, visited at the home of Laurence and Ann Brown, 1408 N. Yale, last Monday. The Smiths had been visiting Ann Smith's sister in Wilmette and were en route home to Iowa.

Returning last Sunday night from a two-week vacation in Missouri were Pat Mercer, 1243 N. Chicago, and daughter, Pamela. They stopped in Kansas City to visit Pat's grandmother, Mrs. F. A. Schultz, and other members of the family before going on to Spring Hill Farm, the home of Pat's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hart, where they celebrated Pat's birthday a trifle early.

A Monday afternoon party marked the fifth birthday of Michael Stein, 1414 W. Oakton. Hosted by parents Bob and Marge, party guests included David Yates, Peggy Brown, Raymond Brown, Kathy Weber and Diane Stanley.

Condolences are extended to Don and Dorothy Ballard, 1241 N. Race, who recently returned from Weyauwega, Wis., where they attended funeral services for Don's father, Mr. A. M. Ballard of that city.

LAST SUNDAY afternoon Ray and Lorraine Kunstman, 1309 N. Chicago, and their daughters, Cassandra and Rae, attended the confirmation party and dinner in Chicago for a niece, Christine Kunstman. After the discussion, the conclusions of each group were summarized and the questions and answers were reviewed for the entire group. The result was a better understanding of children's problems and some of the ways to solve them. (A

'Fat' Is Cut

Budget Passed Earliest Ever

The new budget of the Village of Arlington Heights was passed Monday night, and for the first time in the history of the village, as far as anyone remembers, the budget was approved prior to the beginning of the new fiscal year.

The 1962 fiscal year begins May 1.

Although the village tax rate will go up from .4920 to .5756, the budget actually represents a paring of expenses in many instances, since construction of the new sewer system could have been expected to raise the rate .095 instead of the actual .0836.

USING COMPARABLE data, the budget for general government and the augmenting fund shows $1,059,198 for 1962-63, compared with $1,215,978 for 1961-62. This, of course, does not constitute all the funds the village will administer. To this must be added such things as bonds, library and pension funds.

The grand total of funds allocated and planned for in the new budget is $5,871,543, compared with the comparable total for last year of $2,051,113.

The difference is principally accounted for by the bonds for the $3.3 million storm relief sewer to be constructed this year, and the new municipal building.

PRIOR TO approval Monday night, board members took turns commending the village department heads, who they said obviously put in a great deal of time on their individual budgets, and cut out all fat.

The board also praised its finance committee, of which Trustee William Sauer was chairman. Trustees were especially pleased about passing the budget prior to the beginning of the new fiscal year.

ROBERT I. BENSON (left), vice president of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank, was elected president of Group III of the Illinois Bankers Association at its annual spring meeting March 28 at the Elmhurst Country Club. And Lew C. Holtje (right), chairman of the Wheeling bank board, was presented a pin in recognition of 50 years of work in Illinois banking. Holtje began his career with the Drovers National Bank of Chicago in 1912, and came to Wheeling as the first cashier of the Wheeling State Bank in 1921. He was presented the pin by Jacob Myers, president of the association. Group III of the association consists of 140 banks in northern

Area Scouts Net 55 Tons Of Clothing

According to Hugh P. Harshbarger, promotion director of Goodwill Industries, over 55 tons of clothing and miscellaneous items were collected recently by the Northwest Suburban Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Kenneth Jarchow, director of field service for the Northwest Suburban Council, directed the efforts of the 14,000 boys and leaders of the council, making this a reality for the 650 handicapped workers of Chicago's Goodwill industries.

EIGHT trucking firms gave their time and equipment without charge, to enable this drive to be successful. Everson Arraignment Is Set For Monday

Oscar Everson, Wheeling Township Road Commissioner, will be arraigned this coming Monday, April 23, before Chief Justice Joseph P. Drucker in Cook County Criminal Court.

Everson, against whom three indictments have been returned by the grand jury, is charged with illegally receiving $196 in the servicing and renting of equipment, according to Asst. States Attorney Marvin Aspen.

Aspen said that Judge Drucker is expected to assign the case to a judge for trial.

INDICTMENTS resulted from an investigation conducted by Joseph Woods, chief investigator for the Better Government Association, after the state's attorney's office had cleared the road commissioner on two charges of mishandling township funds.

Woods produced checks and a statement from Richard Schmidt, Everson's former foreman who had originally accused Everson.

Schmidt said that in the rental of some equipment and in work he did for the township, Everson demanded a kickback. He listed the dates of Oct. 10, Nov. 14 and Dec. 11 of last year as the occasions he "paid off" Everson with checks which the road commissioner allegedly endorsed and cashed.

SCHMIDT HAD been criticized at a meeting March 14 by Township Auditor Russell Conklin for some of the work vouchers he had submitted to the township before he quit, including use of a water pump he rented and later sold to the township. Everson, it was brought out, had approved Schmidt's work vouchers.

Woods said he talked the Schmidts "into taking a stand and being counted. They agreed. This is unusual in the Chicago area." Once he secured a statement from Schmidt and his wife, Olga, who also testified before the grand jury, and the checks, he turned the information over to the state's attorney.

Woods, a former FBI agent, indicated this week that his investigation was far from complete. "I knew this would open it up," he said of the information which led to the indictments.

Two charges which the state's attorney's office had investigated and declined to take action on included Everson's formation of Economy Rentals Co. for the rental of a tractor owned by his 17-year-old son, Charles. Everson admitted that his son purchased clothes and a car with some of the $955 paid to him for renting the tractor to the township.

The second charge was of Everson granting himself a $10 raise from the township's road and bridge fund. The amount of $1,169 was paid back, however, into the fund, and then Everson was paid out of the town fund for the $20 a day he had been earning during this period. Since reimbursement had been made, the state's attorney's office did not take action.

Everson has also refused to discuss certain bills which have been questioned by Township Auditor John McGivney, who complained to the state's attorney's office along with Schmidt.

McGIVNEY HAS questioned the purchase of a 1961 pickup truck for $2,159 when only one quotation from a dealer is shown in the records, although any purchase over $1,000 requires price quotations from three dealers.

The auditor has also asked for an explanation of a bill for $51.43 for repair work done on a Ford tractor since the township insurance policy does not show coverage for such a vehicle. Another repair bill lists a 1962 panel truck, another vehicle which the township does not own.

McGivney also had asked for more information concerning a part-time employe of a service station who signed equipment purchases on behalf of the township. The service station employe, Jerome Proesel, Aptakisic Road, Wheeling, was later hired by the township to plow snow on a part-time basis.

Everson has said there is a reason for "all these bills," but has refused to comment further on them on advice of his attorney, Harry J. Busch, a prominent trial lawyer. (ACM

Kids Are Readers Of Biographies

By BETTY AINSLIE

Adults are not the only ones who enjoy biographies. According to Miss Edith Lindsey, children's librarian at Arlington Heights library, boys and girls are avid readers of the real life stories of the famous.

"Samuel Finley Breeze Morse! You are wanted in the principal's office." Now wouldn't that sentence make any youngster eagerly read about the inventor?

The book, "Samuel L. B. Morse, Artist-Inventor," by Jean Lee Lathom makes this young, brilliant inventory very real to early readers. It tells the early story of Morse; how he always enjoyed drawing and became a famous painter even before he became an inventor.

"CLARA BARTON" by Mary Catherine Rose concerns the most well known nurse of the Civil War. Because she had been taught to ride horses by her brother, Clara Barton escaped from the enemy many times.

"Lafayette" by Clair Bishop is an interesting biography of the boy general. It tells of early life and how he became a hero at twenty.

"Henry Hudson, Captain of Ice Bound Seas," by Carl Cramer, "A Man Named Washington" by Norman Gertrude, "Abraham Lincoln" by Judson Ingram, "Johnny Appleseed" by Norman Gertrude, "Davy Crockett" by Anne Ford, and "Ride On The Wind" by Alice Dalgliesh (which is taken from the book by Charles Lindberg called "The Spirit of St. Louis") are some of the other beautifully illustrated biographies for young chillren.

OLDER BOYS and girls have long enjoyed the many shelves of biographies written for them. Here are some new ones recently added:

"The Man Who Saved London," by George Montelli, is a true story of Michael Hollard, leader of a network of French underground agents who risked their lives during World War II.

"John Bunyon" by Ola Winslow, tells of the rise and fall of this man who was the author of "Pilgrims Progress."

"The Adventurous Life of Winston Churchill" by Geoffrey Bouca, is a book with many pictures of this great man who said, "Live dangerously, take things as they come. Dread naught, all will be well."

"SING AS We Go" is an autobiography by Gracie Fields—Britian's famous entertainer.

"By the Seat of My Pants" by Dean C. Smith is a story of early mail pilots by the man who was one of the greatest.

"Robert Goddard, Space Pioneer," by Anne Perkins Duvey, is about the man who was our first space scientist and the developer of rocket propulsion. He was the man who almost forty years ago built and fired the first liquid fuel rocket. (A Maried folk didn't fare so well at the Northwest Suburban YMCA's bi-weekly duplicate bridge game Friday night.

First place winners in the 18 and a half table game included no Mr. and Mrs. Combination.

Top awards went to Virginia Tyler and Ann Shumate, Mount Prospect, Norman Jacobs, Elk Grove, and Robert Johnson, Chicago; Ray Cohan, Des Plaines, and Frank McAndrew, Prospect Heights; and Betty Gordon and George Carlson, Park Ridge.

SECOND PLACE honors was accorded Mr. and Mrs. Glen Grunewald, Mount Prospect; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kranz, Mount Prospect; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Smith, Park Ridge; and a tie between W. R. Heard and R. J. Heard, Elk Grove, and Jack Martin and Bill Casteel, Arlington Heights.

Next duplicate game at the "Y" is slated for April 9. This Friday night a game is scheduled for Arlington Heights Pioneer Park fieldhouse, at 8 p.m.

To Negotiate Sale of Property

Several Arlington Heights residents were successful this week in their pleas that the village board reconsider plans for installing a two-block stretch of sidewalk connecting Evanston and Donald Avenues at a point midway in the double-length block between Miner and Kensington.

Speaking for some of the residents in the area, Robert H. Fett, of 23 N. Donald Ave., whose house would abut the sidewalk, said there was no need for the walk since it would go nowhere.

The board agreed, since the walk could not be continued another block to Waterman where there is a park, without condemnation proceedings.

VILLAGE MANAGER L. A. Hanson said the original plan was to put in east - west sidewalks in the middle of the double-length blocks from Gregory north to Miner. He said this has been done with the exception of the walk under consideration.

In the other areas, however, the walks are continued west, and this is not possible with the walk under protest.

Trustee Eugene Schlickman said he thought the original concept of the plan commission was good, but that circumstances prevented its being completed without condemnation of land for a walk from Donald to Waterman.

IN VIEW of this, he felt the walk from Evanston to Donald was unnecessary. This raised another problem, since the village owns a 10-foot wide strip of land which was dedicated for a walkway. If the walk is not put in, the land probably should be vacated since it is of no use to the village.

In answer to a question, Fett said he believed the abutting homeowners would be willing to buy the land at a reasonable cost. Hanson was directed to meet with Fett and the other homeowners and negotiate for sale of the land. (A

SYMBOL OF EASTER SEASON

Suburban Pastor's Wife Collects Crosses

MRS. EDWIN I. STEVENS, Mount Prospect, has a very unusual and interesting collection of crosses from many parts of the world. The crosses are made of a variety of materials and range in size from one inch to 12 inches in height. The large Celtic cross on the right side of the above picture is hand carved out of teak wood. It was made in a leper Colony in Thailand. The larger Latin Cross was made by Rev. Stevens when he and Mrs. Stevens were first married. It is used on the family worship table.

Traces Background Of Sacred Emblem

"So they took Jesus, and He went out, bearing his own cross to a place called the place of the skull, which is called in Hebrew, Golgotha."

—John 19: 17-18

by MELDA LYNN

The cross is the symbol of the Christian religion, a sacred emblem because it was on a cross Jesus died over 1,900 year ago.

The death of Jesus and his Resurrection are marked by Lenten, Holy Week and Easter services in all Christian churches as the bases of the Christian faith.

Many famous cathedrals in the world have cross shaped floor plans. Usually the altar is at the eastern end. The north and south spaces, corresponding to the arms or crossbars, are called the trancepts. The long part of the cross is the nave.

The cross, while it has a basic shape, has many variations. The Latin cross, or the Passion cross, is the type on which Jesus was crucified. It is what one would describe today as following "modern lines."

THE CELTIC cross is the Latin cross with a circle through the center. The circle designates eternity—without beginning or end and signifies the eternal meaning of Christ's death on the cross.

There is St. Peter's cross which appears to be a Latin cross up side down, because St. Peter was crucified in an inverted position. St. Phillip was crucified lying down, thus the Cross of St. Phillip is displayed in a side position.

When one gets into the study of crosses, the subject is endless; the types are almost as varied as snowflakes. The study of one particular cross leads one to delve into many side issues and soon becomes engrossed in an endless and enthusiastic research.

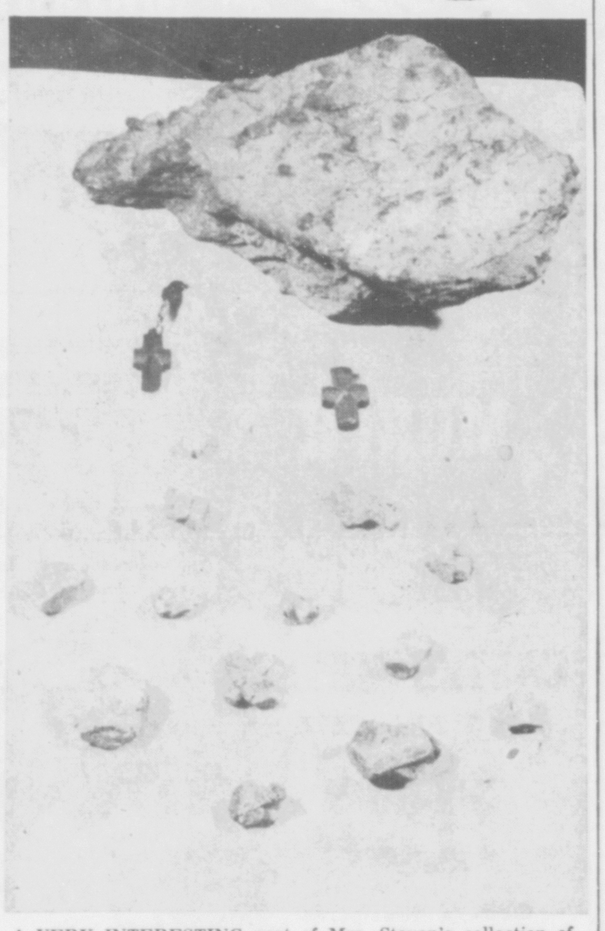
At least that is the feeling of a Mount Prospect woman, Mrs. Edwin I. Stevens, wife of the pastor of South Church. Those who hear her tell about her collection become equally enthusiastic.

MRS. STEVENS has a very large and unusual collection of crosses from many parts of the world, of many types and made from many materials — everything from crude stone to teak wood to precious garnets.

Mrs. Stevens had always had a particular reverence for the cross and the meaning of the cross, not just because she is the wife of a minister, but because, she as a Christian, has found a particular meaning and beauty in the cross.

About 14 years ago she "wished she had a cross to wear." Her wish was overheard by her eighth grade daughter who, from her limited allowance, saved enough money to purchase one for her mother's following birthday.

Since that beginning, which Mrs. Stevens says began by love, her collection has grown to include over 75 crosses.



A VERY INTERESTING part of Mrs. Steven's collection of crosses is a group of nature's own crosses. Large pieces of crystal-like rock, found in Patrick County, Va., surround tiny pieces of harder rock. When the outer stone weathers away, the tiny, harder pieces of stone break off in the form of crosses. Legend has it that a party of elves were having a dance when they learned Christ had been crucified. They wept, and everywhere their tears dropped on the ground, they hardened in the rocky ground in the form of crosses.

FRIENDS remember her when they travel and bring her crosses from places they visit. The Stevens family has purchased others on trips to South America and to many parts of the United States.

Mrs. Stevens has a number of crosses which are reproductions of originals found in famous museums and some truly antiques.

A decorative blue stone cross is a reproduction of an old Egyptian ANKA, actually a pre-Christian cross. This cross was put on the tombs of all kings so they could unlock the door of heaven.

Another cross, made of gold, is decorated with Cyrillic writings and called the cross of St. Cyril who was responsible for part of the Slovic alphabet. The original of this cross is in the Chicago Art Institute.

THE ORIGINAL of one of the small gold crosses in Mrs. Stevens' collection was found on an island in Cyprus and dates from the 6th century. The original is in Freer Gallery, Washington, D. C.

Another 6th Century pectoral cross has the figure of Christ carved in the center and the four Apostles, one on each end The original is in Dumbarton Oaks Research Library and Collection, Harvard University.

A hollow cross of silver lacing appears to be a box and originally held a wooden crucifix. A Mount Prospect friend of Mrs. Stevens' bought it in Istanbul, Turkey. When she purchased it, it was encrusted with mud and appears to be quite antique.

An especially beautiful cross is white enamel on copper. The cross is approximately three inches high. It has a picture of the Guardian Angel and Child in the center.

AT THE ENDS of the cross bars are Christmas roses. At the top and bottom are Easter lilies. The cross was purchased in Holland.

Two especially beautiful crosses are the Lapis Lazuli Latin cross and a coral cross.

The Lapis Lazuli has roses and leaves carved out of the Biblical native stone of Brazil. It was purchased in that country when Rev. and Mrs. Stevens visited there in 1960.

The coral cross is carved on both sides. It was given to Mrs. Stevens by a Mount Prospect friend who had received it from her grandmother, who died in 1920 at the age of 70. The grandmother had had the cross since childhood.

AN EBONY Crucifix cross is set in silver. On one end is a tiny magnifying glass, no larger than the end of a ball point pen. By placing the magnifying glass to the eye, the entire interior of San Miguel Church, Santa Fe, N. M. can be seen. This is the oldest church in the United States.

Another tiny cross which features a magnifying glass in the very apex of the cross magnifies the infinitesimal print of the Lord's Prayer so it can be easily read.

Mrs. Stevens wears some of the crosses as jewelry from time to time. One favorite is made of garnets. Each of the four ends are surrounded by tiny garnets, 40 in all, signifying the 40 days Christ was in the Garden of Gethsemane. Six larger garnets form the body of the cross. Mrs. Stevens purchased it in Rio de Janeiro.

While the crosses in Mrs. Stevens' collection take many forms and designs, she emphasizes the meaning of the cross is universal, one of the reasons her collection means so much to her and those who have the privilege to see it and hear the stories of the collection.

While the collection has a symbolic significance at all times, it is especially interesting at the Easter Season.

Adult Swim Classes Are YMCA Highlight

The nation's waterways this summer will be invaded by millions of pleasure-bent Americans. And one half of them cannot swim well enough to take care of themselves in an emergency. The result—a prediction of nearly 7,000 deaths by drowning by the year's end.

Most of them will be the result of carelessness, according to the YMCA, a pioneer in water safety. As the "Y" launches its yearly campaign to reduce water accidents and drownings, it again stresses its basic law: learn to swim.

THEREFORE, Northwest Suburban YMCA is featuring adult swim classes beginning the week of April 23. Men and women, both members and non-members, are welcome to join these classes which will be held twice weekly on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

This offers an ideal opportunity to prepare oneself to be around the lakes and rivers this summer—swimming or boating—without fear of an accident occurring.

CLASSES are also available for Tiny Tots (3 to 5 years of age), Small Fry (6 and 7 years of age) and youngsters from 8 to 16. Life saving sessions are also featured for both junior and senior groups.

A new activity added to this spring's schedule at the "Y" is horseback riding for boys and girls from 9:30 to 12:30 each Saturday morning. Riders will be taken from the YMCA to stables in Palatine via chartered United Motor Coach bus. Both beginners and intermediate riding will be taught under safe riding conditions with qualified instructors.

OTHER COURSES being offered at this time include ballroom dancing for teens through advanced adults, tap and ballet for girls, painting, ceramics, bridge, golf, aviation ground school, exercises and swim for women and judo.

All inquiries for further details should be directed to the "Y" at CY 6-3376. (B9

Math Scholars Find Studying Pays Off!

Excellence in the field of mathematics has brought a West Coast spring vacation holiday to a trio of Arlington High School sophomores, who accompanied Miss Edith Benjamin, A.H.S. math instructor, to the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics this week in San Francisco.

Experimental math students Bob Conti, Steve Carns, and Dennis Whiteside were to use 12 to 15 problem solutions in demonstrating the use of binary and ternary number systems in solving problems such as electronic computer card sorting.

Arlington math department chairman James Ulrich departed with the group from O'Hare Airport Friday, April 13, for the convention, where he was to participate in a panel discussion on the topic, "Providing for Individual Differences."

LEAVING ULRICH behind, the party left the Golden Gate City on Tuesday, April 17, at the close of the national meeting for Portland, Oregon, where they are staying with Miss Benjamin's brother.

Along with plans for skiing on scenic Mount Hood, the highlight of the 10-day jaunt promises to be an April 21 visit to the Seattle World's Fair grand opening.

Arlington's wandering mathematicians will return to their familiar classrooms next Tuesday, following a flight to Chicago on the preceding day. (ACM-EG

High School's Sewage Plan Is Snagged

by JIM DAVIES

Construction of a sanitary sewer to the new Forest View High School south of Arlington Heights ran into a snag this week when it was found all bids for the project were from $14,000 to $41,000 more than estimated.

The project was estimated at $36,124, but the lowest bid was for $50,887. The highest bid was $77,650. All bids were rejected on recommendation of Village Manager L. A. Hanson.

Hanson recommended the project not be readvertised, and that alternate plans be developed. The board okayed this also.

Hanosn did not elaborate on the alternate plan he is considering for getting sanitary sewer facilities to the new high school, but indicated a new route for the sewer would be found.

He said he would have no trouble finding another route.

THIS VIEW does not appear in accord with the facts as heretofore known, since the route planned was possible only after months of negotiations and the abandonment of one route when it proved impossible to get necessary easements.

Both the school board and the village had settled on a distribution of costs of the project as approved, but in view of the rejection of all bids and elimination of the proposed route, new negotiations may have to be initiated.

The plan had provided for the school board to pay the village $7,621 as its share. The village would pay the remaining cost of $26,092, regaining its money through tap-on fees for the sewer line.

THE SEWER was to run south on Meier Road from the existing sanitary district interceptor at Lincoln, almost to Algonquin. This would have routed it along the eastern edge of the school property, and opened the way to providing sewer facilities for other property in the area.

Bidders on the project were: Scalzitti Co., $50,887.50; Geoge Hardin, $51,468; Cassidy, Inc., $54,038; Scully Hunter, $59,614.39; DeVito & Co., $63,103.70; Rosetti Construction Co., $63,339.20; C-B Construction Co., $65,527.75; Latrobe Engineering, $77,650. (ACM-EG

Jacobsen
Turbocone

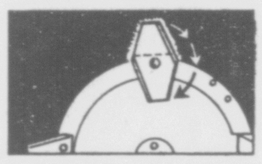
This is the Jacobsen Turbocone. It features a cutting frequency double that of ordinary bar-type mowers—cuts smoothly, cleanly, with a vacuum-like lifting action that leaves your lawn swept clean. Blades have hardened cutting edges for long-life with a minimum of wear—are reversible for economy and replaceable when necessary.

But the Turbocone is only one of the features of this Jacobsen rotary mower. There's a crankshaft warranty good for a year, a 2-bushel capacity grass catcher,* and a husky, powerful engine that just won't give up no matter how rough the going.

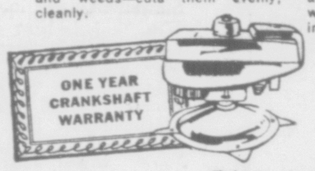
Seven different Turbocone models available. Come in and see them soon.

*Available at extra cost.

Turbocone "Air Lift" action literally draws up limp or trampled grasses and weeds—cuts them evenly, cleanly.



One special bolt and nut is used to attach each Turbo blade to the disc at a central point so that the blade will turn away or retract from the impacted object.



Close coupling between the engine and Turbocone provides added protection against damage.

News Of Prospect Meadows

Most of the Meadows families followed the dictum of Clean Up and Paint Up. There were a few social butterflies however, which included the Ted Messners, Archie Wilsons, Hayengas and the Frank Herefords, all of Bob-o-link Road. They attended a fish fry on Saturday in Wheeling.

Hattie and Ernie Walz, 625 Bunting, and Helena and Ralph Woodruff, 612 Larkdale, returned from a four-week trip South. They stopped in New Orleans, Sarasota and Miami, and also took a boat to Nassau. On the way back home they stopped over at Tryon, N. C. The weather was perfect all the time. On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. West of Tryon visited Ernie and Hattie, figuring turn about was fair play.

Rosemary and Bill Vosburgh attended a performance of "A Sound of Music" and Charlene and George Hampe, 416 Larkdale, entertained the Cipriani's of Chicago for dinner.

INGE VOLLHARDT celebrated her birthday on Saturday. Sunday the Vollhardts entertained the Juskys of Rolling Meadows for dinner and an evening of cards.

Connie and Frank Vogel, 404 Bob-o-link, celebrated their third wedding anniversary by dining at O'Hare Inn.

Diane and Jim O'Connor, 424 Larkdale, had the Carl Adams of Evanston and the Joe Fedians of Arlington Heights as dinner guests on Saturday. On Sunday the O'Connors were godparents for Peter Charles Lawyer of Chicago. The baby was christened in St. Mel's in Chicago and a celebration followed at the Lawyer home.

Diane attended a bridal shower for Jim's cousin, Joanne Allen, given by Virginia Johnson and Babs Moore, friends of the bride, in Chicago.

RITA DUREC threw a surprise birthday party for hubby Chuck. Among the guests in on the devious plot were the John Mikals of Elmhurst, Bob Webers of Bensenville and the Buzzie Busases from Park Ridge. A buffet was served at midnight.

Ethel and Ray Larson and Anne and Vic Incinelli, of Bob-o-link, attended a confirmation party for Ray Roths Jr. The senior Roths are former Meadowites who now reside in Arlington.

Patty Coopmans celebrated her fourth birthday with a party for Peggy Westenberger, Susie Dejaeghere, Carol Wilson of Arlington and Patty's sisters and brother, Cathy, Margy and Jimmy.

Betty and Dick Halabrin, 616 Oriole, dined with Mr. and Mrs. Huebner in River Forest, celebrating Betty's and Mr. Huebner's birthdays.

Friends were sorry to hear about Mrs. Helen Ruther, Bert's mother, who suffered a fall and is in Henrotin Hospital with a fractured vertabrae.

Mrs. Macdonald Is Appointed to Post

Thomas J. Houser, newly elected Republican committeeman in Wheeling Township, this week announced his appointment of Mrs. Alan H. Macdonald, 515 S. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, to the post of Wheeling Township GOP committeewoman.

Mrs. Macdonald's appointment will become effective today, Thursday, and will be for a period of one year, Houser said.

The 32-year-old committeeman disclosed his intention to have four women serve as committeewomen during his four-year term of office, saying, "I believe there are many outstanding Republican women in Wheeling Township, each of whom deserves the opportunity to act as titular head of the Republican women in the township."

HOUSER SAID he has the "greatest confidnece" in Mrs. Macdonald, "not only because of her record of dedicated service to the Republican Party, but also because of the political acumen she displayed during the recent committeeman campaign."

Mrs. Macdonald formerly served on the board of directors of the Wheeling Township Regular Republican Club and is a past treasurer of the organization. She was instrumental in staffing the Republican headquarters during the 1960 General Election. (ACM

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Let's have a few words this week about dreams. Everybody, it is claimed, dreams. Some just don't remember.

Dreams don't happen in a flash as is popularly supposed. Some are of fifteen or more minutes duration and may occur several times nightly. During a dream the body is usually motionless and, strangely, only the eyes move. Much as though we were spectators in a movie, our eyes move to watch the action as it unfolds. Dreams occur at the peak of the sleep cycle — from deep slumber to near consciousness.

Find Hair Spray Can be Harmful

ST. LOUIS, (UPI) — Certain substances in some hair sprays "may, in an undetermined but small percentage of people, endanger the health of users," a group of physicians from the Jewish Hospital of St. Louis reported Tuesday.

The findings were published in the New England Journal of Medicine, an announcement here said.

The research was supported by a grant from the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis. It was begun in 1958 by Dr. Martin Bergmann, director, Division of Thoracic and Cardiac Surgery; Dr. I. Jerome Flance, internist, and Dr. Herman T. Blumental, director, Institute of Experimental Pathology.

The article was co-authored by Dr. Najeeb Klam, pathologist and director of laboratories, St. Francis Hospital, Monroe, La.; Dr. Philip R. Aronson, assistant chief of medicine, and Dr. Primitivo T. Cruz, pathologist and director of laboratories, Chenango Memorial Hospital, Norwich, N. Y., and Dr. Ram A. Joshi, former associate research pathologist at Jewish Hospital here.

THE RESEARCH described 12 cases of illness attributed to hair spray. The doctors indicated that ingredients thought to be responsible are synthetic resins of large molecular size which cannot be broken down by the body and therefore "tend to accumulate in the lungs and lymph nodes."

"The resultant lesions can be diagnosed by x-rays and biopsies," the report said.

The article said, "It was possible to study the microscopic appearance of the disease in the lung."

"Samples of lung tissue obtained either by chest surgery or at autopsy showed characteristic changes due to inhalation of hair spray."

The article suggested that "some persons are much more susceptible than others to ill effects from substances contained in hair sprays.

"Both significant inhalation and high susceptibility appear to be necessary to produce lesions. In addition, many cases may be missed at present because of the relative non-specificity of the clinical picture (the disease may appear to be similar to other inflammations of the lungs and lymph nodes) and because of the failure of physicians to ask questions regarding exposure to hair sprays."

The doctors said among the dozen cases were two male hairdressers. In almost all patients who stopped using hair spray, the lungs became normal on subsequent chest x-rays, it was said.

THE DOCTORS cited that, so far, it has not been possible to reproduce the disease in laboratory animals or to identify chemically the offending resins in human tissues.

The doctors believe, however, that their experience with patients "leaves little doubts that hair sprays are injurious to some persons." (A-14

Budget Chief Beckons Staff for Money Meet

ST. JOSEPH, ILL., (UPI) — The Illinois Budgetary Commission will mee in Springfield April 24 to take a look at the state's financial woes and see if it can help find relief.

Commission Chairman Sen. Everett R. Peters, R-St. Joseph, called the meeting over the past weekend. The commission is one of the state's most powerful arms and its members are the assembly's top leaders.

"We are trying to determine what is the financial condition of the state and if there is anything the budgetary commission can do to alleviate the need for new taxes, or to keep the state from running wild," Peters said.

Information he has received, Peters said, indicates "the state is in a lot of trouble. Maybe we can determine if there is a need for a special session."

Gov. Otto Kerner has said previously he thinks the state can avoid a special session before the General Assembly convenes in January, 1963. Then the state's most pressing fiscal problem, public aid, can be dealt with.

"THE QUESTION is can the public aid program make it through the remaining months of this year without running out of cash. The program definitely will run short.

"I have heard the Public Aid Commission will have a deficit of $170 million," Peters said.

The governor told a news conference last week of a hoped-for ace in the hole. This would be more federal money.

Kerner said he is investigating the possibility of securing the extra federal cash on grounds that the poor relief problem in Illinois has roots in migration of workers to Illinois, principally to Chicago, from other states.

GENERAL ASSISTANCE, or poor relief, is one of five public aid programs and the only one that does not receive federal funds. It is linked to unemployment and it constitutes the Illinois public aid problem at this time.

Approximately $500 million was appropriated by the 1961 General Assembly for public aid spending for the two-year fiscal period ending June 30, 1963. This was about $105 million less than requested by the commission.

Kerner and the budgetary commission decided on the slash and the legislature gave its approval. The governor at the time said he was basing the cut on hopes for a brightening employment picture.

PETERS SAID he asked Kerner to attend the meeting here but the governor has decided to send Advisor Dr. Norton Long in his place. Also attending according to Peters, will be Finance Director James Ronan, Revenue Director Theodore J. Isaacs and Budget Chief Ted Leth.

"We are going to try to take some action," Peters said. He added that after the April 24 meeting, "We are going to have the public aid commission in and see what we can do."

Area Residents Lose Driving Privileges

The office of Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier this week announced the revocation of 143 and the suspension of 685 drivers licenses, chauffeurs licenses and driving privileges based on local court convictions and police reports.

In addition, 268 persons whose licenses were suspended earlier and who did not have more than a total accumulation of 62 points have been granted probationary permits to drive.

Reasons for revocations were: driving while intoxicated, 104; felony involving motor vehicle, 1; drag racing, 3; displayed license not issued to him, 2; three offenses within one year, 16; caused or contributed to an accident resulting in death or injury, 1; permitted fraudulent use of license, 6; gave incorrect information on application for license, 3; mental and physical disabilities, 7.

REASONS for suspension were: violated restriction on license or permit, 13; revocation or suspension of a restricted driving permit, 3; displayed license not issued to him, 1; three offenses within one year, 624 caused or contributed to an accident resulting in death or injury, 36; driving while intoxicated, 7; convicted or offense while holding a restricted driving permit, 1.

Mandatory provisions of the law applied in 89 of the cases and discretionary in 739. Cook county residents accounted for 600 of the actions and downstate residents accounted for 216 and residents of other states for 5.

The license of Fredrick Savage Jr., 10 Walnut, Arlington Heights, was revoked for his driving while intoxicated.

REVOKED for three violations was the license of LeRoy Chapman, 1724 Marcee Lane, Northbrook, while Norman Muscavitch, RR 2, Bensenville, had his license revoked for causing or contributing to an accident resulting in death or injury.'

The license of Judyth Emmert, 1820 Darryl Drive, Arlington Heights, was revoked because fraudulent use of the license was permitted.

The following had their licenses suspended for three violations:

Probationary driving permits were issued to Anthony DePasquale, 1146 Bosworth Lane, Elk Grove Village; Randal DuPuis, 1824 Maple Ave., Northbrook; Robert Gay, 2 N. Elmhurst Road, Prospect Heights, and Joseph Zaccardo, 375 N. Hemlock St., Wood Dale. (A14

Question Who's to Pay for CD Signal

THURS., APRIL 19, 1962

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — The question of who would pay for signal generators of a proposed attack warning system to reach into every home in Illinois proved a stumbling block Monday at a hearing of Civil Defense and utility representatives.

The hearing was called to explore the possibilities of the proposed warning system, which would be known as the National Emergency Alert Repeating (NEAR).

The government hopes the utility firms would pick up the tab for the expensive generators, while the utilities have not apparently warmed up to the proposal.

Murray Joslin, vice president of Commonwealth Edison, who attended the hearing, told a reporter later he couldn't see how the utilities could see their way clear to absorb such costs.

THE GENERATORS would relay warning signals via power lines to home users where a warning device installed in the home would set off a noise. The device, which would be plugged into an electric outlet, would not cost more than $10.

Some 32 private utilities and cooperatives had representatives at the meeting which was called by the Civil Defense agencies and the Illinois Commerce Commission.

Chairman of the hearing was Henry G. Zedd of the Illinois Civil Defense Agency. A main participant was A. P. Miller, director of communication and warning in the Office of Civil Defense of the Department of Defense.

Miller said the department has struggled with the problem of adequate warning and has concluded that sirens and radio stations do not reach enough people.

He said under the proposed plan, each home would receive the warning within a minute after it was transmitted from Norad in Colorado Springs, Colo.

THE NORAD alert would go first to generators at various points around a state and then be relayed into the homes. There would be 22 such generator relay points in Illinois.

Miller said there is a pilot operation of this plan somewhere in Michigan, with the generator located in Lansing.

Spiced Ham, Apple Garnish Portray Traditional Feast

During the Easter season there's sure to be an occasion when you'll entertain a group of friends with a beautiful array of foods served buffet style — it's an easy solution to the serving problem.

And an easy solution to preparing a delicious baked ham for the festivities is the method of baking it in aluminum foil.

Foil baking lets you add rich and spicy flavor to a modern "tenderized" ham you've bought at the food market. The ham is coated with flavorful ingredients before being wrapped; them all during the baking, these flavors penetrate the meat.

IN ADDITION, the ham will be extra moist and juicy, since foil prevents it from drying out. Directions for preparing an extra flavorful ham in aluminum foil have been worked out by Reynolds Wrap home economists.

For the Easter buffet, they suggest the ham be surrounded with an apple garnish and accompanied by new potatoes in a cream sauce and mixed spring vegetables (dandelion greens, spinach, scallions and asparagus, cut in diagonal slices, all cooked together and dressed with lemon butter.)

FOR A BEAUTIFUL way of serving the ham, use a large platter (or piece of cardboard of suitable size), covered with foil to conform to shape, but allowing an inch or two extra all around.

Flute this border, pose the ham and garnish, then see how the handsome food is mirrored in the foil.

HAM WITH SPICED APPLE GARNISH

Purchase a "cook-before-eating" type of ham either half or whole. Place it on a large sheet of foil wrap, sufficient to cover the ham completely and allowing for overlapping of the edges comfortably.

If half ham is used, rub it over thoroughly with a mixture of ½ cup brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, ¼ teaspoon black pepper and sufficient wine or fruit juice to make a thick paste.

To wrap, first pad any sharp bone protrusions with a small folded piece of foil. Bring the foil up over the ham, overlapping the foil about 3 inches at the top.

Smooth it down at either end; then bring the underneath foil up over the top foil. It should extend up about 3 inches, so juices will not run into the pan.

IF A WHOLE ham is used, double the brown sugar mixture and wrap in same way.

Place wrapped ham in a shallow pan and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) allowing 16 minutes per pound for a whole ham, 18 minutes per pound for a half ham.

Remove from oven and fold back foil. Remove melted fat from foil with a bulb type baster or large spoon.

REMOVE rind from ham and score the fat in a diamond pattern. Press a whole clove into the center of each diamond. Force brown sugar through a sieve or strainer, shaking evenly over the ham.

Return to oven for about 15 minures to glaze. As soon as sugar coating has set, baste once or twice with a little wine or fruit juice.

Serve with a garnish of spiced apple halves and water cress.

SPICED APPLE HALVES

Wash tart apples and cut in half. Dig out seeds and core. Cook gently in a syrup made by cooking together one cup sugar and 1½ cups water, a small stick of cinnamon and a slice of lemon.

When almost tender, lift out onto a sheet of Reynolds Wrap on a cooky sheet. Stud with cloves. Place under broiler and brown very lightly. Baste once or twice with syrup. Use leftover syrup for cooking rhubarb or other fruit.

Reverence, Reunion

Homemaking Hints For Festive Easter

by BETH WEIR
Food Editor

Easter is many things — a time of reverence, a reunion of families and a reward for all of God's living creatures, marking the end of winter's cold with gentle spring breezes, green grass, crocus, daffodils, and an abundance of sunshine.

It is a time for gay spring chapeaux, traditional feasting, rainbow colored eggs and an annual visit from the "Easter Bunny."

Most important, it is a time of worship, in observance of Christ's Resurrection.

After sunrise or mid-morning services, leisure time enters the holiday scene in a fun-filled search for baskets and other treats. But it is also a time of meal preparation for mother, who must satisfy both family and guests partaking of the long-awaited feast.

This year, to assist homemakers in planning an unusually festive menu, Paddock Publications is featuring a collection of bright, new recipes for Easter. Refreshing as a breath of spring, menus for breakfast, brunch, and dinner appear throughout this section.

Than in Previous Years

Easter Menu More Costly

Split-week food merchandising, dotted here and there with "created" values, dominates pre-Easter retail activities. But through it all the fact remains that this year's Easter menu, based on traditional fare, may be a bit more costly than in previous years.

The University of Illinois consumer service food survey notes the usual early to late week shift in bargain offerings for the period ending April 21 to take advantage of the holiday.

The Easter-value parade by mid-week will be geared to traditional features built around ham, poultry, lamb and eggs, with retail prices ranging broadly.

THE PRODUCE segment of the food industry also is "creating" those few values that exist, drawing from spring production supplies that are below average and running about 19 per cent under year-ago levels.

Costs continue high although a greater number of items appear on the list at lowering quotes as the season advances.

The Chicago-area Easter food value list lines up as follows: meats — whole or half fully cooked hams, lamb leg roasts and fresh pork butt roasts; poultry — turkeys and large size eggs; produce — asparagus, artichokes, yams, radishes, cauliflower, tomatoes and sweetcorn.

PLAYING A secondary value role of bargain impression-making are some limited beef and lamb lines, mostly rib roasts and steaks, and lamb leg roasts. Prices range widely.

Pork, sagging to a two-year low in wholesale loins, offers these more likely pre-holiday retail quotes. Rib end roasts 39 cents, loin end 49 cents. Center cut chops 89 cents, fresh Boston butts 45-55 cents. Bacon, firmer at wholesale, holds a prevailing range of 59-65 cents.

Ham pricing, especially for portion cuts in smoked lines, is a caution, depending on the original size of the ham. A competitive indicator is 79-89 cents for center slices. Shank-end portions of smoked hams can be found at 33-35 cents, and butt-end portions 43-45 cents.

In the fully cooked lines, shank halves show promotionally at 45-49 cents, and butt halves 55-59 cents. Whole, fully cooked hams, under 14 pounds, quote a promotional 53-59 cents.

Turkeys rate a top promotional spot in poultry despite wholesale costs that have advanced sharply in the past few weeks. Toms are optimistically featured at 29 cents in some stores, but the full range of birds by size and kind are more often quoted at 35-39 cents.

At these prices, turkey is just a shade over current wholesale costs. Fryers are depressed in cost and ample in supply, but 37-39 cents is the more common retail quote.

HEAVY BUYING and continued government purchase of dried eggs help boost the wholesale egg market about one cent. But promotional pressures prevail in stores, with retails falling an average 2 cents to produce a general 45-47 cent range on large size grade A.

Heading the list of shorter supplied fresh vegetables are such staples as cabbage, celery, cucumbers, eggplant, lettuce and peppers. But even some of these manage to appear on the lower price scale, notably cabbage which dropped sharply from its recent peaks.

Other improved-priced items are radishes, artichokes, spinach, asparagus, cauliflower, sweetcorn and tomatoes. Sweetcorn, carrots and beets lead a list of more abundant lines. Even though strawberries continue seasonally short in supply and generally high cost, some stores select them as a bonus-type value.

BASIC COMMODITY costs are much in the news these days. This prompted one wholesale meat source to quip that a two-week total 6 cent increase for lamb topped the per-pound increase of steel and per-gallon increase of gasoline without making "Page 1."

Fair holiday demand brought on the last 2 cent lamb increase, against small receipts and a shortage of spring lamb at live markets.

Wholesale pork reached a two-year low point, loins tumbling another 1¾ cents to 2 cents, while butts slid back ½ cents after last week's premature advance. Live markets have been under a month-long seige of falling costs, but firmed slightly ¼ cents on lower receipts and stepped-up demand.

WHOLESALE BEEF was just barely steady to down ½ cent on carcasses, one cent on rounds and chucks, and ½ cent on hinds. Steaks and ribs were the movers on holiday hopes, with no interest shown on chucks.

Live markets were b elow the week and year in receipts, scarcity of top grades being the continuing problem. Prices were off ¼ cent to ½ cent to reflect lower level of activity and supply shortage.

A Rousing Easter Finale

The fact that "all's well that ends well" applies to Easter dinner; the dessert must provide a spectacular finale to the feast.

A delectable Pineapple Chiffon Pie, garnished with tiny chunks of pineapple and sliced strawberries, provides a fitting end to the dinner.

Like all chiffon pies, this fruited version requires little cooking, thanks to the presence of unflavored gelatine. While the fluffy pie looks especially elegant and festive, the preparation is simple.

THE UNFLOVORED gelatine encases the air beaten into the egg whites and whipped evaporated milk; that's why the chiffon is so delectable, high and airy.

And because unflavored gelatine is so reliable, there's no risk involved each time you make the pie it will be equally delicious.

Unflavored gelatine has another important virtue, too. Because it has no flavor of its own, it permits the full true flavor of the pineapple juice to come through.

PINEAPPLE Chiffon Pie is good news for the Easter hostess who may have a weight-watcher or two at her table. Because this recipe makes use of whipped evaporated milk rather than whipped cream, it is comparatively low calorie.

The mixture can be turned into a pie shell prepared from a mix, or a shell of mellow graham cracker crumbs.

This Easter, Pineapple Chiffon Pie follows the handsome platter of ham, and proves that all's well that ends well. Happy Easter dinner!

PINEAPPLE CHIFFON PIE

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- ¾ cup sugar, divided
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1¼ cups pineapple juice
- 4 tablespoons lemon juice
- *2/3 cup icy cold evaporated milk, whipped
- 1 9-inch baked pastry shell
- Strawberries
- Pineapple chunks

Mix together gelatine, ¼ cup of the sugar and salt in saucepan. Beat together egg yolks and pineapple juice; add to gelatine mixture.

Place over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine and sugar are dissolved and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat; add lemon juice.

CHILL UNTIL mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Gradually add remaining ½ cup sugar and beat until very stiff.

Fold in gelatine mixture; fold in whipped evaporated milk.* Turn into prepared pastry shell. Chill until firm. To serve, garnish with pineapple pieces and sliced strawberries.

Note: *To whip evaporated milk, chill in freezer tray of refrigerator until ice crystals form around edges. Turn into chilled bowl and whip with rotary beater or on high speed of electric mixer until milk is stiff.

Quite Contrary by Mary

Hatless . . . or Headless?

EVERY WOMAN HAS SOME article of clothing that is a favorite. I mean my Mother goes for hats. When she would scrape a few dollars out of her grocery fund, off to the hat shoppe. They're always called shoppes.

MARY

I can't get my fill of shoes. Heaven knows, I certainly have nothing in the foot and ankle department to show off. But, I just love shoes. All the shoes I can get my hot little feet into. Only they aren't so little. Not as big as Jackie's though.

Back to hats. I hate hats. Hats mash my hair down and in this day of the more or less bouffant hairdo, mashed hair is definitely out. However, there comes a time in every woman's life when a hat is a must. Like in church or at a fashion show. So once in a while my hat will wear out and I am forced to replace it.

This is where I have fun. I look just too ridiculous in hats. Somehow, when I try on anything larger that a postage stamp, I have a hard time finding my face in the mirror. As the hats get more peculiar each year, I look more peculiar in them. But, what really gets me are the hat sellers.

Here I am in the hat department with that do or die attitude. I grab up something that has a lot of flowers on it. All of them have a lot of flowers on them. I clap it on my head, look into the mirror and promptly go off in fits of laughter. The attending clerk, who has just told me that I am adorable, is hurt. I always try desperately to make them admit that whatever monstrosity I have on my head does not really bring out the real me. It is a vain effort. She is still hurt.

About this time I decide that the old hat has a lot of good left in it and slink out of the store. Once I laughed so hard in a hat store that the clerk got mad. For all I know maybe she designed whatever it was that convulsed me. As I am a coward by religion, I got out of there in a hurry. To this day I am known to my more intimate friends as hatless Mary. Which is better than burying my head in one of those baskets and being known as headless Mary. (SF

Planting for Arrangements Is Garden Group's Topic

"Planting For Your Arrangements" will be the timely topic for the Monday night meeting of the Arlington Heights Garden Club when Mrs. Allan Marshall Jones of Hinsdale will be speaker. Before she began lecturing to garden clubs, Mrs. Jones spent many years painting landscapes. She studied at the Art Institute and feels that her training there, especially in color and design, have been of great value in arranging flowers, judging shows and in designing gardens.

Mrs. Jones became interested in lecturing on garden planning and what judges look for when awarding prizes when she noticed that many garden club members knew very little about horticulture and planted their property for shade and privacy without providing for material for arrangements throughout the year, thereby making their flower arranging hobby a very expensive one.

MRS. JONES appreciates simplicity, "hard to obtain, but most admired," either in arrangements or gardens. Besides lecturing on horticulture and design, she has flower arranging schools and coaches clubs for shows. Her lecture Monday night will include flowers, trees, shrubs and ground covers.

The Ways and Means Committee has planned a gardener's white elephant silent auction and a bargain plant exchange.

The April 23 meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in Pioneer Park field house auditorium, and the lecture will be followed by a social hour. Hostesses for the evening will be Mesdames Gladys DeBriae, Ann Brown and Frances Critch. Non-members interested in attending are asked to call Mrs. Robert Wolf at CL 5-3068. (S pieces, drained

2 tablespoons mushroom juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice

Combine all sauce ingredients in bowl and blend well. Set aside to pour over hard-cooked eggs.

From an 18-inch roll of heavy-duty quilted cooking foil, tear off two sheets 18 inches long. Center one crosswise over the other. Place a 12-inch round plate, tray or pan in the center of the foil sheets.

PULL UP FOIL around the sides of the plate. Remove the plate and crunch foil down into a shallow round nest, leaving a flat bottom about 12 inches in diameter.

Set foil nest on a flat pan or cookie sheet. Grease bottom of nest lightly.

Tear off two sheets of cooking foil, 7 inches square. Lay one square over the other. Place a glass in the center and pull foil up around its base.

Remove glass and crush edges down till finished container is about 2 inches high. Set aside to use as meat holder.

PREPARE one envelope (4 servings) of mashed potatoes as directed on the package, or use 2 cups leftover mashed potatoes. Drop egg into potatoes and whip with rotary beater till fluffy.

Tint with a few drops of blue food coloring. (The blue coloring will combine with the yellow egg yolk to give a soft Easter egg green color.)

To assemble nest, place small foil container in center of foil nest. Fill with sausage links. With ice cream scoop nestle potato mounds around meat holder.

Peel Easter eggs and quarter. Lay them around outer edge of potato balls, yolk side up. Spoon sauce over eggs. Bake nest 15 to 20 minutes in oven preheated to 400 degrees.

TOAST 3 slices of bread, split them diagonally as for a sandwich, and insert points up between potato balls after removing nest from the oven.

Slide nest from cookie sheet onton serving plate, tray or bread board that is larger than the nest. Surround with green Easter grass. Makes 6 servings.

Here's How Pros Handle the Kids

Doctors, Dentists 'Know the Ropes'

by BETTY AINSLIE

Johnny is long overdue for his first haircut, Susie needs a visit to the dentist to be able to enroll in kindergarten, and the baby is scheduled for a trip to the doctors for shots.

Each excursion is a big first in her child's life and mother is apprehensive.

It's important that her children do not fear any of these experiences; so how do doctors, dentists and barbers handle the really small fry on a first meeting?

A neighbor declares her son always puts up a howl when a suggestion is made to cut his hair.

"I don't know what happened to Mike. He starts yelling as soon as we walk into the barbershop and he continues until he's out the door and I'm a nervous wreck by the time I get him back to the car."

SEEMS MIKE on his very first trip to have baby curls cut had his neck nicked slightly with electric clippers so barbershops were a nightmare to him until an understanding barber never touched the electric clippers at all.

He put a fascinating new toy in Mike's hands, a sucker in his mouth and did the entire hair cutting job with hand clippers, comb and scissors. Mike lost his fear along with his hair and discovered this thatch shortening process could be fun after all.

Many barbers these days use a little psychology and a lot of time on their first trippers. Some have seats with a horse's head or a car stering wheel in front which holds the interest of the youngster for a time.

"At least," declared one barber, "those seats make it a lot easier to get a reluctant little guy into the chiar."

MANY SHOPS have toys and books as standard equipment. One place has a cuekoo clock that really cuckoos by pulling a string, which has helped out the hard pressed barber.

Praise often helps and gentleness is important. "We spend a lot of time talking, using toys and of course suckers. Sometimes we have them in and out before they even realize what is gong on."

Naturally all barbers go heavy on lollypops as a reward and nearly all use hand clippers the first time around. Some shops even offer a free picture of mother's pride and joy after the haircut.

All doctors, dentists and barbers realize the first visit of a child is important and usually try to spend time, extra time, getting Johnny and Susie to enjoy getting acquainted.

WITH A check-up at the dentists there is always the fascinating little mirror which the child is allowed to handle. Sips from a tiny paper cup that keeps refilling every time it is set down is a new and absorbing experience.

Many dentists prefer to have parents remain in the waiting room until he finishes his check-up, then they are called in. By that time Johnny and Susie have become friends with their dentist without the constant "open your mouth wider Susie" or "sit still and don't squirm" advice from mother.

Dentists agree that children often have parents who remember their own painful trips to have a tooth filled or pulled and transmit some of this fear to the child. So maybe that is why they recommend the waiting room as the best place for the parent.

"Nowadays with regular six month check-ups starting early in the child's life, he need never fear a dentist chair and learns to consider the dentist as a friend," said one dentist questioned.

BECAUSE A child starts early with regular mouth inspections and teeth cleaning his first dental trips are painless, so he has no fear if in later years there is a need to fill or pull a tooth.

The child is shown how to brush his teeth correctly and the drill used with tooth brush something he knows and underattached has already become stands so there is no fear.

Dentists prefer to give rolls of sugarless chewing gum or mints as an after check-up treat, some seven offer small tooth brushes, but the ordeal feared by the parents is very pleasant to the child and it didn't hurt a bit.

Pediatricians often have very young babies for a first visit and begin by reassuring the mother. If mom is calm and unconcerned, baby won't remember the shot.

FOR THE OLDER youngster doctors have toys and books to capture their attention and a supply of suckers. Again patience and extra time is important, as the careful doctor explains what he is about to do to the child. He may let him listen to his own heart beat with the stethoscope. Many doctors try a little psychology on the girls by remarking about their pretty dress or hair ribbon.

ment over a strong right arm muscle or a new shirt—anything to make our little offsprings forget for a moment any apprehension he might have in facing the physician.

Regular check-ups here too help the child and doctor to become acquainted, so if an emergency arises and the tot is really in pain or ill he will have no fear of this doctor he knows called in to help him. Here again the doctor tries to make the little patient comfortable and above all to ease the fright of the parents.

So Johnny enthralled by a horse seat at the barbers may never realize he's getting his hair cut. Susie is bound to like the nice dentist who let her look at her own teeth with that tiny, little mirror and the baby, after a startled cry decided that prick must have been a mistake as mother is so calm.

Yes, we're fortunate that these men who deal with our children do it with ease, patience, understanding and of course—suckers. (S

Ye editors attempted to drop the ax on this adage earlier this year, but ran afoul of too many bride's tears. Thus, exceptions have been permitted.

However, be it hereby noted that effective with May 4 issue, it will be the obligation of parties involved to make sure that wedding data an dpictures are submitted in time for publication within deadlines set by the women's editor.

IT IS SUGGESTED brides-to-be obtain wedding data publication blanks from women's editor fo Paddock Publications prior to the wedding so data can be filled in on schedule. Pre-ceremony arrangements with studio photographers to insure publication can also be arranged.

Thank you, brides and mothers-of-the-brides, for your cooperation and understanding.

Republican Women Schedule Ann'l Easter Monday Brunch

PUTTING FINISHING touches on table decorations for the Easter Monday Brunch, sponsored by members of the Women's Republican Club of the 13th Congressional District, is Mrs. Robert Milligan of Mount Prospect. The affair will be held in Chevy Chase Country Club where guests will hear Marguerite Stitt Church's final "Report from Washington."

Members of the Women's Republican Club of the 13th Congressional District will be giving special attention to Marguerite Stitt Church's final "Report from Washington" this Easter Monday when they meet to hear their Congressional representative at the club's annual brunch held at the Chevy Chase Country Club in Wheeling. Mrs. Church, who has announced her retirement from the political scene, is one of seven Republican women members of the House.

Her majorities in national elections have evoked much comment. In 1956 and again in 1960, she received the largest vote in the United States in any district contest for the office of U. S. Representative since 1936.

MRS. BERT K. Murphy, State Central Committeewoman from Cook County and co-chairwoman of the club will give a special tribute to Mrs. Church and in particular will stress her 12 years of service the 10 years on the Foreign Affairs Committee; the contacts made in 41 countries; the four years of service on the Government Operations Committee where she personally introduced all the necessary legislation to implement the second Hoover Commission recommendations; and her service last fall as one of the five U. S. Delegates to the United Nations.

She is currently President of the 82nd Club, which is made up of the Republican Members of Congress who entered the House in the 82nd Congress in 1951. "Gallantry undoubtedly prompted the selection," said Mrs. Church, "as I am the only woman memoer." (S

Juniors Vote $100 to Aid Village Friendship Program

At the April meeting of Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club members unanimously voted to give $100 to the International Friendship Program to aid the village's "adopted" town of Comas, Peru. The Juniors have two representatives working with the Friendship Program: Mrs. Gerald Lindeman was elected finance chairman, and Mrs. Biancardi, corresponding secretary. It was through these women that the Juniors learned of their lack of funds to ship the much needed equipment collected for Comas.

THE JUNIOR'S program chairman, Mrs. Lindeman, presented a timely speaker for that evening: W. E. Noyes, whose business travels take him through South America. Noyes showed colored slides, including pictures of Comas in its present rebuilding state. The program helped members have a better understanding of the town's many needs, and all were very encouraged by the recent progress of Comas, reported Mrs. Lindeman.

Election of new officers and board members was also on the agenda for the evening. Mrs. Richard Decker was elected second vice president; Mrs. Howard Schick, treasurer; Mrs. Ralph Davis, director; Mrs. William Shumaker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Richard Jensen, program chairman; and Mrs. James Davis, membership chairman. They will be installed at the Junior's banquet May 29 in Old Orchard Country Club.

EVEN THOUGH the club season closes after the banquet in May the members still have many projects to accomplish. Chairman Mrs. Harry Krol, and her Mexican Migrant Committee are busy making large Easter baskets for the club's two "adopted" Spanish-American families. The baskets will contain fruit, colored eggs and candy. The club has helped these families for the past five years on all holidays.

On Thanksgiving, two large food baskets, each containing a ham plus many other foods were delivered, and at Christmas an individual gift for each child, and two small aluminum trees trimmed with candy canes plus used clothing.

The committee also provides money needed for books and milk for the 10 school children who would not otherwise be able to attend.

MRS. HOWARD Schick, chairman of the Art, Literature and Music Committee announces her committee and friends will attend the Northwestern Opera Workshop, "La Traviata," May 25. May 15, Mrs. Impey will give a pre-opera discussion to the group and will outline "La Traviata" and play records of some of the sections.

Mrs. Richard Jenson announces final plans are being made for the club's last fund-raising project of the season, "Bonanza Night," April 27, at Old Orchard Country Club when a gay evening of games and dancing plus a midnight snack has been planned.

The last meeting of the season will be held May 8 and entertainment will be provided by members of the different committees. (S

Zoology Student Searches For Secret Killer's Cause

MADISON, (UPI) — A University of Wisconsin graduate student in zoology is trying to unlock the secret of what causes cystic fibrosis, a killer of 7,000 children each year in this country.

Dorothy Huebner, a graduate student in zoology, and a project assistant with Dr. Charles Lobeck's cystic fibrosis research group at university hospitals, is doing basic research on the human sweat gland trying to discover the cause of the disease, officials said.

Cystic fibrosis (CF) is an inherited malfunction of the exocrine glands which secrete fluids such as sweat and mucous. Half of the children born with the disorder die before five years of age from infection of their mucous filled lungs, officials said.

CF children secrete about three times as much salt in their sweat as normal children do. Miss Huebner is looking for a defect in the sweat gland cell membrane that either passes too much salt, or fails to reabsorb enough salt in the normal way, they said. The enzyme deficiency responsible for the membrane defect can then be related to CF.

"CF probably results from defect of a single enzyme, like most such hereditary diseases, Miss Huebner said. "If we can show what enzyme is lacking in CF sweat glands, we should be able to explain the cause of all the other symptoms."

According to university officials, Miss Huebner takes biopsies (tissue samples) of skin of normal and CF children of the same age and compares them.

She is also using techniques which involve incubating sweat glands in a radioactive phosophorous containing liquid fat. She said this may be connected with the problem.

VERY little is known about the sweat gland, she said, so fundamental cytological research of the type is necessary to solve problems involving the gland.

The UW group is trying to devise a method to identify people who carry genes containing CF. Two of these genes are necessary for a person to have CF himself. If two persons carrying CF genes marry, the chances are that one out of four of their children will contract the disease, officials said.

The CF research program began last year. It is sponsored by the National Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. (Soc

Check Total Design Of Lamps in Home

If you want a portable lamp that will be attractive and do a good job, it's wise to check the total design of the lamp.

Sue Herndon, University of Illinois home economist, lists these pointers for selecting lamps:

Be sure the shade is suited to the use of the lamp. For such tasks as reading, an opaque shade is more desirable than a translucent one. However, for such tasks as putting on makeup, a translucent shade is preferable. All shades should conceal the location of the lighted bulb.

WHATEVER type or color you choose, be sure the inside of the shade is white. White reflects light best and also reduces glare.

Shades that are a little larger in diameter at the bottom than at the top distribute light up and down more satisfactorily than others.

Look for a diffusing device. It may be one or two metal discs or a glass bowl. Or it may be a wide harp to be used with a diffusion-type incandescent bulb. The diffuser directs some light to the ceiling, which reflects it back as indirect light. This means less glare.

Look for a two or three-way switch. It will permit more flexibility in light quantity than a single switch.

CHECK THE placement of the lamp. Whether it is to be placed on a low or high table, the height of the table plus the distance from the lamp base to the bottom of the shade should measure 40 to 42 inches from the floor.

This will put the bottom of the shade at about eye level of the seated person. The bottom of a floor lamp shade should generally be about 47 inches from the floor. (S

Art of Flattery

Dear Peg:

In a clever little article by the poetess, Phyllis McGinley, entitled "Flattery Can Get You Somewhere," appearing this month in the Sat. Eve. Post, she extolls the virtues of compliments, praise and flattery.

Speaking of praise, she says: "Praise is warming and desirable and is what the human race lives on like bread. But praise is an earned thing. It has to be deserved like an honorary degree or a hug from a child. A compliment is manna, a free gift.

Flattery too, has its great uses, oiling as it does the wheels of conversation or good fellowship. I certainly approve of flattery and think we ought to have more of it. Whether honest or not, a word of commendation can turn a bleak morning into June, or nourish the spirit and the body as efficiently as prayer or vitamins. It is what keeps marriages happy, nations at peace, and cleaning women from deserting one for a more congenial environment . . . It differs from a compliment often merely because it is studied. Let us not despise the art, for without it the planet would be a colder place. . ."

And you know she's right. There simply is not enough flattery among friends — or acquaintances for that matter. Frequently, we just don't take time to say what we're thinking. We may see a friend at a party in a lovely dress, but by the time we get over to her it's slipped our mind to say anything about it. And yet we all enjoy having someone say something nice about ourselves.

There is an art to flattery, however. Don't say things like, "My these rolls are delicious — did you make them?" This is a deadly statement! She probably didn't and you've really put her on the spot. Or beware of the compliment that goes like this (a friend offered this one to me a couple of days ago): "My, your hair looks pretty today!" This sounds like any other time it looks like a mop.

Flattery from children is among the nicest. They are guileless and what they say can be taken pretty well at face value. I particularly enjoyed this one that one of the little girls in the kindergarten class said to me the other day: "I got a pretty doll for my birthday, Mrs. McArdle, and she has hair just like yours!" My day was set up the morning I gave Patrick and his friend Billy some crackers and overheard him say: "I have the nicest Mama. Don't you want her to be your Mama too, Bill?" Bill obliged with an "O.K."

Flattery from my husband is the nicest of all. This is the honey that keeps a marriage sweet. I know when he says that I'm prettier now than I ever was before that his eyesight is slipping, but I love it anyway. And when he told me recently that I was the most attractive woman in a room full of fifty females, I needed only to take a quick look around to see that I'd have no chance in this beauty contest, however, his words fell like a sweet refreshing rain on my dried up ego.

I find too that the glow is just as warm when we give a compliment as when we receive one. Kindness generates kindness, so in the immortal words of Garry Moore, "Be very kind to each other!"

My love,
Patty

Dentists Have Stopped 'Muscle Talking' Kids

by JAMES S. BROOKS
UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., (UPI) — The dentist who specializes in treating children has three objectives: To get the maximum of work done in the least amount of time with a minimum of pain for his patient.

That means the days of wrestling a child into submission — called "muscle talk" by some dentists — are Marge passe. Instead today's dentists are taught "to tell, show and do method of introducing the young patient to dental experience," Dr. Norman H. Olsen of Evanston, recently told a session of the Michigan Dental Association.

Olsen, who in addition to having his own private practice is chairman of the Children's Department of the Northwestern University Dental School and Chief of Dental Service for Chicago's Children's Memorial Hospital, places honesty at the head of a long list of "musts" for the child specialist.

"You have to be completely honest with the child. I consider a lack of honesty a breach of contract," Olsen said, and related an incident in which a child he had treated came to him hating another dentist because "He hadn't done what he had told her he was going to."

BY TELLING and showing in advance of doing, the Creighton said, the dentist helps the child overcome apprehensions.

"It doesn't matter if the child is 12 or 3, you must be honest with them and 'tell, show and do' helps you here," Olsen said.

Other steps in gaining what the doctor likes to call "good rapport with the patient" include "T.L.C — tender, loving care — and a little tincture of time and patience.

Both go a long way toward establishing good rapport, he added.

Because children sometimes —no matter how much T.L.C. and tincture you apply — you can still be exasperating the man specializing in the treatment of youngsters "must have complete control of himself under any situation that happens in the office," Olsen said. There is no place for the man who wants to match the child tantrum for tantrum.

WHEN AN upset child is met, though, a dentist, for his own good as much as his patient's, cannot turn aside. "The child has to meet the experience sometime and if you put it off it's just building it up worse for the next time," Olsen said.

"Management of children," he continued, "requires common sense or horse sense." This, in Olsen's mind, includes such things as devoting full time to the child in the chair; talking with the child, not only to distract him, but to show him you may be a friend as well; and working from an eye-level as close to the child's as practical. "You don't feel comfortable if I walk up in front of you and talk down to you while you're sitting in a chair," Olsen said, "and neither is a child comfortable when you're looking down on him while he's in the dentist's chair."

The dentist treating a child can also help himself "by using as few instruments as possible. A child is quick to detect indecision, so you must be efficient," Olsen said.

THE PARENT also can play a role in preparing a child for his "dental experience." But Olsen prefers that mothers and fathers do not try to explain to their offspring what the dentist is going to do. "They usually introduce a child in a negative way," he observed wryly.

But a parent should accompany his child to the office, and he's welcome in the office while the dentist is at work. "With your conversation, which may be directed at the child, you can educate both the child and the parent as to oral hygiene and good dietary habits."

The parent's most important job, Olsen told the Michigan dentists, "is getting the child to the dentist early and regularly. A child should go the the dentist by at least age 3—and by that time many already have dental problems."

Going to the dentist needn't be a terrifying experience, he said, and some children, his own son and daughter included, even find it a treat. (Soc

AAUW Gives Fellowship Honoring Charter Members

A $500 contribution to the National Fellowship Fund in the name of the charter members has just been made by the Northwest Suburban Illinois Branch of the American Association of University Women. This is the third named fellowship this branch has presented for advanced study and research.

The AAUW is composed of women who hold approved degrees from colleges all over the United States. Through their many activities in the fields of education, international relations, social studies, status of women, the arts and fellowship, AAUW members are widening their own horizons, helping to build better communities, and fostering a more intelligent approach to world problems.

THE AAUW Fellowship Program started in 1890 with a single $500 stipend to encourage gifted women to "take a proper share in the intellectual activity of their countrymen." It has grown to a nationwide project which includes a million dollar fellowship endowment fund. The privilege of naming a grant is given to a branch when it contributes $500 or more in one year to the fund.

Northwest Suburban's charter members were Mrs. G. E. Bailey, Mrs. C. H. Bentley, Mrs. G. E. Concidine, Mrs. J. O. Crawford, Dr. Elfriede Horst, Mrs. A. H. James, Mrs. W. H. Johnson, Mrs. E. M. Plan a Lamb Cake Party for Sunday

What is so fascinating to a child as a stuffed animal to hold or a gay party cake for sheer enjoyment? Put the two ideas together and you have the perfect combination for a party table setting this Easter Sunday.

A delicate white cake flavored with pure vanilla and covered with fluffy white frosting and flaked coconut, it will delight the children long after their eggs from the morning hunt are separated.

WHETHER THE party is in observance of Easter or a birthday event, this intriguing lamb had best be guarded by his stuffed animal friends until cake cutting time.

The animals can also watch over the individual nut cups, filled with dry toasted peanuts, so deliciously satisfying to both young and old "nibblers."

As an added attraction at the end of the party, blindfold each small guest and lead him to the table which holds the lamb centerpiece, allowing him to select one of the stuffed toys to take home.

LAMB CAKE

2¼ cups sifted flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups sugar
2 teaspoons pure vanilla
2 eggs
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons milk

Set oven 375 degrees. Grease and flour a lamb baking mold. Sift flour; measure. Sift again with baking powder and salt. Set aside.

Cream butter until fluffy. Gradually, add sugar continuing to cream until mixture is very light and fluffy. Stir in vanilla. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Add flour mixture alternately with milk to the butter—egg mixture. Beat well after each addition so batter is smooth. Spoon into lamb mold.

Bake 45-50 minutes.

Egg Hunt Tops Monday's Supper Fare

Nothing goes to waste Easter Sunday as far as the food department is concerned. After the little ones have enjoyed hunting for the colored eggs you've carefully hidden "hither and yon," gather the eggs together in preparation for Monday's supper.

Quartered and mixed with the leftover tidbits from the Easter ham in a seasoned cream sauce, they'll make a simple nourishing dish that the family will enjoy.

THE SECRET of a good cream sauce is to season it properly and sufficiently, and that's where the little bottle of spicy Tabasco, with its identifying emerald neckband, comes into the flavor picture.

The zippy liquid red pepper adds character and zest to lift a cream sauce out of the ordinary.

CREAMED HAM AND EGGS

1 can (3 or 4 ounces) mushrooms
Milk
¼ teaspoon Tabasco
1/3 cup butter or margarine
6 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
4 hard cooked eggs, quartered
2½ cups diced cooked ham

Drain mushrooms; add enough milk to mushroom liquid to make 3 cups. Ttir in Tabasco; reserve. Melt butter; add flour, salt and dry mustard; stir to a smooth paste.

Gradually add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to boil. Add drained mushrooms, hard cooked eggs and ham; heat to serving temperature.

Turn into serving dish; garnish with toasted buttered bread crumbs, if desired. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Sea Foam, Mandarin Molds Pastel Hued

by LOIS SELIER

Here are some special spring salads as appropriate for the season as a new Easter bonnet.

The recipes have been shared with us by Mrs. George A. Bolas of Arlington Heights. She usually serves two molded salads with her buffet suppers, and a Sea Foam Salad and Japanese Mandarin Mold are among her favorites. Both are in pastel tones — attractive to look at and delightful to taste.

The Sea Foam Salad is a fluffy concoction of whipped lime gelatine and cream cheese, with mashed pears and whipped cream folded in.

Mrs. Bolas uses a star mold, and she often serves this salad during the holidays with maraschino cherries molded in the points of the star.

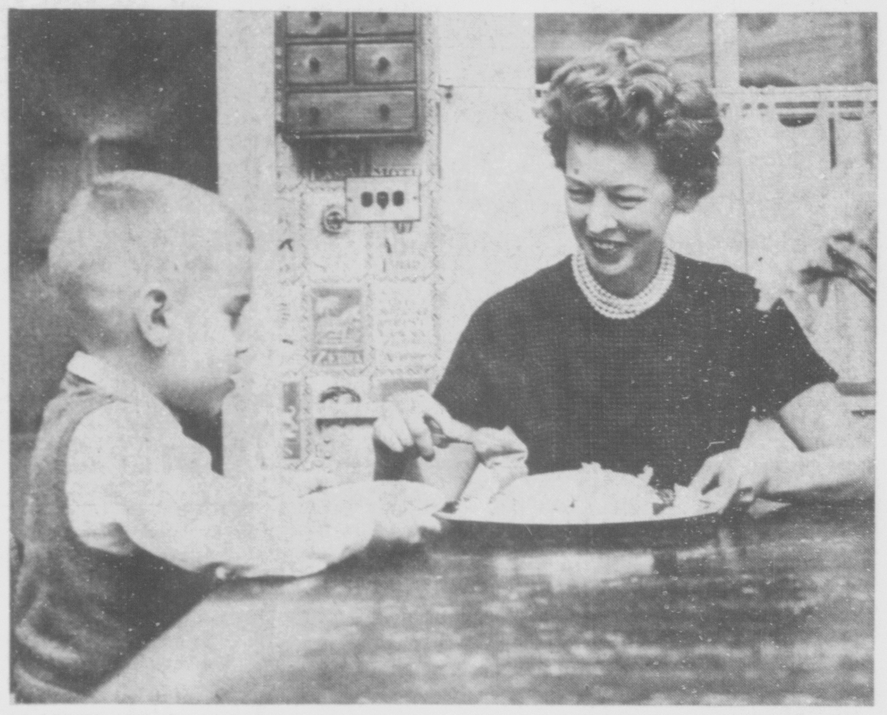
DELICATE AND refreshing, this salad is an excellent accompaniment for baked ham and Swedish meat balls.

High, light and handsome is the elegant Japanese Mandarin Mold. This is a delicious combination of orange gelatine, whipped cream and orange segments.

Made in two sections, one round layer and one tall and fluted, the two molds are assembled and garnished with peaches and cherries.

"I LIKE TO serve this salad with a beef tenderloin roast," commented this good cook. The Mandarin Mold is as impressive in appearance as a Japanese pagoda and will add interest and color to any buffet table.

The Bolas family lives at 630 S. Beverly in Arlington Heights. They have four children: Bruce, 22, a senior at the University of Michigan; Bob, 19, a freshman at De Pauw University; Barbara, almost 13, a seventh grader at South Junior High, and Bradley, 6, who is a kindergarten student at Dryden School.



AS LIGHT AND REFRESHING as its name implies is the Sea Foam Salad being offered by Mrs. George A. Bolas of Arlington Heights to her son, Bradley. This delightful spring salad is a favorite of this good cook's for buffet-style suppers. (SH

Orange Meringue Denotes Jewish Passover Holiday

FRESH FLORIDA ORANGE sections and juice add a sweet touch to Orange Meringue Charlotte for Passover Week, which begins today. (SF

Passover starts today, April 19, and soon many a household will be bustling with the preparations for this oldest, annual Jewish religious holiday.

Celebrated for over 3,000 years, Passover Week symbolizes the beginning of liberty and freedom for all Jews.

Foods served at the Seder table are heavy with symbolism, one of the best known being matzos, the unleavened bread. The following recipe for Orange Meringue Charlotte uses either matzo farfel or matzos in its preparation.

Fresh Florida orange juice adds a pleasant flavor to the popular baked charlotte dessert, and individual meringues give it a touch of glamour.

Florida orange sections, lightly browned in the baking, make a luscious, juicy topping for the pudding base.

THE PLUMP, seedless Florida Valencia oranges, now so abundant in the markets, are excellent for sectioning.

Orange Meringue Charlotte is the perfect dessert for family or company. Preparation is simple and you can make it in advance, but bake the meringues just before serving.

The dessert is pareve (without milk or meat) so it may be enjoyed at any time during Passover Week.

ORANGE MERINGUE CHARLOTTE

2 cups Florida orange juice
1½ cups matzo farfel
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
3 tablespoons melted shortening (or butter)
3 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar, divided
1½ cups Florida orange sections

Pour orange juice over matzo farfel in bowl; let stand at least 15 minutes. Add orange rind, shortening, 2 egg yolks and one whole egg, salt and ¼ cup of the sugar; mix thoroughly.

Pour into greased 1½-quart shallow baking dish (10x6x2 inches). Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 25 minutes or until set. Remove from oven.

Beat 2 egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually add remaining ¼ cup sugar and beat until very stiff.

Spoon egg whites on top of pudding to make 6 or 8 meringues. Return to oven for 10 to 15 minutes until meringues are lightly browned. Serve warm. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Note: 2½ matzos, finely broken, may be used in place of farfel.

HOW TO PEEL, SECTION GRAPEFRUIT, ORANGES

Chill fruit before preparing. To section grapefruit or oranges, cut slice from top, then cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane.

Then cut slice from bottom. Or, cut off peel round and round, spiral fashion. Go over fruit again, removing any remaining white membrane.

CUT ALONG SIDE of each dividing membrane from outside to middle of core. Remove section by section, over bowl, to retain juice from fruit.

How Does Your Garden Glow?

Tired of interior decorating? This Spring—try your hand at "exterior" decorating—and turn your garden and patio into a veritable fairyland of light and color. Now you can get the same wonderful lighting effects you've been using indoors—outdoors in your garden. With the advent of portable, waterproof fixtures and easy-to-install light controls, no mood or dramatic effect is too difficult to capture.

The lighting of your grounds must be kept flexible. Best way to achieve flexibility is with light controls. The new electronic Luxtrol light control is the same size as an on-off switch. It gives continuous, uninterrupted dimming from off, to full brightness—lengthens the life of lamps because electric surges are eliminated and saves power because only the electricity needed for illumination is used when the lights are dimmed.

Out-of-doors, you can turn the Luxtrol light control up to full bright at dusk to balance the waning twilight. Then, as the occasion demands a more intimate setting, dim and blend the lighting to convey a warm, romantic mood. And, of course, after the guests have departed, bring up the lights again for clean-up chores.

Fixtures come in a few basic shapes and are not expensive. Main choices are mushroom-shaped fixtures (around $10), low border lights (around $6 to $12) and bullet-shaped flood or spot lamps (from $3.95 up). These are mounted on spikes to be stuck in the ground and are equipped with heavy, waterproof cords. Your electronic Luxtrol light control (about $30) can be installed indoors or on a porch or enclosure.

The new electronic Luxtrol light control is the same size as an on-off switch. It controls 500 watts of incandescent light and can be installed as easily as a switch. It gives continuous, uninterrupted dimming from off to full brightness. There is no interference with radio or television reception. The unit lengthens the life of lamps, because electric surges are eliminated and it saves power because only the electricity needed for illumination is used when the lights are dimmed. The new electronic Luxtrol is made by The Superior Electric Company, Bristol, Conn., and is available nationally.

'Bell Ringer' for School Set—Hot Soup, Sandwiches

Soup and a sandwich! That's the answer to a satisfying lunch for children home from school. The combination's a favorite one with first graders to teenagers.

For a tempting bowl of goodness, serve a hearty soup duet . . . canned condensed bean with bacon soup mixed with rosy red tomato soup studded with slices of canned Vienna sausage.

ALL ARE HANDY pantry shelf foods that go together so easily and so well.

Make the sandwich hearty too! Arrange slices of American cheese, tomato and lettuce on a toasted frankfurter roll.

Garnish with stuffed olives and small sweet pickles.

Sugar coated doughnuts and bright red apples to eat out of hand complete the "school day" lunch.

ROSY BEAN WITH BACON BOWL

1 can (11¼ ounces) condensed bean with bacon soup
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup
2 soup cans water
1 can (4 ounces) Vienna sausage

Blend soups; stir in water. Slice Vienna sausage; add to soup. Heat, stirring frequently. Makes 4 servings.

Here's another "bell ringer" for the school set:

CREAMY FRANKFURTER SOUP

2 frankfurters, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of vegetable soup
1 soup can water

Brown frankfurter slices and onion in butter. Add soup and water. Heat; stir now and then. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Use Leftover Ham For Hot Luncheon

"WASTE NOT, WANT NOT" is a theme you'll be practicing in the kitchen when you prepare a good, hearty supper dish of leftover ham and hard cooked Easter eggs in a cream sauce, seasoned with Tabasco. (SF

Here's a meal-in-one hearty, appetite-pleasing sandwich. Crunchy corn bread, made perfectly and easily with a mix, is the base for ham and cheese slices.

Tender broccoli and creamy mushroom soup spooned over the oven-hot sandwich top it off. Try it—'tis good for lunch or family supper Sunday or any other night.

HOT CORN BREAD SANDWICH

Corn Bread:

One 12-oz. pkg. (2 cups Corn Muffin Mix
1 egg
2/3 cup milk

Topping:

12 slices American cheese
12 slices cooked ham
One 10½-oz. can condensed cream of mushroom soup
½ cup milk
One 10-oz. pkg. frozen broccoli, cooked

Heat oven to hot (400°F.). For corn bread, empty contents of muffin mix package into bowl. Add egg and milk. Blend only until dry ingredients are thoroughly moistened. (Batter should be slightly lumpy.)

Pour batter into greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in preheated oven (400°F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Cut into 6 pieces; split each horizontally. Place on cooky sheet.

PLACE A SLICE of cheese atop each corn bread piece; top each with a slice of ham. Heat in moderate oven (375°F.) 8 to 10 minutes or until cheese melts.

For sauce, mix soup and milk together in saucepan; bring to a boil. Put two open-faced sandwiches on each plate; top with cooked broccoli. Spoon sauce over sandwiches. Serve hot.

Week's Best Food Buys

A hint of spring appears in area food stores this week with first arrival strawberries from Mexico, Florida and California, plus fresh arrivals of asparagus, lettuce and rhubarb at slightly lower prices.

Strawberries are high priced, as expected, but will adjust downward as volume picks up rapidly in weeks ahead. Their appearance on the University of Illinois consumer service food survey offers greater consumer value as a "Morale booster" this weather weary marketing period ending March 23.

PRODUCE departments show general signs of improvement with better buys posted in more fresh fruit and green vegetable lines. Consumers will find more cauliflower, improved sweet-corn, although the market is spotty and relatively larger volume of new potatoes from Florida.

Many lines continue high priced in the aftermath of winter, such as larger size peppers, celery, beans and beets.

In meat departments, beef emerges with a wide selection of value opportunities followed by some pork and lamb items, but these will be on a dealer's choice feature selection basis.

THE BLOOM is off poultry promotions with prices firm, and the better bargain nod goes to fryers. Eggs stabilize at the value levels of a week-ago.

The influence of Easter also is noted as ham markets firm with buyers actively booking supplies for the season. The packer deals recently noted on bacon also are absent, and prices revert to higher levels.

Consensus bargains appearing on the current U of I value list include: meats — sirloin, porterhouse and round steaks, beef chuck and rump roasts, pork loin roasts, center cut chops and lamb leg roasts; poultry — large eggs and fryers; produce — tomatoes, cauliflower, radishes, carrots, lettuce, potatoes, grapefruit and bananas.

THE MARCH calendar of produce values also shows the relative improvement in seasonal supplies (indicates peak supply month): fruit — apples, avocados, grapefruit, kumquats, oranges, strawberries; vegetables — artichokes, broccoli, carrots, chives, horseradish, lettuce, mushrooms, and yams.

All levels of the beef market were generally stronger based on disrupted supplies at live markets, limited supplies at wholesale and increased buying activity at retail.

These general competitive retail quotes prevail: sirloin steaks 89 cents - $1.09, porterhouse 98 cents - $1.30, round steaks 69-89 cents, blade cut chuck pot roasts 39-59 cents, round bone roasts 55-73 cents and rump roasts most competitive at 89-98 cents.

Some retail price cuts are noted in pork as the live market quotes dropped on surplus supplies at that level and reflected at steady quotes at wholesale. Retail tags show 39 cents on rib portion cuts and 49 cents on loin portion cuts, which in turn set up a range of 65-89 cents on center cut chops — one of the widest ranges noted in weeks.

FRESH BOSTON Butts and spareribs quote an almost identical 49-55 cents. Bacon, the packer deals gone, returns to a higher 59-65 cents basis for first lines. Hams firm in the face of Easter bookings.

Lamb continues active and fractionally higher at both the live and wholesale markets. There are some price-cutting opportunities at retail. Competitive 59-69 cent quotes are noted on lamb leg roasts.

Despite improving supplies, fryers register higher wholesale costs again and the promotion flags were lowered at retail to re-establish a general 39-43 cent range for the birds.

TURKEYS ARE steady at prevailing quotes against a continuing background of over-supply storage stocks, now 17,000,000 pounds over year-ago. Egg markets are stabilized, with large grade A moving from last week's pivotal 50 cents to range now at 49-53 cents. (SH

Tomato Soup Perks Italian Specialty

The magic ingredient for many a treat is canned condensed tomato soup.

One of the first condensed soups ever made, tomato has remained a favorite for over 50 years.

Great as a soup, excellent as a sauce, superb as a cooking ingredient, it has a three-way appeal.

You can mold it for a cool refreshing salad or add it to a fruit and nut batter for a spectacular steamed pudding.

Canned condensed tomato soup is the homemaker's short cut to good meals.

HERE THIS most popular canned soup is used for a tempting main dish . . . Cheese Ravioli in Tomato Sauce.

Delight your family tonight with this Italian specialty. It's especially good accompanied with a tossed green salad and for dessert, a selection of fresh grapes.

Cheese Ravioli In Tomato Sauce

1 package (10 ounces) frozen cheese ravioli
¼ cup chopped onion
1 small clove garlic, minced
¼ to ½ teaspoon basil, crushed
Generous dash crushed red peppers
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup
½ soup can water
2 tablespoons sliced ripe olives
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Cook ravioli as directed on package. Meanwhile, in saucepan, cook onion, garlic, basil, and red peppers in butter until onion is tender.

Stir in soup, water, olives, cheese, and ravioli. Heat, stirring now and then. Serve with additional cheese. Makes 4 servings.

Beefy Minestrone Is Luncheon Star

Today's the day for that important game of the season. Excitement is running high and so are appetities.

Delight all with a very satisfying lunch before the big event. Soup, the canned condensed kind, scores a victory everytime it's served and even makes that "extra point" when a "plus" is added to it.

Today's star is canned condensed minestrone soup with diced cooked beef and chili powder added. It's certain to be a winner!

Perfect partner for this hearty soup are crackers spread with garlic butter and sprinkled with paprika.

Beefy Minestrone

½ cup diced cooked beef
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
½ teaspoon chili powder
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed minestrone soup
1 soup can water

Cook beef and onion in butter until meat is browned and onion is tender. Stir in chili powder, soup, and water.

Heat; simmer a few minutes to blend flavors. Stir now and then. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Cracker Treats

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
1 clove garlic, minced
Saltines
Paprika, if desired

Blend butter and garlic. Spread on saltines; sprinkle with paprika. Place on cookie sheet; heat in 450° oven until crackers are toasted. Serve immediately.

Party Sandwiches 'Boon' to Hostess

Pretty sandwiches are a boon to a busy hostess. Made in advance and refrigerated, they'll come out in all their splendor just before the guests arrive.

Gather a collection of recipes and ideas for pretty ways to serve them and, come party time, you won't have to rack your brain for what to serve.

NUT PINWHEEL SANDWICHES

1½ (3 ounce) packages cream cheese
3 tablespoons milk
3 tablespoons chopped parsley
⅛ teaspoon minced onion
2 lengthwise slices whole wheat bread (cut from unsliced sandwich loaf)
1½ (3 ounce) packages cream cheese
3 tablespoons milk
1 cup chopped nut meats

Combine cream cheese and milk until soft. Add parsley and onion. Remove crusts from bread and spread ½ cup cream cheese-parsley mixture on each slice. Cut each slice crosswise into equal halves.

ROLL EACH half slice of bread up like a jelly roll. Combine cream cheese and milk until soft. Cover the outside of each roll with a thin coating of cream cheese, then roll in chopped nut meats.

Wrap each one in waxed paper, twisting ends of paper. Place on a flat surface so that roll rests on last turn of bread; chill.

To serve: unwrap and cut each roll into six slices. Yield: 2 dozen.

CHECKERBOARD SANDWICH

¾ cup pimiento cream cheese
¾ teaspoon chili sauce
1 cup finely chopped, cooked shrimp
¾ teaspoon lemon juice
8 teaspoons soft butter or margarine
4 slices whole wheat bread
4 slices white bread

Combine cream cheese, chili sauce, shrimp and lemon juice. Spread one teaspoon butter on each slice of bread. Spread 1½ tablespoons cheese-shrimp filling on all slices except 2 slices whole wheat bread, which will be used as top layer.

Stack three slices together alternating light and dark bread. Top each stack with the buttered slice of whole wheat bread. Press together gently.

CUT OFF crusts and slice each stack into six equal-sized portions forming ribbon sandwiches. Put four alternating slices together to form a four room checkerboard pattern, using 1½ tablespoons cheese-shrimp filling between each layer.

This will make three (4-layer) sandwiches. Wrap securely in waxed paper and chill thoroughly. To serve: cut each sandwich into six slices. Yield: 1½ dozen.

DEVILED EGG FLOWERPOTS

16 (1") thick circles bread
½ cup deviled egg filling
16 finely cut cubes green pepper

Pull part of the center out of each bread circle with a pair of tweezers, then fill centers with 1½ teaspoons deviled egg filling. Garnish top of each sandwich with a piece of green pepper. Yield: 16 "Flowerpots."

KICKIN' IT AROUND

by BOB FRISK

HOW MUCH DO SPORTSWRITERS know about what they're writing about?

Coaches have been asking that question for a long time.

Sometimes we ask ourselves that very same question when one of the high school coaches unfolds some fancy formation or play that is baffling in its operation.

One college football squad helped settle the question last Saturday.

Coach Ed Biles of Xavier University in Cincinnati, Ohio let two sportswriters, Bill Ford of the Cincinnati Enquirer and Harry Reckner of the Post and Times-Star, take the Musketeers through their paces in an intrasquad game that concluded spring training.

Biles himself went to the press box and wrote up the game for the Enquirer.

"The whole idea was to promote greater understanding of mutual problems faced by coaches and sportswriters," the newly appointed Xavier coach explained.

"The writers had complete charge, starting the Friday before the game, when they conduct the practice sessions with their respective teams. The writers assumed the responsibility for the preparations of the teams for the spring game."

It was an interesting experiment that probably did promote greater understanding of the mutual problems, but personally we're perfectly satisfied with watching from the sidelines and letting the coaches go about their jobs without any unnecessary "assistance."

We're learning as we go along.

A few years ago our knowledge of gymnastics was limited. Today we still don't qualify as an expert on the subject but we're better informed than before. At least we know what a side horse is and that always baffled us in the early acquaintance with the sport.

The fine points of wrestling have been picked up through years of observation and discussion. Now when Arlington's Bob Emmons and Prospect's Dick Mudge talk about the takedown, reversal, escape, and predicament we can nod and carry on the conversation with a knowledge of what they're discussing.

ORGANIZED SPORTS AND THE MEN who report them have made tremendous advances in social acceptance since the turn of the century.

There was a time when professional athletes were considered little more than hoodlums, and the men who wrote about them moved in a world unto themselves. The writers spoke a language of their own, sometimes engaged in questionable occupations on the side, and in general were a breed to be avoided.

Today there is a complete social acceptance of sports, and the sports page creates possibly more universal interest than any other part in the modern newspaper. More people are playing games today than ever before and the physical-fitness emphasis of the World War II years has had a decided effect upon the nation's reading public.

Sports-page followers are traditionally the most critical of readers, particularly past the high school level, for each is a self-styled expert in his favorite sport, and each feels a sense of triumph when the sportswriter is caught in error.

SPORTSWRITING RESEMBLES dramatic criticism in many ways. The writer witnesses drama in every game he covers. He sees a cast of characters, watches their performance with a critical eye, then reviews the drama.

His greatest task is to make the reader feel this drama without overwriting.

Everything we do in life is bound up in one little package. It's all a game. There's an appreciation for the fellow who does his best although he doesn't win, like a jockey on a tired horse.

The struggle that everyone faces—life—takes place in a single sports contest, and 99 per cent of the winners deserve to win, whether it's in cricket or ping pong. The sports writer is in a position to catch this feeling and its color and to show it as it is.

We appreciate the feelings of the Xavier University football coach and realize that his experiment has some merit.

However, we're satisfied with just reporting about the events, not trying to enter into the teaching aspect of athletics.

We'll let the coaches coach.

Pirates' Varsity Golf Squad Tops Arlington Cards

With John Seehausen touring Golden Acres in a nifty 37 for nine holes Palatine High School's varsity golf team posted a three-stroke, 168-171 victory over Arlington Monday afternoon.

The meet kicked off the golf campaign for the Pirates of coach Gary Clendenny while Ralph Meyer's varsity Cards suffered their second straight dual meet setback. Waukegan had dumped the Cardinals on Friday afternoon.

The Euclid Avenue school bounced back in the frosh-soph class with an impressive 174-205 victory.

Backing Seehausen for the victorious Palatine varsity were Way Thompson with a 41, Norm Olson with a 43, and Jim Arendt with a 47.

JERRY PETERSON sparked Arlington with a 41. Other rounds figuring in the Cardinal total were Mike Heyl's 42, Jim Wolf's 43, and Rich Wallhoff's 45. Doug Wiborg, No. 1 man for Arlington, mushroomed to a 49.

In the frosh-soph meet Arlington's Fred Devin posted a fine 41, a mark identical with his initial season effort on Friday, and Peter Johnson fired a 42 to rank as the two low performers.

Also scoring for Arlington were Roger O'Neil with a 44 and Garrett Shawhan with a 47.

Gregg Godbout registered a 47 at Golden Acres for Palatine's best effort in the younger class. Other nine-hole marks were Nelson's 51, Bruce Ziehm's 53, and Wachs' 54.

Arlington High's varsity and frosh-soph golf squads will face Prospect next Tuesday afternoon at Mount Prospect Country Club in their next meets of the 1962 season.

Palatine will host Woodstock today (Thursday) at Inverness and then will tackle Prospect's Knights Friday.

Prospect, Arlington Squads In League Games Wednesday

Prospect at Wheaton.

Maine East at Arlington.

That's the lineup of games next Wednesday afternoon as the area baseball teams continue their journeys along the hazardous title trails in the Interim League and West Suburban Conference.

Both Prospect and Arlington have moved off to creditable starts in the league firing and have enough class to give any team trouble before the respective flag chases terminate in late May.

Prospect won three of its first four Interim League tussles, including a twin bill sweep at East Leyden, and Arlington took two of three. Both clubs hold lofty rankings in the league races.

COACH CHUCK Aldrich's Knights were scheduled to host Willowbrook yesterday (Wednesday) with Bob Baker's Cardinals meeting league leading Glenbard West.

If those Wednesday games received a break from the weatherman the locals will be idle now until the tests with Wheaton and Maine East.

Wheaton's Tigers initiated their conference season with a split against West Leyden last Saturday. After falling 14-0 in the lid-lifter Wheaton rebounded with a 6-2 triumph on the strength of a solid mound effort by Jim Crabtree.

Crabtree, a member of the Tigers' starting five in basketball, allowed only one hit over the seven innings.

The Wheaton nine was 2-8 in the Interim league last spring and finished in the basement.

ALTHOUGH Maine East has moved off to a slow start in the West Suburban Conference this year Arlington can expect a rough game from the perennially powerful Blue Demons.

Coach Glen Vay Proyen has three lettermen in catcher Harry Hood, first baseman and outfielder Larry Eichler, and infielder Barney Jungers.

Maine won two of its first five games, including an impressive 7-2 victory over LaGrange. The Blue Demons lost single contests to Niles West, Glenbard West, and LaGrange with a no-hitter thrown at them by Glenbard's Dick Watkins.

Maine East finished third in the WSC race last spring with a 9-5 mark.

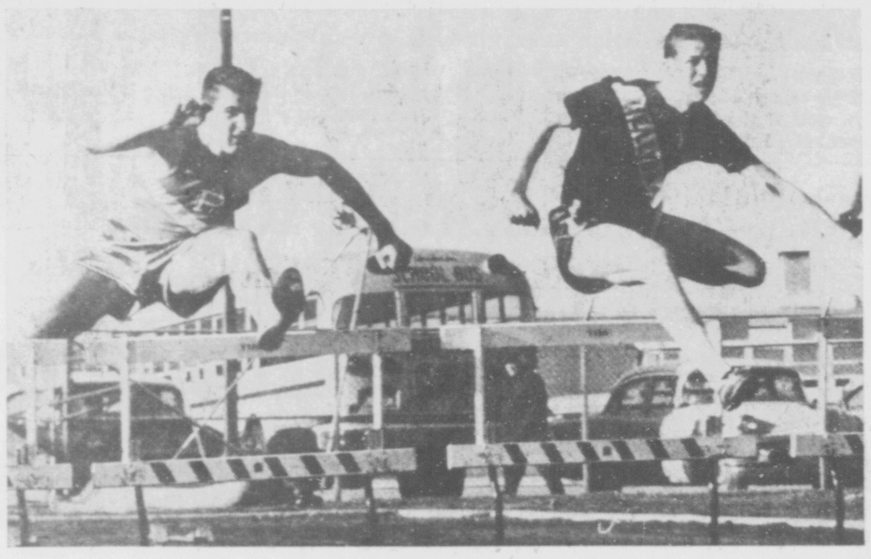
St. Viator's Sports Banquet Set for May 3

St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights will hold its All-Sports Banquet for the 1961-62 school year on Thursday evening, May 3, at 6:30.

Several outstanding guests will be included on the program that will be held at the school, Oakton Street at Dryden Street in Arlington.

Leo Fischer, sports editor of Chicago's American, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Additional details on the program will appear for the next two weeks in the sports section.



PROSPECT HIGH'S Ron Koepke (left) matches strides with an East Leyden performer in the varsity 120 yard high hurdles last Friday afternoon on the Foundry Road track. Koepke came on strong at the finish and posted a third place in the highs. Ron also placed second in the low hurdles as Prospect routed the visiting Eagles, 101-17, in the outdoor track opener.

Triumph 5-3, 14-2

Knights Top Eagles In League Twin Bill

Prospect High School's varsity baseball Knights swept an Interim League doubleheader at East Leyden Tuesday, posting a tight 5-3 victory in the opener and exploding with 21 hits in a 14-2 rout in the nightcap.

Coach Chuck Aldrich's aggregation held on to first place in the wide-open Interim title scramble with the crucial twin killing, and the Foundry Road entry will be idle now until tackling Wheaton next Wednesday afternoon.

Prospect stands 3-1 in conference firing with a 3-3 overall record. The locals were slated to host Willowbrook yesterday (Wednesday).

RIGHT HANDER Bob Hanson with relief from Jim Hogarty checked the Eagles with just three hits and three runs in the opener Tuesday, but two of those markers came in the home half of the seventh and gave the Knights some anxious moments.

With one out East Leyden put together a single, hit batsman, and three walks for two runs and had the tying counters on base when Hogarty came in for a game-ending strikeout.

The Knights didn't experience much success off the slants of East Leyden's Zybrowski through the first four innings and trailed 1-0 when they came to life in the visitor's half of the fifth frame.

HELD HITLESS during those first four stanzas, the Prospect crew pounded out three hits good for four runs in that explosive fifth.

Ron Aukamp initiated the proceedings with a single and Chuck Halverson contributed one of his own. A walk, error, and clutch triple by Tommy Thomas gave the Knights a 4-1 lead.

Prospect put across its fifth run in the sixth on a leadoff homer by Mike Francek. The circuit clout was the second of the season for Mike who also had delivered a homer in the first game of the twin bill with Niles West last Saturday.

East Leyden had opened the game's scoring with a single marker in the second on a single, sacrifice, and hit batsman.

THE EAGLES had trouble with Hanson's mound work and their three safeties were scattered over three innings, the second, fifth, and seventh.

Score by innings:

Prospect	000 031 0—5-4
East Leyden	010 000 2—3-3

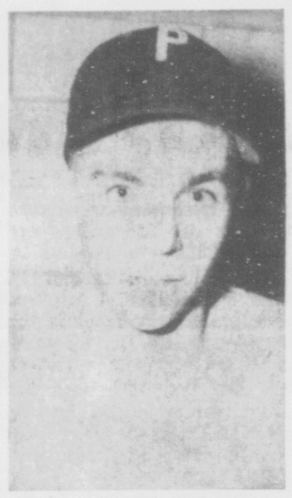
In Tuesday's second game the Knights had a field day, using the East Leyden pitchers for a good round of batting practice.

Overall, the Prospect outfit posted 21 hits for its season high and had a 4-0 lead on the host Eagles before the latter knew what happened.

TWO HIT batsmen and singles by Dave Leekley, Francek, Bob Geller, and Jerry Locy brought in four runs in the first inning and that was the ball game.

Prospect added two more in the third on three straight hits and a walk and pushed six across in an explosive fifth.

Contributing hits in that wild fifth were Locy with a leadoff homer and Mike Adams, Leekley, Francek, Geller and Rich Beck with singles.



MIKE FRANCEK

Prospect collected single runs in both the sixth and seventh as it concluded a most enjoyable afternoon.

PITCHER GRANT Gentry had a triple in the sixth and he rode home on Thomas' single. Hits by Beck and Norm Dahlgren helped send the final run across in the seventh.

Gentry, a sophomore, toiled for the Knights and yielded five hits, three in the fifth inning when the Eagles counted two runs.

Ten boys slapped out hits for Aldrich's Prospect squad with Beck, Francek, and Locy each claiming three. In eight trips to the plate this spring Beck has registered six hits for an amazing .750 standard.

Francek, an all-league performer as a junior, continues to wield a steady bat for Prospect and now owns seven hits in 20 at bats for a solid .350 mark.

Prospect	402 061 1—14-21
East Leyden	000 020 0— 2- 5

Highland Park To Host Meet

by BOB FRISK

Highland Park's Little Giants, already possessing two major indoor track titles this season and a solid runner-up slot in the Oak Park Relays, will take a crack at some outdoor honors Saturday afternoon when they host the Seventh Annual Lake Shore Invitational track and field meet.

Coach Dick Ault's powerful Suburban League squad, titlists in the varsity division of the Lake Shore spectacular last spring in one of the tightest finishes on record, rank as the pre-meet favorite for the cinder show that brings together eight formidable prep track squads.

Championships will be determined in both varsity and frosh-soph divisions of the headliner that helps kick off a series of major track meets on Saturday afternoons in the Chicago area.

EIGHT SCHOOLS, including Arlington and Palatine, will hook up in the Lake Shore meet with competition slated to get under way at 1 p.m. with the field events. The running events will begin at 1:30 p.m. on the Highland Park track.

Schools included in the Lake Shore alignment are Highland Park, Arlington, Glenbrook, Niles East, North Chicago, Libertyville, Palatine, and Waukegan.

Highland Park won the varsity title in 1961 in a blanket finish with Palatine's Pirates and Waukegan. The Little Giants posted 41 1/6 points and Palatine and Waukegan were right behind with 40 and 38 respectively.

This season the Highland Park aggregation has picked off the Suburban League Indoor and Evanston Relays championships and posted a strong second in the rough Oak Park Relays.

A REPEAT OF the 1961 finish could be in the offing for Saturday as both Palatine and Waukegan boast capable squads, but the Little Giants are a heavy favorite for a repeat in the varsity class.

Area entry Arlington, eighth in a field of eight last spring, has some capable individuals but doesn't have the over-all strength needed for the team championship. In addition, several possible point-getters are on vacation and will not be competing.

Given a break from the weatherman, a majority of the varsity records could fall Saturday as a talented field will assemble at Highland Park.

TWO STATE champions and record holders will be shooting for honors, and both should break the Lake Shore marks in their specialties.

Palatine's Andy Merutka set a new Lake Shore standard last spring in the shot put with a 55-10¼ toss, and Andy should have little trouble eclipsing that Saturday.

Highland Park's Jim Weinert, holder of the state mile record at 4:16.2, probably will have to set his own pace in attempting to break the 4:33.7 Lake Shore standard he established in 1961.

MERUTKA'S stiffest competition is expected from Waukegan's Bob Billberg and Highland Park's Jim Sternfield, but neither has approached Andy's top efforts. Weinert should breeze to the mile victory, but area entries Bill Hartman of Palatine and Jim Hendricks of Arlington may fight it out for the runner-up position.

In the 120 yard high hurdles Arlington's John Latta, a state qualifier as a junior and possessor of a swift :14.9 clocking, could bring home a first. Latta finished third last spring.

Jesse Bankston of North Chicago, Steve Goodman of Highland Park, and Bob Filpi of Glenbrook are three other highly regarded hurdlers.

LATTA COULD also show well in the lows although his best race is over the high sticks. John finished fifth in the low hurdles last spring in the Lake Shore meet.

Glenbrook's Ted Jacob, Evanston Relays titlist in the 60 yard lows, will be favored at Highland Park, but Latta, Glenbrook's Filpi, North Chicago's King and Bankston, and Highland Park's Goodman among others are solid entries.

Jacob could also rule the 100 yard dash as he finished third last year. Waukegan boasts two sprinters who are capable of top efforts and Glenbrook's John Corcoran and Libertyville's Tom Poe are other fleet century men.

THE 220 FIELD should include the same runners as the 100 although Waukegan's Fred Pelley has turned in a :22.5 ef-

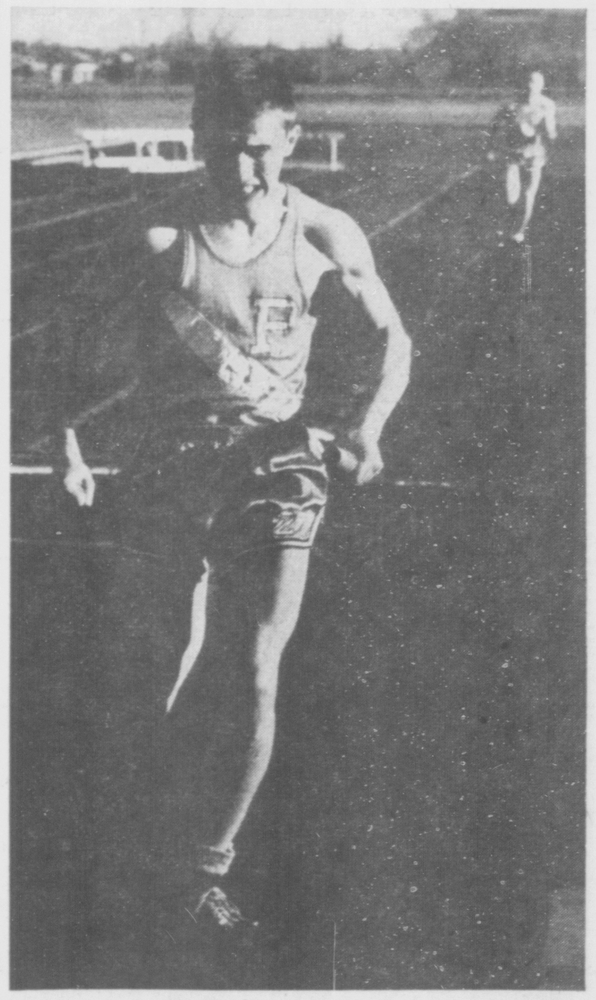
PARTICIPANTS:
Arlington, Glenbrook, Highland Park, Libertyville, Niles East, North Chicago, Palatine, Waukegan



KEN REED OF Prospect High School flashes across the finish line in the varsity 880 yard relay last Friday afternoon. Reed ran the anchor leg of the quartet that covered the half-mile in 1:38, easily beating a Prospect "B" team. Visiting East Leyden did not enter a squad. Coach Bob Scott's Foundry Road Knights posted easy victories in both divisions of the outdoor track opener.

THE HAWKEYES captured the team championship in the Arlington Heights Park District's Sportsman's basketball league during the 1961-62 season. Showing their trophies are (l. to r.) B. North, L. North, G. Dierking, E. Siemers, G. Smith, B. Schutzkus and D. Harvey.

fort thus far outdoors and will be ranked as the favorite.

Palatine's sophomore flash Duane Brooks could make some noise in both the 100 and 220.

A terrific race is shaping up for the 440 with such standouts as Highland Park's Bob Picker, Palatine's Gene Meyer and Larry Travis, Niles East's Alan Nachman, and North Chicago's Doug Clinkscales. Travis and Nachman finished third and fifth respectively in the Lake Shore action last spring.

HIGHLAND PARK'S Joel Lewitz, who set a new meet mark in 1961, is favored for a repeat in the 880 yard run although he could run into some stiff competition from teammate Chuck Redman, Libertyville's John Lashbrook, Palatine's Ron and Bob Frost, and Arlington's Robin Auld.

With such a talented field that 880 yard run mark of 2:01 could fall Saturday.

Highland Park's Jim Sternfield, second in the state discus throw as a junior and the defending Lake Shore titlist, is the top choice in this event although Palatine's Merutka, Highland Park's Jamie MacGregor, Libertyville's Bill Eppel, and Waukegan's Bob Billberg are other strong entries.

ANOTHER Highland Park standout, senior Ron Joseph, is the odds-on choice for a repeat in the broad jump. Joseph has won the Suburban League indoor and Evanston Relays crowns and he finished third in the Oak Park Relays.

Libertyville's Tom Thompson, possessor of a 12-1 effort in the pole vault this spring, could snap the Lake Shore mark of 12-2¼ set by Palatine's Brad McCrerry in '61.

Rounding out the field events is the high jump where Highland Park's John Pettingell is the favorite. Pettingell finished second in the Suburban League indoor, tied for first in the Evanston Relays, and tied for fourth in the Oak Park attraction.

Palatine's crack mile relay team, which clipped off a 3:30.6 clocking last week in a triangular, should battle Highland Park to the wire in this event with Waukegan's high flying Bulldogs the favorite in the half-mile.

Waukegan has a 1:35.6 effort to its credit this spring in the 880 yard relay but could knock about four seconds off that showing Saturday.

Downers Handles Arlington Sophs In Loop Twin-Bill

Downers Grove registered a pair of victories over Arlington High School Saturday in a frosh-soph doubleheader.

The young Trojans racked up 8-0 and 14-5 triumphs over an Arlington team that is still looking for that first West Suburban Conference triumph.

Tagged with three straight setbacks, coach "Bus" Ormsbee's outfit was slated to meet Glenbard West yesterday (Wednesday). A single game at Maine East will be held next Wednesday, April 25.

Downers pounded out 12 hits off the slants of Ken Peters and Dick Anderson in posting the 8-0 victory. The hosts put the game away in the first frame when they pushed over the only runs needed for victory.

Joe Mueller rapped out a triple for Arlington's only long blow.

Score by innings:

Arlington	000 000 0—0- 5 4
Downers	203 021 *—8-12-0

Paul Splittorff and Steve Martin worked on the hill for Arlington in the other game Saturday, but Downers had little trouble with their slants, collecting 14 runs and 18 hits in an effortless 14-5 decision.

Mueller was Arlington's bright spot offensively with a triple and double.

York High Sophs Top Cards, 8-4

A pinch hit, grand slam homer in the sixth inning highlighted York High School's 8-4 victory over Arlington last week as the team launched its 1962 schedule.

The blow by Ed Sinon came with one out and gave York an 8-1 lead.

Arlington rallied for three runs in the visitor's half of the seventh but couldn't catch the host Barons.

Paul Splittorff started on the mound for coach "Bus" Ormsbee's outfit and twirled a creditable game, receiving limited support both at bat and in the field. Dick Anderson worked the sixth and was tagged for the grand slammer.

Jim Ewart and Bob Speer slapped doubles for the Cardinals, accounting for two of the four hits.

Arlington Bumps Waukegan Twice In Tennis Action

Arlington High School's varsity and frosh-soph tennis squads experienced little difficulty in posting identical 5-0 victories over Waukegan's visiting Bulldogs last Friday afternoon.

It marked the second straight varsity victory over a Suburban League representative after three successive setbacks.

Tom Benson, Jim Jakubiec, and Bob Bohac combined talents for the three singles victories on a varsity level although only Bohac was able to turn the trick in straight sets.

BENSON NEEDED three sets to topple Jerry Beger 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, and Jakubiec decisioned Mike Simon 6-8, 6-3, 8-6. Bohac posted a 7-5, 6-1 triumph over Rick Jelovsek.

In varsity doubles play the teams of Chuck Close and Dave Wollerman and Rusty Walters and Rich Wollerman rolled to impressive wins.

Close and Dave Wollerman gained a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Waukegan's Wadzunas and Crawford in No. 1 competition, and Walters and Rich Wollerman recorded a 6-4, 6-4 decision over Winston and Seidenfeld.

Three 5-0 Wins

Arlington's Tennis Squad Captures Quad

That Arlington High School varsity tennis team put on quite a show last Saturday at LaGrange.

Coach Ken Schaller's Cardinals, off and running now after a slow start this season, posted three straight 5-0 victories in competition with host LaGrange, Aurora West, and Wheaton and took team honors in the quad.

With the three victories Arlington High boosted its season standard to 7-3. Author of five straight 5-0 victories, Schaller's Cardinals will move into the important West Suburban Conference competition on Tuesday, April 24, when they journey to Hinsdale to meet the defending conference champion Red Devils.

IN FIRST round action Saturday Arlington initiated proceedings with a 5-0 victory over Aurora West. Tom Benson, Jim Jakubiec, and Bob Bohac won their singles matches in straight sets and only Benson lost a game, disposing of Don Converse 6-1, 6-0 in No. 1 play.

Jakubiec and Bohac both won by 6-0 counts.

In doubles the teams of Chuck close and Dave Wollerman and Rusty Walters and Rich Wollerman also posted effortless victoreis.

In doubles the units of Close and Dave Wollerman and Walters and Rich Wollerman came through with triumphs.

Niles Wins Opener

Prospect High Gains Split in Loop Action

Prospect and Niles West battled for six hours last Saturday in a varsity baseball doubleheader, producing 40 runs and 38 hits, and the end result of the diamond marathon was a split.

Niles' visiting Indians captured the opener 12-5 behind the pitching and hitting of southpaw Kim Harfst, but coach Chuck Aldrich's Knights bounced back with an explosive 15-8 triumph in the night-cap.

The diamond action initiated Interim League warfare for both schools. Overall, 12 Interim teams opened up Saturday and each club gained a split in the six twin-bills.

HARFST PUT on a one-man show in the opening game against Prospect with nine strikeouts and a yield on only five hits in his mound effort and a three-for-four plate mark that included a triple and two singles.

The Indians of coach Jim Phillps jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first and had Prospect 4-1 before the Knights rallied to knot the count with a three-spot in the fifth.

Jerry Locy led off the fifth for Prospect and reached first on an error. Tommy Thomas slapped out a single and following a strikeout, Mike Francek blasted a home run and the Knights were back in the game.

Niles went ahead to stay with a three-run outburst in the top half of the sixth and added five markers in the seventh.

PROSPECT concluded its scoring with a singleton in the seventh on an error, single by Francek, walk, fielder's choice, and error.

The Knights had punched across their initial run in the fourth inning when Ron Aukamp walked, Jim Hogarty reached first via a fielder's choice, and Chuck Halverson singled, Hogarty counting.

Hagarty started on the mound for Prospect with soph Grant Gentry coming in for relief in the seventh.

Francek, an all-league performer as a junior, got off to a good start in Interim play with his homer and single, pacing the Knights at the plate. Harfst and Rick Artwick each had three hits for Niles.

IN THE SECOND game Saturday Prospect fell behind by one run in the second but hit the Indians with five in the top half of the third.

With one out Thomas and Dave Leekley put together successive singles. Francek drew a base-on-balls and then Bob Geller lashed a home run. A single by Aukamp, error, and walk followed and the Knights had their five runs.

ALDRICH'S outfit added three more in the fourth on two walks, a fielder's choice, and singles by Geller, Rich Beck, and Locy. Four more paraded across the plate in the fifth on a hit batsman, three walks, and one base knocks by Aukamp and Beck.

The Knights concluded their scoring in the sixth with three more markers. Thomas, Leekley, and Francek collected three straight singles and with two outs a walk and Beck's third hit terminated the explosion.

Niles put over single runs in the second and third, a pair in the fifth, and four in the seventh off Prospect starter Bob Hanson.

St. Viator Posts 12-7 Victory Over Maryville Academy

St. Viator High posted the first varsity win in the school's athletic history last Friday afternoon when the Lions' baseball team rocked Maryville Academy, 12-7.

Coach Frank Mariani's outfit, a 5-3 victor over Ridgewood's sophs in the season opener, exploded with five runs in the first and third innings and tagged pitcher Ron Singleton for 11 hits in the abbreviated five inning contest.

Batting standouts for St. Viator were Tim Walinski with a 325-foot home run which drove in three runs and Mike Graczyk with two hits and two runs batted in.

JIM VIDT scored three times during the game and Rick Ulbricht, who had two hits in the opener against Ridgewood, connected for two more. Gary Forstan also chipped in with a pair of hits.

Six of Maryville's runs were unearned due to some lapses on defense by the Lions.

The varsity baseball game with St. George of Evanston, originally slated for Saturday, was rescheduled for yesterday (Wednesday).

St. Viator will tackle Fenton's sophomores today (Thursday) and will journey to Tuley next Monday afternoon.

Score by innings:

Arlington Frosh Record Split in Baseball Openers

Arlington High School's frosh baseball teams journeyed to Downers Grove Saturday morning and came home with a split in games that kicked off the 1962 schedule.

Coach Bob Rees' "A" squad dumped the host Downers nine, 7-3, behind the effective slants of Jimmy Kroll, but Art Brownell's "Bs" were tagged with a 4-1 setback.

Arlington's "A" squad will journey to Maine East on Wednesday, April 25, in the next game on the frosh schedule.

KROLL fanned 10 and walked four in pitching the Cards' "A" squad to its 7-3 victory. He had a shutout for four frames, but Downers erupted with three markers in the home half of the fifth.

Bob Benavides slammed out two triples, one with the bases loaded, and also turned a spectacular catch in left field into a clutch double play in the fifth that helped check the Downers rally.

Score by innings:

Arlington	021 400 0—7-6-2
Downers	000 030 0—3-4-3

IN THE "B" encounter Downers pushed across four runs in the fifth inning in gaining the 4-1 decision.

The hosts coupled all three hits with three Arlington errors for their big inning.

Tom Lundgren hurled for the Cards and turned in a creditable performance, fanning 10 and hurling hitless baseball for five of the six stanzas. Tom also slapped out a homer for Arlington's only run.

Score by innings:

Arlington	000 010 0—1-3-4
Downers	000 040 *—4-3-2

Nobody beats Valiant for value!

No wonder '62 Valiant has become such a hot item, with sales shooting upward every day since it was first unveiled. The answer lies in one significant phrase—over-all value.

Unlike other compacts which resemble nothing so much as their full-size relatives, Valiant's styling was originated by Valiant for Valiant to express its carefree personality. This is just one reason that a majority of people, when questioned in survey after survey, voted Valiant America's best-looking compact car!

In addition to distinctive styling, Valiant gives you such quality-engineered Chrysler Corporation mechanical advantages as a new, factory-installed pre-lubrication system that puts 32,000 miles between "lube jobs" on major chassis points—a new oil change cycle that's half as often as before.

There's 101 hp of zip and go in Valiant, too—as standard equipment—and many more features. See how many more, now, at our salesroom.

Force Roll-Off

Check Steve's Bid For Women's Crown

Morton Pontiac from Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights came from behind at the eleventh hour Saturday, whipping Steve's Restaurant in the final and decisive game of the season to force a roll-off in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League.

Steve's gals, from Jeffery Lanes, Wheeling, needed only one more win to sweep the Morton five and claim undisputed, the 1961-62 league crown.

Steve's already holds the first round title, and a three-game sweep Saturday would have given it the second half championship by the slim margin of one-half game.

BUT THE gallant Morton crew, led by Jo Lindahl and Pat Proebstle, both of Arlington Heights, and Alice Alten of Mount Prospect, turned on the steam in the final game to win, 936-817.

The win was even more impressive in the light of the fact that Steve's rolled its highest pin total of the season with a high team Series of 268.

The two teams will meet Saturday, April 28, at Jeffery Lanes, Wheeling, for the first three games of the championship best of seven series. The action will switch Sunday, April 29, to Beverly Lanes for the remaining matches.

IN OTHER league action, Ridge Motors from Sims Bowl, Des Plaines, took three straight from Northfield Bowl to slip into a tie with Steve's for second place in the second round final standings.

Moyle Construction from Country Lanes, Lake Zurich, managed a three-game sweep over hapless River-Rand Bowl to leave the Des Plaines outfit firmly entrenched in last place.

Alice Alten's 595 series, including a 206 game, paced Morton's come from behind battle with Steve's, which won the first two games hands down. Pat Proebstle had a 580 series. Her high game was 205. Jo Lindahl (507) contributed little until the final showdown game when she bowled a hot 211 game.

ANN NEUMANN of Morton Grove paced a well-balanced Steve's attack with a 561 series, including a 212 game. Betty Jacobson had a 219 game, and Janice Crovetti (205) of Highwood, and Delores Harris (200) of Wheeling, chipped in.

Doris Taylor of Waukegan led Ridge in its sweep of Northfield Bowl with a blistering 610 series. The hot hand enabled her to tie for high individual series honors for the night's action with Vi Douglas of Palatine, bowling for Moyle. Doris rolled games of 198, 190 and 222.

Rosemary Babich of North Chicago chipped in with a 592 series, including games of 210 and 212. Edith Wayne of Des Plaines had a 210 game. Ridge rolled a 960 pin total in the first game, tying its previous season high and taking high game team honors for the night.

Wickie Bohnen of Wilmette topped a poor Northfield showing with a 544 series.

Besides tying for high individual series honors (610), Vi Douglas took high game laurels with a red-hot 246 lead off game in Moyle's win over River-Rand. Her other games were 199 and 165.

Joyce Walker of Des Plaines led River-Rand with a 523 series, including a high game of 203.

St. Viator's Tennis Team In Forfeit Win

St. Viator High School won its first tennis match in history the easy way.

The Lions' net squad, coached by Bro. Gerald LaMarre C.S.V., recorded a victory over St. George of Evanston last week when the Dragons failed to show up for the match.

St. Viator was scheduled to host Glenbrook's Spartans of the Interim league this Wednesday and will journey to Tuley next Monday afternoon.

Bowling Exhibition Scheduled

A charter member of the ABC Bowling Hall of Fame is coming to Wheeling Bowl.

Adolph Carlson, a member of the Bowling Promotion Staff of American Machine and Foundry Company, will present a special exhibition at the Wheeling establishment, 102 S. Milwaukee Ave., on Sunday afternoon, April 29, at 2 o'clock.

Carlson had an average of 200 for 17 consecutive meets and a lifetime average of 198 for 26 straight ABC tournaments. He rolled four 1900's in the All Events competition.

Former World's Individual Match Game champion, Adolph has maintained a lifetime average of 197 for 212 games in All-Star competition. Winner of the Illinois State All Events tourney in 1932, he still holds the record for this event with a sparkling 2066.

St. Viator Gains One Golf Victory

St. Viator High School's golf teams, under the direction of Fr. Patrick Durkin, C.S.V., opened their 1962 schedules last week and picked up one victory in competition with St. George of Evanston and Immaculate Conception of Elmhurst.

The Lions' frosh linksmen toppled St. George 7-3 for the school's first golf victory in history, but the sophomore squad was bumped 5½-4½.

On Thursday the varsity Knights from Immaculate Conception recorded a 10-0 victory over St. Viator's soph squad.

St. Viator will host Ridgewood this Thursday, April 19, and then hook up with Fenton and St. Jospeh next Tuesday in a triangular.

Paddock Golf Tourney at Golden Acres

Attention all golfers.

As you sharpen up your games in preparation for competition in the various golf leagues, keep one thing in mind.

Paddock Publication's Inter-League handicap tournament will be held on the third Sunday in August at Golden Acres Country Club.

You'll want to be there — as a contestant!

Brodnan Rolls Big 298 Game!

Joseph Brodnan, 407 N. Wilke, Arlington Heights, posted a 298 game and big 690 series last week in the Businessmen Sportsmen's bowling league at Beverly Lanes in Arlington.

Brodnan rolled his 298 in the opening game and backed that big one with a 204 and 188 for his 690 series.

HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR GOLF

Comedian Shelley Berman, in one of his famous monologues, is presumably asked by a woman, "What's the matter with my child? He keeps stealing things." to which Mr. Berman replied, "Madam, he's a thief."

And the answer as to how to improve your golf game is just as simple: Play more golf.

But how can you do it? Between office hours, commuting, rushing and all such you're lucky if you can play once a weekend. But why not play nine holes every evening? How? Easy . . .

Move your office to the new Williams-Gray Building at 301 East Prospect Avenue in Mount Prospect. Its air-conditioning will send you forth in fine shape for nine holes each evening. You're not only close to home, but close to your favorite course.

Oh, yes, if you're interested in business as well as golf, the building will arrange your offices to suit you — and there's a private parking lot, too. Call John Backman at FRanklin 2-7208 for details. He's still in the old Chicago office awaiting to move into the new building.

Prospect High Sophs Handle Niles, 14-0

Prospect High School's frosh-soph baseball team, coached by Lou Schairer, sandwiched a victory between two setbacks in its first three outings of the 1962 season.

The Knights pasted Niles West 14-0 on Saturday morning but fell to Notre Dame and East Leyden in the two other diamond tussles.

Notre Dame's Dons posted a 10-3 victory over Prospect last Friday in the season lidlifter, and the Franklin Park Eagles rallied for a 16-14 triumph Tuesday afternoon.

THE DONS got to Keith Bergen for nine runs in the first two innings last Friday and coasted home with a seven-run triumph. Tom Wilkes and Steve Mueller followed Bergen to the mound and hurled creditable baseball.

Prospect committed four errors in the contest but did manage to equal the Dons' output of seven base hits.

Gebhart rapped a triple and Lee Geisser collected a double for the Foundry Road Knights.

Score by innings:

Prospect	000 101 1—	3 7 4
Notre Dame	270 010 *—10	7 0

ON SATURDAY the Knights exploded for 13 hits and 14 runs in an impressive 14-0 victory.

Alan Koehler worked on the hill for Schairer's squad and yielded only one hit in a brilliant stint.

Gordon Keeley slapped a triple and double for Prospect and Geisser, Humphrey, and Koehler banged out doubles.

Score by innings:

Prospect	030 028 1—14	13 0
Niles West	000 000 0— 0	1 5

EAST LEYDEN hit the Knights with eight runs in the first frame Tuesday but still had trouble pulling out a victory.

Prospect came fighting back and eventually pulled ahead with a two-run salvo in the sixth. The Knights held a 14-11 lead going into the seventh only to lose the game when the Eagles pushed over five decisive tallies.

Bergen started on the mound for Prospect and was relieved by Wilkes who took the loss. Ralph Kaspari registered a double for the losers.

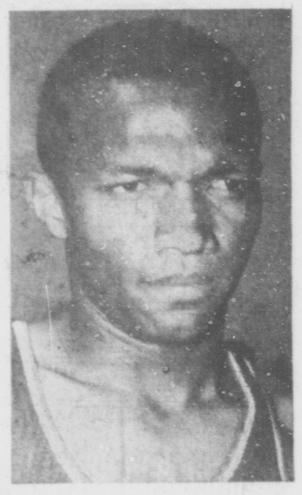
Hampton Captures 3 Slots on Honor Roll

by BOB FRISK



WARREN HAMPTON

Warren Hampton, the pint-sized speedster from East St. Louis High School and defending state champion in the 120 yard high hurdles, earned positions in three events as the individual standout in Paddock Publications' first track and field honor roll for 1962.

Hampton captured berths in the high and low hurdles and broad jump in the first exclusive ranking of the top schoolboy track marks by Paddock's sports department.

Only a few returns are in thus far in the outdoor campaign, but there are enough outstanding marks to indicate another banner cinder campaign in Illinois.

PADDOCK Publications will present its state-wide honor roll each week during the outdoor season and will terminate the rankings with announcement of the 7th Annual All-State team.

Track coaches throughout the state, who have actively taken part in the compilation of top marks during the past few years, are encouraged once again to direct the best performances to the Sports Department, Paddock Publications, Inc., 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, Ill.

East St. Louis' versatile Hampton, who added a fourth in the state lows to his high hurdles crown last spring, is headed for another impressive campaign.

The 5-foot-8 senior already has a :14.5 clocking in the 120 yard highs and his best last year was a :14.3. In addition, Warren has turned in a :20.7 standard in the lows and 21-5 broad jump, all worthy of honor roll consideration.

SEVERAL AREA athletes appear on the initial honor roll, including state record holder and defending state shot put champ Andy Merutka of Palatine. Merutka is included in both the shot put and discus.

Willowbrook's Rick Fornear has one of the best times in the 120 yard high hurdles, and Arlington's Jim Hendricks and Palatine's Bill Hartman are included among the elite of the mile run.

Arlington's John Latta moved into the select listing Tuesday afternoon with :15.5 and :20.8 clockings in the hurdles in a dual meet against Hinsdale.

Palatine's mile relay team posted a solid 3:30.6 in finishing second to LaGrange in last week's triangular at Arlington, and the Lions and Pirates stand 1-2 in that event.

With several big meets coming up on the outdoor schedule there should be a major shuffling of leaders in each of the 14 events.

League Baseball

Arlington, Downers Split Varsity Tests

Arlington High School stretched its varsity baseball winning streak to three in the opener Saturday, then suffered a 6-2 setback in the second game of a West Suburban Conference doubleheader with Downers Grove.

Coach Bob Baker's Cardinals, now standing 3-2 for the season and 3-1 in league warfare, carried a share of second place into the game yesterday (Wednesday) with league leading Glenbard West.

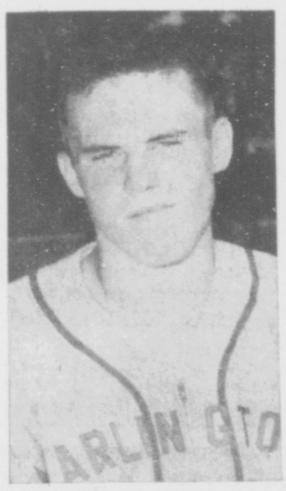
Right hander John Lane, expected to be the mound mainstay for Arlington this spring, turned in a route-going performance in Saturday's lidlifter, yielding only four hits and fanning nine but experiencing some unusual difficulty with his control.

THE FAST-BALLING senior walked nine men and was in trouble in every inning, but he managed to pitch himself out of the jams and chalk up the victory.

The Cardinals jumped off to a 4-0 first inning lead en route to their 7-2 triumph Saturday. Two errors, a walk, and singles off the bats of Ross Retterer and Ken Layden accounted for the quartet of counters.

Downers counted a single run in the second and pulled within two with another in the fifth, but Baker's aggregation used two hits, a walk, error and wild pitch for two runs in the bottom half of the fifth.

JOE WERTHEIMER led off with a base hit and Ray Miller followed suit with his second straight safety of the game. Both boys eventually scored Arlington's fifth and sixth runs of the contest.



RAY MILLER

The locals added an insurance marker in the sixth on an error, single by Erv Gramit and sacrifice.

In gaining the victory Lane fanned nine, walked eight, but left 12 Downers runners on base.

Miller was Arlington's top swinger with two hits. Layden drove in three runs and Retterer knocked in a pair.

IN THE SECOND game the Cards tallied two quick runs in the first inning on hits by Miller, Rog Lindstrom, and Vince Furlong, a walk, wild pitch, and error, but Downers got one back in its half of the first and tied the score in the third.

The host Trojans decided the contest with a two spot in the fourth on two walks and hits by pitcher Jerry Kucera and catcher Tom Sheldon.

Two more came a cross in the sixth as Kucera and Glen Wirtanen put together back-to-back singles and Arlington committed two costly errors.

AFTER THE first frame the Cardinals had trouble with the slants of Kucera. Only Erv Gramit and Retterer were able to reach the right hander for safeties in the six final innings and neither led to any score.

"Buzz" Williams worked on the hill for Arlington's Cards, fanning two and walking seven. Kucera retired five on strikes and walked three in picking up Downers Grove's first league victory for 1962.

Arlington picked up five hits during the contest, one each by Miller, Lindstrom, Retterer, Furlong, and Gramit. With the one safety Miller's plate average for the season reached .357. Retterer carried a .429 mark after the first five games but had batted seven less times than Miller.

Knights' Frosh Nines Win Pair; 'A' Unit Falls

Prospect High's frosh baseball teams chalked up two victories in three games as they launched their 1962 schedules within the past week.

The Knights' frosh "A" squad stopped East Leyden 5-2 after suffering a tight, 9-8 loss to Niles West, and the "B" unit came up with an impressive 15-2 conquest of Niles.

With Greg Kowal and Dan Cooper working on the mound the Prospect "A" squad rolled to its victory over East Leyden Tuesday. The Knights collected four runs in the third inning and added an insurance marker in the sixth.

Lytle and Mader rapped out doubles for two of the eight hits.

Score by innings:

East Leyden	100 001 0—2-4-8
Prospect	004 001 *—5-8-4

LAST SATURDAY Niles West came up with seven runs in the final inning to pull out a 9-8 victory over the Knights. Kowal, Miller, and Junkunc toiled on the mound for Prospect and yielded 10 hits over the seven innings.

Indians Stop Prospect High Knights, 7-5

New Trier's Indians of the Suburban League overcame a three-run first inning deficit and went on to register a 7-5 victory over Prospect High School last week at the Foundry Road diamond.

The Winnetka school tied the count in the third inning and put across the decisive runs in the fifth off the slants of soph Grant Gentry.

Gentry, working in his first varsity game, relieved starter Jim Hogarty at the start of the fifth yielded two walks and two hits before retiring the side.

NEW TRIER had another rally going in the top half of the sixth with four straight hits, but darkness intervened and the score reverted back to the fifth.

The Indians initiated the scoring with a pair of runs in the top half of the first inning, but Prospect bounced back with a five spot in its turn at bat.

Tommy Thomas drilled a single leading off and after two strikeouts the Knights received five straight walks. Jerry Locy provided the long blow of the uprising with a two-bagger.

CHUCK ANDREWS and Ron Aukamp laced out singles in the second but were stranded and Chuck Halverson registered a single in the third. That was the extent of the Knights' offensive attack for the afternoon.

New Trier pushed over two runs in the first on a walk and two singles and added three in the third on two errors and two singles.

Hogarty fanned four in his four inning stint for Prospect, and Gentry picked up two strikeouts in his single frame.

Marian Central Tops St. Viator

Marian Central of Woodstock took advantage of four St. Viator errors and went on to record a 6-1 victory over the Lions Monday afternoon.

The hosts' varsity punched across five runs in the second inning and added a single marker in the third. The contest was cut short after four innings because of darkness.

Jim Vidt worked on the hill for St. Viator and deserved a better fate. He hurdled creditable baseball but didn't get the needed support in the field.

RON ROSE scored the Lions' only run in the top half of the fourth inning. He reached first base on a walk and eventually rode home on a passed ball.

The loss snapped a two-game St. Viator winning streak. The Lions, consisting primarily of freshmen, had bumped the Ridgewood sophs and Maryville Academy varisty in their first two games.

St. Joseph's varsity dumped the Lions Tuesday afternoon, 7-5. Complete details on that contest were unavailable.

St. Viator was slated to meet St. George yesterday (Wednesday) and will tackle Fenton's sophomores today (Thursday) at home. The Lions will journey to Tuley next Monday afternoon.

Cards Edge York High

Arlington High School was due to win one of those "cliff-hangers" with the York Dukes of Elmhurst.

The Cardinals suffered two heartbreaking losses to the highly regarded York High basketball team in the winter, one in overtime and the other by two points in the last two seconds.

Last week Arlington battled York in varsity baseball and this time the varsity Cards were equal to the task. In an error-filled contest on a chilled, overcast afternoon coach Bob Baker's nine posted an exciting 4-3 victory in an abbreviated five inning affair.

ARLINGTON pushed over a pair of runs in each of the first and third frames and then held on as York rallied to pull within a single marker in the visitor's half of the fourth.

"Buzz" Williams started on the hill for Arlington and was relieved by John Lane in the fourth frame, Williams receiving credit for the victory. Lane, a returning letterman, saw his first action of the season as he had been nursing an injury incurred in practice.

Arlington counted two runs in the first inning without the aid of a base hit. Five walks forced in two runs, but Kenny Leppla came in from the bullpen to relieve the wild Jim Anderson and check the Cardinal rally.

THE DUKES tallied a single run in the top half of the third, only to have Arlington bounce back with two of its own in the home half of the frame.

An error, single by Ken Layden, stolen base, and line smash by Denny Koeppen brought in two runs and boosted the locals' lead to 4-1. Ross Retterer had reached second when Al Malecha fielded his bounder then threw wildly past first base. Layden singled Retterer to third to set up Koeppen's clutch work.

Arlington committed three successive errors at the outset of the fourth inning but escaped with only two York runners crossing the plate and still held a one-run advantage.

IN A WIERD fifth inning Jim Stone, who pinch hit and walked for York, tried to steal second. The Cards, sure they had nailed him at second, walked off the field.

The path to third and home was clear but confusion reigned and no attempt to run was offered. Arlington returned as Stone was safe at second, but right hander Lane checked the proceedings with a game-killing strikeout of Ron Paulson.

The box score:

Arlington (4)	ab	r	h	York (3)	ab	r	h

Suburban Products Go on Display April 26

The Northwest Suburban Manufacturers Association will hold its eighth bi-annual products show Thursday and Friday, April 26 and 27, in the big exhibition hall of O'Hare Inn, Higgins and Mannheim Roads.

Fifty-one firms, ranging from electronics manufacturers to banks, have reserved exhibit space for the show, which will present a cross-section of business and industry in the booming northwest suburban area surrounding O'Hare International Airport.

A special highlight will be the crowning of a Queen of the Show, to be picked from nominations made by member firms.

The queen and her court will be feted at a luncheon Thursday, April 26, at O'Hare Inn, before the exhibition hall opens its doors at 5 p.m., and will be presented at the show in a special ceremony Friday, April 27, at 8 p.m.

THE SHOW will be open to the public Thursday from 5 to 10 p.m., and Friday from noon to 10 p.m.

William L. Kennedy of A. J. Kennedy & Co., Inc., Franklin Park printing concern, show chairman, said the show has a three-fold purpose:

Q. Is it really considered good manners to use the handkerchief while at the dinner table?

A. This is not so much a questioning of "good manners" as of "necessity." Certainly, when the necessity arises, one must use the handkerchief at the table—but do it as inconspicuously and as quietly as possible.

Lennox Report Tells Why Women Like Air Conditioning

Air conditioning is almost always bought to relieve conditions of excess heat or humidity, but once installed, it is appreciated for reasons seldom contemplated by the purchaser. This is the gist of a report recently received by Circle-Aire, Inc.

The report tells of an experiment conducted by Lennox Industries, Inc., in which the company invited three random groups of homemakers, all of whom had experienced Lennox air conditioning for at least one summer, to meet with company officials and relate their experiences.

THE FIRST luncheon was held in Chicago, the second in Los Angeles and the third in New York.

The women were asked to comment freely on what they liked and disliked about air conditioning; why they had bought it; and what it had meant to their living pattern.

Substantially similar comments were made, regardless of the commentor's area of residence.

WITH A FEW exceptions, these typical air conditioner owners had bought their equipment to escape heat and humidity. In some cases, the motivating factor was an allergy such as asthma or hay fever.

Probably the most frequently mentioned supplementary benefit was freedom from dirt. Time after time, the luncheon guests remarked that draperies, slip covers, carpets and rugs, and their own clothing seemed to keep clean longer.

One woman who habitually changed slipcovers every spring and fall reported that she had not even removed them for two years, and expected that she would not have to have them cleaned any oftener than that.

THE ABILITY to have hot meals all summer long was another favorite supplementary benefit. Women with children said the youngsters ate better when offered hot meals—possible because of air conditioning—and the smaller children rested better at nap time and at night.

Sleeping habits of adults were markedly improved, also, in air conditioned homes, it was reported. Entertainment habits also changed in that the women reported they stayed home oftener instead of going out to seek the cool air of theaters, night clubs and restaurants.

People with air conditioning found that (sometimes to their dismay) their friends dropped in with increased frequency.

And the gals loved to be able to dress up in real party frocks instead of having to meet the heat with "hot weather" dresses. (BB

Coin Telephone Has Long History

Coin telephones have come a long way from the ornate old booth originally tried out in Chicago way back in 1894 as an experiment, and the most recent innovation is a coin phone unit built flush into a wall such as the one installed in McCormick Place.

The coin telephone as we know it today was developed in 1888, and first put in service at Hartford, Conn., the next year. This was 12 years after the telephone was invented, and coin telephones have been an important part of the telephone service every since.

The pay phone was undoubtedly among the first coin-operated devices, but definitely not the first.

COIN-OPERATED toys and an electric coin-operated cash register were devised long before anyone could drop a coin in a phone.

The first coin phones in the Chicago area were 13 "dime automatics" put in in Chicago in 1894. These could be used only to make 10 cent calls, but became so popular they gradually replaced other phones requiring payment to the proprietor of the store in which the phone was located.

The design of the coin telephone—standardized shortly before World War I—served so well it didn't change greatly until a few years ago. Recently, to make it more convenient and pleasant for customers to use coin phones, the Bell System has been working on new designs for both phone booths a nd the phones themselves.

The telephone company, of course, has many of the same problems vending machine operators encounter with the use of their equipment.

BURGLARS try to rifle coin boxes and some people still try to use slugs in coin phones.

However, the telephone company can equip coin phones with devices which alert police or a nearby telephone office when someone tampers with the equipment, and devices which automatically reject bogus coins or alert the local central office. (BB

Woody Locale

Over 100 different varieties of wood have been counted in a single half-square-mile area of the Amazon basin.

IN GRANDPA'S DAY, it was quite an event to step into a telephone booth to make a phone call. You sat at a desk fitted with a telephone mouthpiece and paid an attendant who usually locked the booth between customers. This is a sketch of a typical ornate booth common to the era. (BB

THE LATEST in coin-operated telephones is the type illustrated above, which is set flush into a wall. This type has been installed in McCormick Place in Chicago, and in some other public buildings.

Graser Completes 45 Years on Milwaukee

SIDNEY J. GRASER

In recognition of his 45 years of employment with the Milwaukee Road, Sidney J. Graser of Roselle has received a silver pass, good for lifetime travel on all Milwaukee Road trains, from company president William J. Quinn.

Graser, chief clerk in the general superintendent of transportation office, lives at 23 E. Woodworth Ave., Roselle. He has lived in Roselle the past 34 years.

Graser started with the Milwaukee Road in 1917 in the company's Galewood yard office and worked elsewhere in the Chicago terminal area before going to the Road's transportation department in Chicago Union Station in 1929.

AMONG THE assignments which he has handled was that of calculating clearances for the movement of outsized rail shipments through tunnels, beneath overpasses, and at other restricted clearance points.

This work is coordinated with the company's engineering department so that the exact clearances on a given railroad line — either on the Milwaukee Road or connecting lines — can be calculated and taken into account before the shipment leaves the point of origin. (BB

X-ray Tech Discusses Her Career

Miss Virginia Milligan, of 515 S. I-Oka, Mount Prospect, represented X-ray technicians at the 14th annual Chicago area career conference at the Illinois Institute of Technology recently.

The conference is sponsored by the Chicago Sun-Times, Chicago Technical Societies Council, and the Institute.

MISS MILLIGAN participated in a panel discussion on the health professions with Dr. Opal El Heplar, associate professor of pathology, Northwestern University medical school, as moderator.

Miss Milligan is chief technician in the office of Dr. R. M. Cassidy, radiologist, Oak Park. She also teaches X-ray at St. Anne's Hospital, and is president of the Illinois State Society of X-ray Technicians. (BB

Noon Swimming Is Latest in Fringes

The good villagers of Addison, who use Factory Road in the new addition to its industrial district during the noon hour, do a "double take" when they glance through the large aluminum framed thermopane windows of the newest factory in the district.

Inside, employes of General Pool Corporation can be seen enjoying the latest in fringe benefits—a swimming pool.

Coffee breaks, smoke periods, washup time, a 40-hour week, 25-hour week and other fringes are now topped with the lunch hour swimming period.

GENERAL POOL, the world's largest manfacturer of pre-fabricated fiberglass swimming pools, are believers in their own product, to the point of installing a large kidneyshaped pool in their general office area, providing recreation for their own employes.

The pool serves a dual purpose in providing a reservoir for water cooling of the air conditioning system, thus effecting a saving in water cost.

This modern manufacturing facility is the latest addition to Sturm-Bickel Corporation's industrial development in Addison. The structure was built by LeRoy Haubner Construction Company. (BB

Dr. M. P. Meisenheimer Attends Scientific Meeting

Dr. M. P. Meisenheimer, of 107 E. McDonald Road, Mount Prospect, attended a four-day scientific meeting recently in Las Vegas, sponsored by the American Academy of General Practice.

At the Academy's 14th annual scientific assembly, Dr. Meisenheimer heard 27 top medical authorities discuss aging, facial injuries, allergies, measles vaccines, diabetes, backaches, "electronic" medicine and other subjects.

HE ALSO viewed 154 scientific technical exhibits of research results, new drugs, instruments and other equipment.

The Kansas City-based Academy believes the pace of medical progress, pouring from laboratories and research centers, means doctors must keep "going back to school."

For this reason, all Academy members a re required to complete 50 hours of postgraduate study a year. The Academy claims to be the only medical association which enforces a postgraduate study requirement. (BB

Begin Work On O'Hare Carousel

Several sports celebrities set the necessary gears in motion recently for construction of a jet-age recreation and housing center near O'Hare field.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the $8 million O'Hare Carousel at River Road and Balmoral marked beginning of construction, which is scheduled to be completed by Sept. 5.

Two of the nation's well-known sports figures turned the first shovelful of earth. Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and Bill George, captain of the Chicago Bears professional football team, did the honors, with Bears owner-coach George Halas looking on.

MILTON K. Joseph of Glencoe, developer of the project, said O'Hare Carousel will be the first living-recreation project in the nation.

"It is our firm belief," he said, "that it is up to the community to offer recreation and relaxation to the residents. With the O'Hare Lanes recreation center, we have done just that for those who will reside in our 300 apartments."

Spearheading the recreational facilities for residents of the one- and two-bedroom apartments and studio quarters are Larry Donovan of Bensenville and George.

PLANS FOR the center include 48 Brunswick bowling lanes complete with the latest in automatic pinsetters and equipment. In addition, 10 Brunswick Gold Crown billiard tables will be installed.

To complete indoor recreation facilities, Donovan outlined plans for an 18-hole indoor miniature golf course, an Olympic-size indoor swimming pool, a handball court, ping pong and other game rooms, a gymnasium, steam and massage rooms for men and women.

A full-time instructor for the health club will assist members. With the exception of the pool, all facilities will be made available to the public.

FOR OUTDOOR sports lovers, Donovan and George detailed plans for a tennis court, badminton court and outdoor ice skating rink.

Included in the final blueprints for the carousel are dining facilities and cocktail lounges operated by Nielsen's restaurant, a beauty salon, barber shop, coffee house, public library and a club room for residents.

James L. Metcoff, Glencoe, architect for the center, endorsed the new concept of planning. "The complete living and recreation facilities may well become standard features of progressive communities," he said.

Scheduled for completion by Sept. 5, the living quarters and shops will be under the management of Seay and Thomas, Chicago real estate management firm, while the recreational facilities of O'Hare Lanes will be operated by Donovan and George. (BB

"SPORTS NOTABLES" Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, and Bill George, Chicago Bears captain, teamed up on the gold shovel to break ground recently for the new O'Hare Carousel at River Road, and Balmoral in Rosemont. Bruning Co. Introduces New Electrostatic Copier

A new electrostatic copying machine which makes up to 15 letter-size copies per minute (up to 5,000 per day) for material costs of as little as 2.5 cents each was introduced last week by the Charles Bruning Co., Inc., of Mount Prospect.

"The new Copytron 2000 is expected to contribute significantly to the company's sales and earnings," declared Robert A. Munch, president of the firm which manufactures copying machines and related equipment.

"We feel confident that our years of research and development plus exhaustive field testing have produced in the Copytron 2000 a machine that will be an important factor in the nation's paperwork future."

MUNCH SAID the machine, which is about the size of a secretarial typing desk, causes an electrostatic transfer of an image from an original to a sheet of sensitized paper.

"Bond paper type copies are made letter-perfect and perfectly dry from any original and virtually any color including ball point," he said. "The machine will accept paper up to 11 inches wide by any practical length."

The "2000" features a gray, two-tone hammerloid finish with stainless steel trim. It will be available for delivery in July, 1962.

COST OF THE machine with Bruning's new automatic feed system will be $2,595 and without the automatic feed, $2,095. Lease option plans also will be available.

"At 2.5 cents per copy, Copytron is now the lowest cost-per-copy, all-purpose copier on the market," Munch said. "At the same time, production output can double that of other electrostatic copiers now available." (BB

Skilled Tailors Scarce

The quality men's clothing industry is finding it increasingly difficult to obtain skilled craftsmen to perform many of the tailoring operations that go into a fine suit of clothes.

This was the substance of a recent interview with Morton J. Baum, president of the Hickey-Freeman Company, and chairman of the Board of Clothing Manufacturers Association.

Baum said his company leaves no stone unturned in trying to find skilled tailors, and many of his employes are foreign-born.

HE SAID that although many industries now need fewer skilled people because of technological advances and automation the clothing industry is crying for skilled people.

One of the particular problems is that the tailoring skill is difficult to master, and generally takes many years of apprenticeship and training. The shortage of skilled tailors is so acute that some companies have a full-time program of scouring the world for qualified people.

Baum said his company is in almost constant touch with immigration authorities and the charitable organizations responsible for displaced persons, hoping to obtain craftsmen.

For the most part, tailors that have come to this country in recent years are from Italy. This is because the tailoring skill is developed in Italy, and since the country is relatively poor, many people seek better opportunities.

HICKEY-Freeman has hired many Italian tailors who were able to come to this country under various refugee or displaced persons programs, particularly from Northern Africa.

Baum said 64 per cent of his company's present production force is foreign born, and 12.5 per cent of this group was employed by Hickey-Freeman prior to 1947. (BB

African Art Exerts A Modern Influence

By LUCILE ERNST

The enormous influence of African art upon modern art is a pretty well known fact to almost everyone.

We can find real pleasure and understanding in the works of the African artist who simplifies his line, exaggerates proportions in order to express an idea, and has so much respect for his materials he will retain the essence of wood or ivory, rather than destroy it to achieve naturalism. This is precisely the attitude of the modern artist.

Modern art, good and bad, is easy to find, but it is seldom we find a really good exhibit of African art. We are extremely fortunate that Lake Forest College is presenting a Conferenc on Africa, plannd by the students for visiting African students and dignitaries.

THE THEME of the Conference, "Understanding the New Africa" will deal with the direction and options of Africa at present, and America's involvement with her future.

The exhibit of African Art, which will be displayed from April 12 to April 23, is a focal point of contact.

Herbert Baker has loaned his private collection to Lake Forest College for the exhibition. Many of the pieces have been exhibited at the Art Institute. However, some have never been exhibited before and have only recently been brought out of Africa.

ONE GAINS a deeper insight of African art if it is understood that the African artist is thoroughly trained, after serving an apprenticeship of 20 years or more. He is involved in producing religeous art and so must express himself in well known and easily understood symbols.

This is limiting in a sense, yet these same limitations produced some of the greatest of European art.

The African artist enjoys the respect and admiration of his tribesman and deserves it. Although his tools are simple, the artist's mastery of his tools is evident in any piece of African sculpture.

THE RELIGIOUS motivation which inspires much of African art is ancestor worship and the powers of nature. It is often believed that a carving provided the dwelling place for the spirit of an ancestor, and protection of the ancestor was achieved by possession of the carving.

Within the same tribe there is often a great variety of sculpture for they are used for different purposes.

In this exhibit one m ay see three pieces of Bambora Sculpture, each entirely different in concept and workmanship. The Kona mask was encrusted with straw, blood and mud, and was worn to watch over and settle questions of morality within a village.

THE SMALL antelope, beautifully designed with long horizontal lines, was worn at crop fertility ceremonies to honor Tji Wara who first gave the Bamoras a knowledge of cultivation. The third piece of sculpture is a marionette, a highly stylized human head decorated with pieces of metal, which rises over an elongated neck. The marionettes are used to explain the legends of the village.

At the present moment Africa needs to be understood by all Americans. As with any culture, the easiest way to understand a people is to know their art. Art communicates across time and space and brings understanding the way no other medium can.

THREE VILLAINS BOLD AND BAD. The Coachman, with "Honest John" and Giddy, plot more trouble for the hapless little puppet, "Pinocchio," in Walt Disney's full-length cartoon adaptation in color by Technicolor of the classic children's story by C. Collodi. It's a Buena Vista release. Opens Friday at the Des Plaines Theatre — Co-feature is "The Colossus of Rhodes."

JIMINY CRICKET has the tough assignment of being conscience of "Pinocchio," the puppet brought to life in the Walt Disney full-length cartoon produced in color and starting Friday at the Golf-Mill theatre. (Bill INGRID THULIN tells Glenn Ford that despite her love for him she cannot desert her husband in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." Based on the famous novel, the CinemaScope color production was flimed largely on locations in Paris and the French countryside. The film is featured at the Catlow Theatre, Barrington. (Bill

Heart to Heart Talk

JIMINY CRICKET, appointed conscience to "Pinocchio," tells the live puppet he must learn how to tell right from wrong. The lad learns the hard way in Walt Disney's full-length adaptation of the famous classic, in color by technicolor, starting Friday at 10 a.m. at the Arlington Theatre for a two-week run.

Marshall Moses Is New Theatre Leader

At its monthly meeting last week, Village Theatre elected Marshall Moses as its new president. All others on the slate of candidates nominated for the executive board were, like Moses, elected unanimously by the membership.

Accepting the gavel from outgoing president John Lobenhofer, Moses said his foremost aim as president will be to promote the growth of Village Theatre.

Other officers elected were Ann Hume, vice president; Gladys Pownall, secretary; Al Estrella, treasurer; Harriet Smith, educational workshop director; Glenn Erickson, playreading committee chairman.

MOSES IS immediate past vice president and was responsible for the programs distributed to patrons at the plays. His organizational touch was evident from the fact that he sold more program space to advertisers than Village Theatre had ever sold before. He has been with the group seven years.

Mrs. Hume's chief duties as vice president will be public relations, publicity and programs. In her five years as a Village Theatre member, she has headed educational workshop, acted (most recently in "Toni), directed programs for monthly meetings, and served on committees and as crew head.

A graduate of Northwestern University's school of speech, she teaches dramatics to children through the Rolling Meadows Park District program.

MRS. POWNALL, the new secretary, has been on the playreading committee served as stage manager, handled publicity, headed crews and acted (a major role in "Picnic"). Her duties as secretary will include acting as social chairman.

Estrella, treasurer, has been with the group five years and active in many capacities.

The new workship head, Mrs. Smith, has a masters degree from Northwestern University's school of speech, and has taught dramatics professionally. She has been with the group eight years, and supervised children's drama in Cleveland before coming to Arlington Heights.

ERICKSON, the new playreading committee head, is a past president of the former Palatine Players, where he assumed many duties. He has since been active in a variety of capacities with Village Theatre.

Selection of the executive board for the 1962-63 season, and receipt of the playreading committee's report on the plays chosen for production next season (to be announced later), clears the way for members to concentrate on the most important matter remaining this season — the final production.

This will be on May 31, June 1 and 2, when Village Theatre presents "Solid Gold Cadillac."

'King of Kings' Is Really a Big Show

Three years in preparation and filmed at two of the largest studios in Spain as well as on vast locations, everything about Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "King of Kings" is big.

This also applies to the male stars in the Samuel Bronston production.

Robert Ryan, who portrays John the Baptist, stands 6 foot 3 inches; Frank Thring, who plays Herod Antipas, is 6 foot 2 inches; Jeffrey Hunter, portraying Jesus, is 6 foot 1 inch, as is also Harry Guardino, seen as the revolutionary Barabbas.

HURD Hatfield, the film's Pontius Pilate, is a six-footer, with the runners-up, Ron Randell (Lucius the Centurion) and Rip Torn (Judas), measuring only one inch less.

Holding his own with the stars is Nicholas Ray, director of the Biblical drama. Ray didn't need to stand on a chair to give his orders. He measures 6 foot 2 inches.

A Samuel Bronston production, "King of Kings" unfolds an epic story of the life and times of Christ.

TOGETHER with the players named above, other principals in a cast of thousands include Siobhan McKenna, Viveca Lindfors, Rita Gam, Carmen Sevilla, Brigid Bazlen and Guy Rolfe.

Filmed on locations in Spain, the spectacular picture was filmed in 70mm Super Technirama Technicolor.

"King of Kings" starts an exclusive northwest suburban showing next Friday, April 27, at the Golf-Mill Theatre. (Bill

Fence Post 'Well Read'

I wish to thank you for printing my Fence Post letters on Feb. 22 and March 29. I must add that I really did not realize so many people do read the Fence Post, as I received about 32 commentaries relative to my letters. I am happy to report that 30 of them concurred with my views, and two dissented plus Miss Wright's dissention which was published in your issue of April 5.

As Miss Wright indicated, you have been very generous to devote the amount of space that you have to my dissertations; therefore, if space limitations prevents you from printing the enclosed answer, possibly you could find room to print the first, second, and final paragraphs. I then ask that you send the entire letter to her, as I do not have her address:

JANE WRIGHT'S article published April 5 is at best a feeble attempt to smear me. These smear tactics are being used extensively by those liberal proponents of the New Frontier who cannot tolerate dissent.

She calls me a "fuzzy thinking demagogue," which name she could dispel by reading the second paragraph of my article in the Fence Post on Feb. 22. She also calls me an "inaccurate historian," yet she fails to state and correct even one of my so-called inaccurate historical statements; what's more, I defy her to do so and let the readers pass judgement.

Miss Wright, you insult the intelligence of the readers of this newspaper when you simply use name calling and smear tactics to discredit the opinions of another. I defy you to either state my inaccurate statements, or to give your own opinions and to give the logical reasoning for your opinions, and by doing so you may win your point and have us join you in your views.

Pancake Day Is A Big Success

Members of the Wheeling Pancake Day Committee report the event was a tremendous success and wish to thank area residents, their friends and neighboring Lodges and Chapters for their support. It was a first endeavor for the group to combine efforts of the Masonic Lodge, Order of the Eastern Star and Rainbow for Girls and sponsor an affair of this type.

According to Chairman Wallace Lischett over 1200 people attended, some coming from as far away as 50 miles to fill up on pancakes and sausage. He would also like to thank the following who generously donated: Aunt Jemina Company, Continental Coffee Company, Adams Hartman House, Union Hotel, Bornhoffs Dairy, San-Disposal, LaRay's Restaurant, Ray Miller, Al Frank and Don Paisley, The Wheeling Fire Department and Chamber of Commerce.

COMMENTS OF the event were encouraged and tabulation of the poll showed there were many satisfied patrons. Many of the comments stated, "They were just like mother makes, Coffee excellent, Will be back next year."

The committee is very gratified that the event was so well received by the community and intend to make it an annual spring affair.

Where's Outcry Of 'Righteous'?

I have waited in vain for the Paddockian voices that boomed out so strongly against the "extremism of the Right" to lay down also a verbal barrage against the "extremism of the Left" as evidenced in the book "The Liberal Papers."

This book is published and sponsored by the Liberal Project, a group of Democrats from the House of Representatives formed in 1959 to influence Democratic Party policy. It has been called "the first documented example of wild political extremism to come from either major party."

THE AUTHORS would have the U.S. go to the following extremes: Recognize Red China and East Germany, sponsor Red China in the UN, disarm West Germany, give up U. S. missile bases in Europe, unilaterally make acts of disarmament and let the Reds listen-in on our DEW Line warning system.

In addition to the 35 Democratic Congressmen, 40 scholars, scientists and foreign policy "experts" were consultants in the project. One of the leading advisers is on the National Security Council, our highest-level strategic planning agency. Some others also are advisers to the Administration. Perhaps this explains why our government is soft on our two main deterrent programs: the B-70 bomber and the Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile.

English radicals of the Left chant, "Better Red than Dead." Now ours have come forth with a "Surrender on the Installment Plan." Yet the Paddockian voices which finger-pointed "shame" at extremism when manifested from the Right are stilled when it is manifested from the Left. No doubt many others have noticed this also.

Mother Alarmed By Incident

Some people might say I'm over protective of my children. I have a little girl, 4 and a boy 6, and a baby boy 3 months. I always know where they are and they never leave the yard unless I'm with them. Their friends always come over to my house to play.

Yesterday something happened which seems improbable—a person that comes to our house every day and to everyone's house daily exposed himself among other things to my little girl and might have done worse if I hadn't been on the scene immediately. He was in a car. I called the county police—they finally arrived two hours later, and after they caught this person and he admitted everything they (the police) advised me not to sign a complaint because he was a nice boy, and had confessed.

The deputy sheriff also said he was emotionally upset, and they wanted to let him gather up his personal belongings and put him in the Navy—which would probably straighten him out.

I will sign that complaint to protect someone else's little girl. How many other little girls has he done this to who either didn't tell their mothers or whose mothers didn't report it? I just thank God that I'm always watching my children and believe me—the example of these policemen makes me believe that they are on the side of the criminal instead of the victim.

Press Coverage Was Impressive

In the recent primary campaign I think many of us were impressed by the quantity—and the quality— of the people who devoted time and energy to work for candidates and principles they believed in. This primary election was, as it always should be, a matter of concern to citizens as well as to party leaders.

On behalf of my candidate for Congress, Donald Rumsfeld, I would like to express our gratitude to all the citizens in the western townships who worked for his nomination, in many cases at personal sacrifice.

WE ARE now beginning preparations for the November General Election, for which we hope to call on these same people plus other volunteers. Donald Rumsfeld can stand on his own merits as a candidate for Congress, but he will need continued efforts by his supporters to insure his election in the fall. We can no longer count on the 13th District as "safely" Republican.

May we also commend Paddock Publications on its coverage of this and other primary races. Your candidate interviews, in particular, were no doubt of much value to voters seeking to make intelligent choices from the field of aspirants.

Personal Property Tax Is Severe Example of Injustice

What everyone talks about at this time of the year is personal property tax. I have discussed this subject with a dozen people and they allare opposed to paying it because they see no justic in such a tax.

Yet each and everyone is submitting to it. Why? Because they do not wish to be tax delinquent and they do not contest simply because they have no mastery of the English language and do not want to be made fools of.

I KNOW a couple which is a very striking example of injustic. These two old folks dwell in an extended garage which the old man put together little by little. There is no indoor plumbing or toilet facilities. Water is drawn from a well and there is a toilet shed outside. As for furniture, they have a bed and a few broken down chairs and a table, a space heater and a beaten down sofa. They have no savings nor a substantial income from any other source other than $168 a month from old age pension.

Both need medical attention badly and can't afford it. This is not the condition that any of us would like to be in. And do you know that these two poor people pay $20 for personal tax along with a myriad of other taxes that we are compelled to pay. If they sold their personal belongings they will not realize $20.

THIS IS ONLY one case. There are many more. Often I wonder if the big fat politician is not taking advantage. I have not seen a politician to live modestly. Where does the personal tax go?

If a tax is to be levied it should be fair and for everyone. The personal property tax is neither fair nor for everyone. Some people have never heard of it and some are taxed so high that it is outrageous.

Justice! Where is it? I wonder.

Sewing Contest Coverage Cited

I just do not have words to express our thanks for the very splendid work you have done covering the sewing contest in conjunction with Vogue patterns. It is most outstanding. Apathy Concerns Candidate-Loser

As a recent and very well-defeated candidate in the past District 214 school election race I would like to take this opportunity to thank those who supported me.

I would also like to express my thanks to Mrs. Helene Bristol for the excellent questions she saked each candidate. These questions were most enlightening and I feel helped get interest of those who voted. Her coverage of the election was most impartial, as it should have been.

MY MAIN concern is the apathy of the voters in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove area. Until these people realize that the main voting power lies in the two large population centers of Arlington Heights, and Mount Prospect, they will never be able to fully supporrt a candidate for any office, that is run in competition with those areas.

May I take this opportunity to assure the present high school board of my support and may our school children continue to benefit and grow through their wise and fair administration.

Wild Flowers Need Protection

As I walked through my woods today, shivering in the cold April wind and thinking spring is never going to come, I looked down and saw the spring beauties peeping out from under the leaves. Soon the ground will be covered with white trillium, the three-petaled white flowers, and with the waxy white blood root.

As conservation chairman of the Garden Club and conservation committeeman for the state conference at Monticello, I wish to make a plea that everyone please let the flowers grow and don't pick them.

THERE IS a state conservation law forbidding anyone to pick the trillium, blood root, birds foot violet, columbine, shooting star, squirrel corn, lady's slipper, and gentian.

If the trillium is picked, it won't bloom the next year and gradually the trillium is destroyed.

Dutchman's breeches, may apples, and the spring beauties may be picked sparingly. Our state flower, the violet, may be picked all one cares to pick it

WE ARE so fortunate to live in this locality where there are so many wild flowers. Won't all of you please help to guard them so we will always have them?

Unsigned Letter Raps Board Move

Because the author of a letter to the Fence Post was not willing to sign his name, the letter is not being published.

It was critical of the Palatine Board of Local Improvements regarding the proposed lights in the business district. He claimed the majority of businessmen who favor the lights are not property owners. He disagreed with the statement that renters of business property were willing to pay additional rent if the project was approved.

The above paragraph covers statements made in the lengthy communication.—Editor.

'Contour' Is Trade-Mark

An advertisement in Palatine Ill. Enterprise dated March 1, 1962, in which you represent your Electric Blankets as "Contour" has come to our attention.

We are writing to inform you that "Contour" is a registered trade-mark of Pacific Mills Domestics.

Pacific Mills has been using the expression "Contour" alone, or with other words, as a trademark for its fitted bed sheets for several years. These sheets have been extensively advertised throughout the country in national publications, locally in newspapers, and on radio and television. As a result of this advertising, plus the wide distribution we have given our "Contour" sheets, this trademark has become a very important asset of Pacific Mills.

It seems clear that your use of "Contour" to identify Electric Blankets is likely to cause confusion in the trade and damage to our business. We are sure you are as anxious as we are to avoid such results. Therefore, it would be greatly appreciated if you would refrain from advertising bedding items as "Contour" unless they are manufactured by Pacific Mills Domestics.

Arms Spending Irritates DDS

I was surprised to read Dick Hoffmann's column on the "Warfare State" in your ultra-conservative paper.

As a dentist, I am irritated by the lack of objection to billions for moonshots, super bombers, etc., while the health and dental health problems are being met by a bunch of beggars—heart fund, epilepsy fund arthritis fund, TB fund, etc.

I PERSONALLY see so many children with poor dental health. I believe that in a so-called rich country the wealth of the country lies in the health of these children. All this fuss being made by the MDs over a bill to take care of the health problems of the old people, too expensive—non personal!

I believe if research and medical know-how is needed, let the money be paid for by all the people by income tax or social security tax and cut down on the military set up. down on the military setup.

Quotoons

The only fair way to talk about somebody is to speak as though you knew he was listening in.

Humility is a feeling which comes over you when you honestly compare your real self with the high opinion others have of you.

Although tombstones may weigh heavily upon a man's chest, at least they don't talk behind his back.

—O. A. Battista

An egotist is a man who gets into an argument every time he meets another egotist.

The man who listens is like the money-lender who patiently counts the days on the calendar—after a while, both of them will collect some interest.

Many young persons who waste time like dirty river water will gladly pay a fortune for an additional few minutes of life 40 or 50 years from now.

O. A. Battista

Marriage is an indissoluble contract in which one party obtains from the other party more than either of them may ever hope to repay.

Friends are like a savings account—if you wish to keep them, don't draw on their generosity too much.

Ordinary people can be cheerful as long as they are well-fed and well-dressed; only extraordinary people maintain their cheerfulness in the midst of adversity and want.

O. A. Battista

Urges Unified Township GOP

Last Tuesday, April 10, the Republican voters of Wheeling Township turned out in record-breaking numbers to exercise their free Amrican choice in the selection of their leaders and representatives for the coming four years.

In the case of the contest for Republican Township Committeeman, the voters by a substantial margin, placed their trust and the leadership of the local Republican organization in the hands of my opponent, Thomas J. Houser.

The election was a keen one, earnestly and vigorously contested by loyal Republicans on behalf of both candidates. An unfortunate by-product of such a keenly contested election may well be bitterness, recrimination, and even retribution. It is my earnest hope that in the case of the Wheeling Township Republicans, such unfortunate by-products may be avoided.

AS I DID on the evening of election day, I do now publicly congratulate Mr. Houser on his strong victory, and I commend his entire organization for a job well done. Since the election I have met personally with Mr. Houser and assured him of my cooperation and the cooperation of my supporters in a great unified Republican effort for victory in November. Our intramural battle is ended, and all Republicans should now unite behind our new leader in the interest of a strong united party.

It is to be earnestly hoped that those loyal supporters of Mr. Houser will exercise maturity of judgment and statesmanship in their attitudes towards those they defeated in the election. Retribution and acrimony against those who unsuccessfully opposed them in the election can only be a detriment to our party.

To all Republicans in Wheeling Township I say let us join together behind our new leader for a better and stronger Republican party.

WANT ADS are for EVERYBODY

I practice hard every single day, because some day I hope to be an accomplished pianist. And it is all possible because Mommy read an ad which said "Want Ads Are For Everybody." I wanted a piano for a long, long time, but there were so many other things the family needed I was told I would just have to await my turn. Then Mommy started reading Paddock Publications Want Ads and it wasn't long until she found a fine used piano at a price we could afford. That's how I got my wish, and that's why I say that when Want Ads can do so much for a little girl like me, they surely are for everybody!

The aged no longer have a place. The competition for jobs with 5 million unemployed younger people is rough on older workers — and it's getting rougher all the time.

In the Illinois River hamlet of Naples, this 69-year-old woman is hard at work on her loom — fighting a losing battle to maintain her independence.

A Report on the Aged of Illinois

. . . THESE LONELY

By CHARLES E. HAYES

Second in a Series

The aged of Illinois are everywhere — in farming communities, in the rundown back alleys of the bustling cities, in the industrial river towns, in the quiet suburbs of metropolitan areas.

I found them in the tenements of Chicago's slums, in dreary rural nursing homes, in clapboard shacks surrounding downstate whistle stops, in basement dungeons.

There are more than a million aged in Illinois. Most of them have a lot in common. The majority are existing on loneliness, inadequate diet, and boredom.

In 18 weeks, I drove 2000 miles, criss-crossing the state. I talked to scores of men and women over 65 years of age and to more than 50 experts on the problems of the aged.

Accompanied by photographer Larry Cameron, I visited 20 communities. I watched the elderly shuffle into relief and unemployment offices. I saw them in nursing homes, in hospitals, in homes for the poor, in mental institutions.

I found that discrimination cuts across the miles and the years, that regardless of health, ability, experience, the older citizen is lumped into a single classification — not wanted, not needed.

I talked with scores of persons classified as elderly. I found that both the able and unable wanted one thing desperately — to work and to be self-sufficient.

Estelle Winters is typical of thousands; yet like these thousands she is not a statistic but a real person with distinctive talents, thoughts, and desires.

A former Ringling Brothers bareback rider, Miss Winters, 69, is now fighting a losing battle to maintain her independence. She has refused welfare aid and last year earned $897 from a variety of occupations.

I found her in a two-room frame house in Naples, Ill., a river hamlet 50 miles from the Missouri border. She was working at a loom on which she weaves rugs to supplement her $37.40 a month Social Security check. The sale of 99 rugs last year brought her $421.50.

Her loom is provided by the state as part of a rehabilitation and self-help program sponsored by the county department of public aid.

"I'd be on public aid if it weren't for my weaving," she told me. "I told them if they'd get me a machine, I'd be self-supporting. I don't want to go on aid."

Naples, a rural town of less than 150 persons, is in downstate Scott County, an area where one-third of the population is over 65. The younger generations have left the county for opportunities in the cities.

Naples, like most of its citizens, has grown old and is waiting for death.

I stood in the middle of the town's main dirt street. An ancient grocery store, with a rusting gas pump outside, is a block from an unpainted wooden shack, the post office. This is all that remains of the business district.

The dirt street passes dozens of abandoned homes. Porches sag. Windows gape vacantly. Knee-high weeds ramble where there were once lawns and gardens.

This is Naples, a town supported by $300 annual taxes, where the family of Estelle Winters planted its roots, and from where her mother left to become the first woman pilot on the Illinois River.

It is a town where life was never easy and where citizens learned to live with hard work and little reward. It was in this background that Estelle Winters learned independence and self-reliance. These are traits common to most of the aged throughout the state.

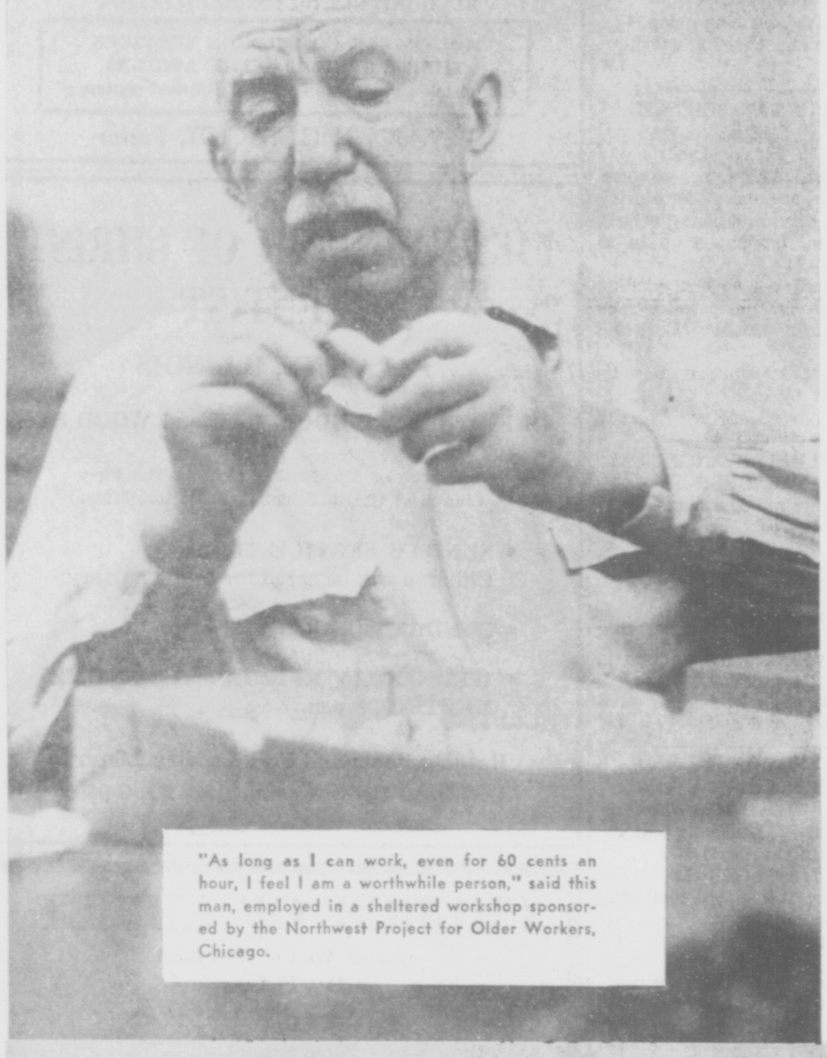
"I don't want to go on aid," said Miss Winters. But she may have to.

Poor health and failing strength each year force thousands of the state's aged onto public assistance rolls and into state-supported nursing homes.

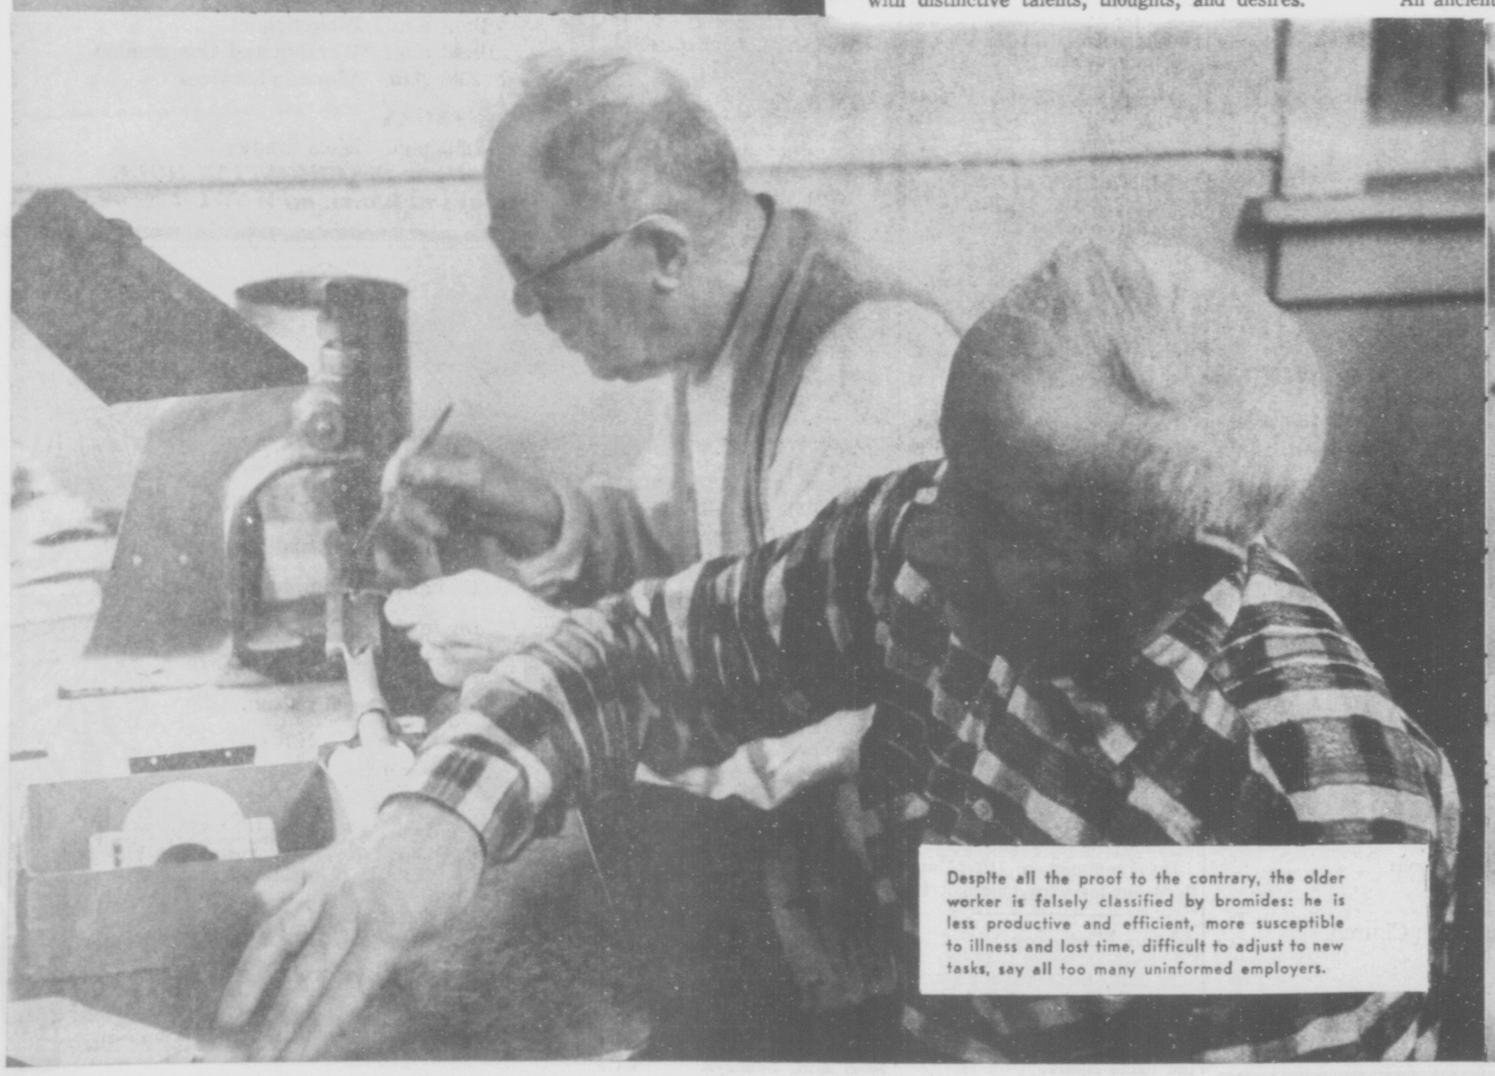
Treatment for Miss Winters' cardiac condition is taking increasing bites of her small income. She pays $6 a month for inadequate health and hospitalization insurance. And one of her three prescriptions costs $5.51 a month.

Many of the aged retain their health and vitality into their closing years. But discrimination keeps thousands of them on the list of unemployed.

Roger Bancroft, 66, a Bellwood accountant, is one of them.

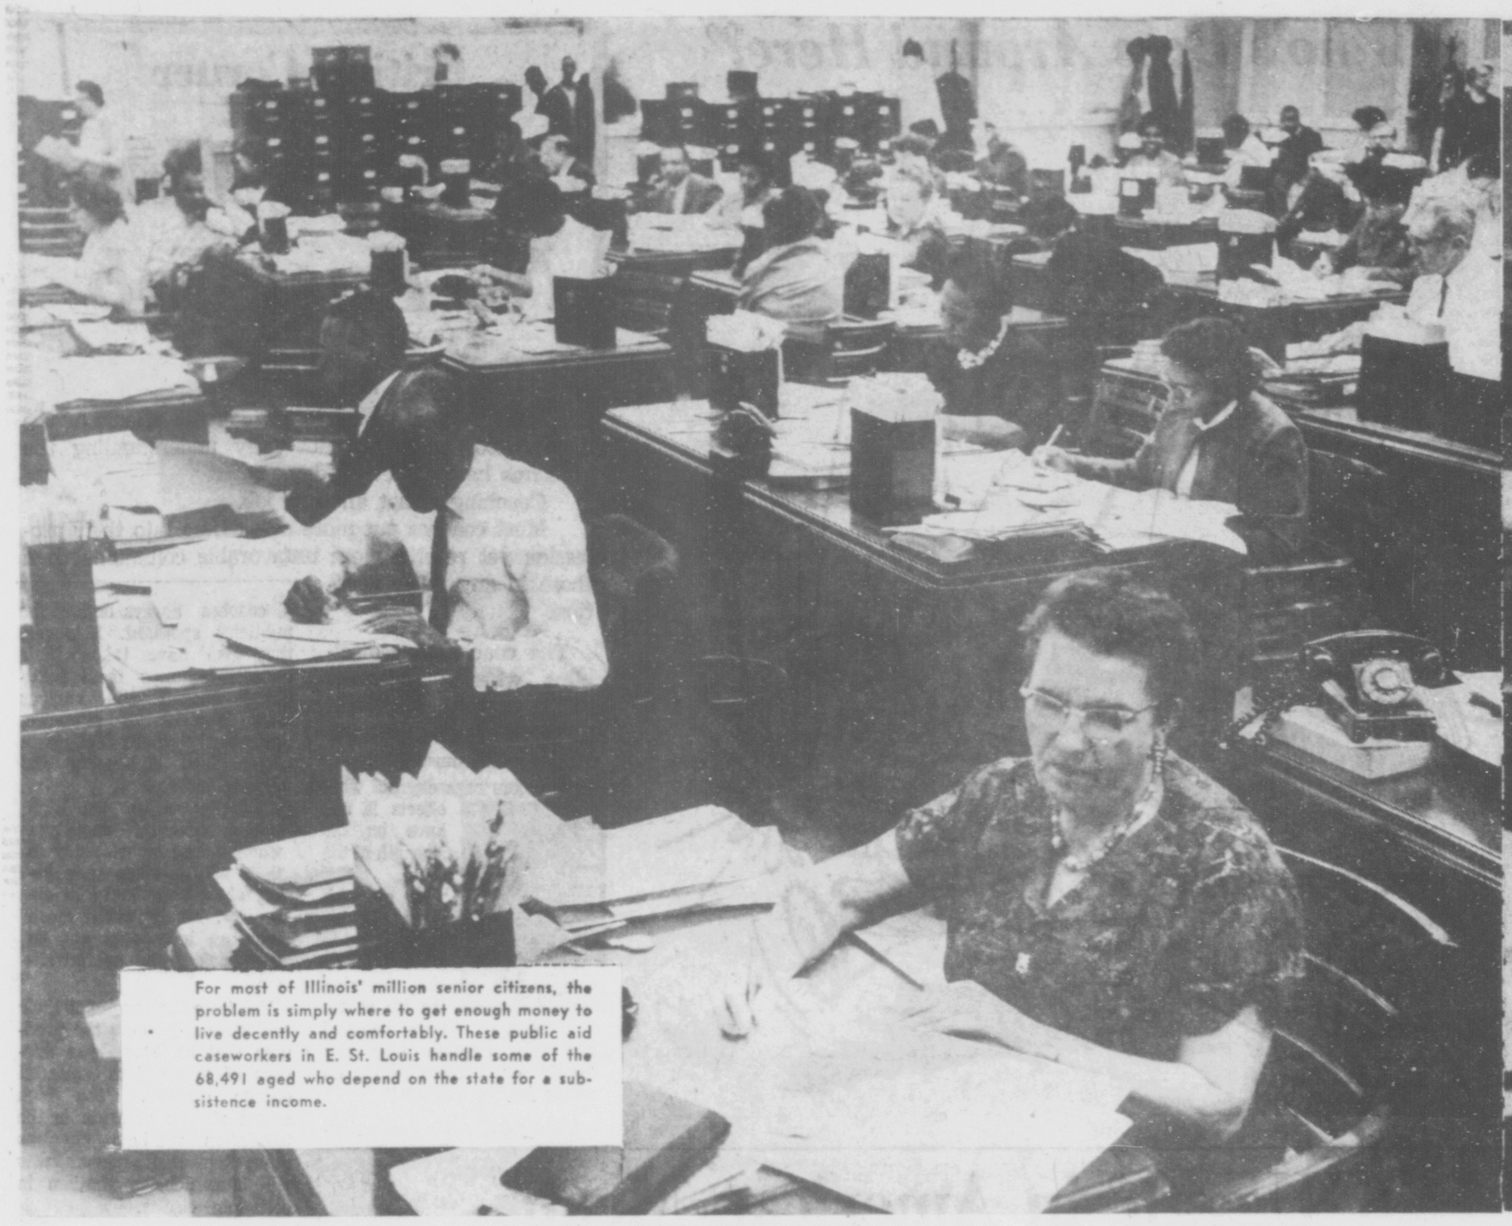


"As long as I can work, even for 60 cents an hour, I feel I am a worthwhile person," said this man, employed in a sheltered workshop sponsored by the Northwest Project for Older Workers, Chicago.

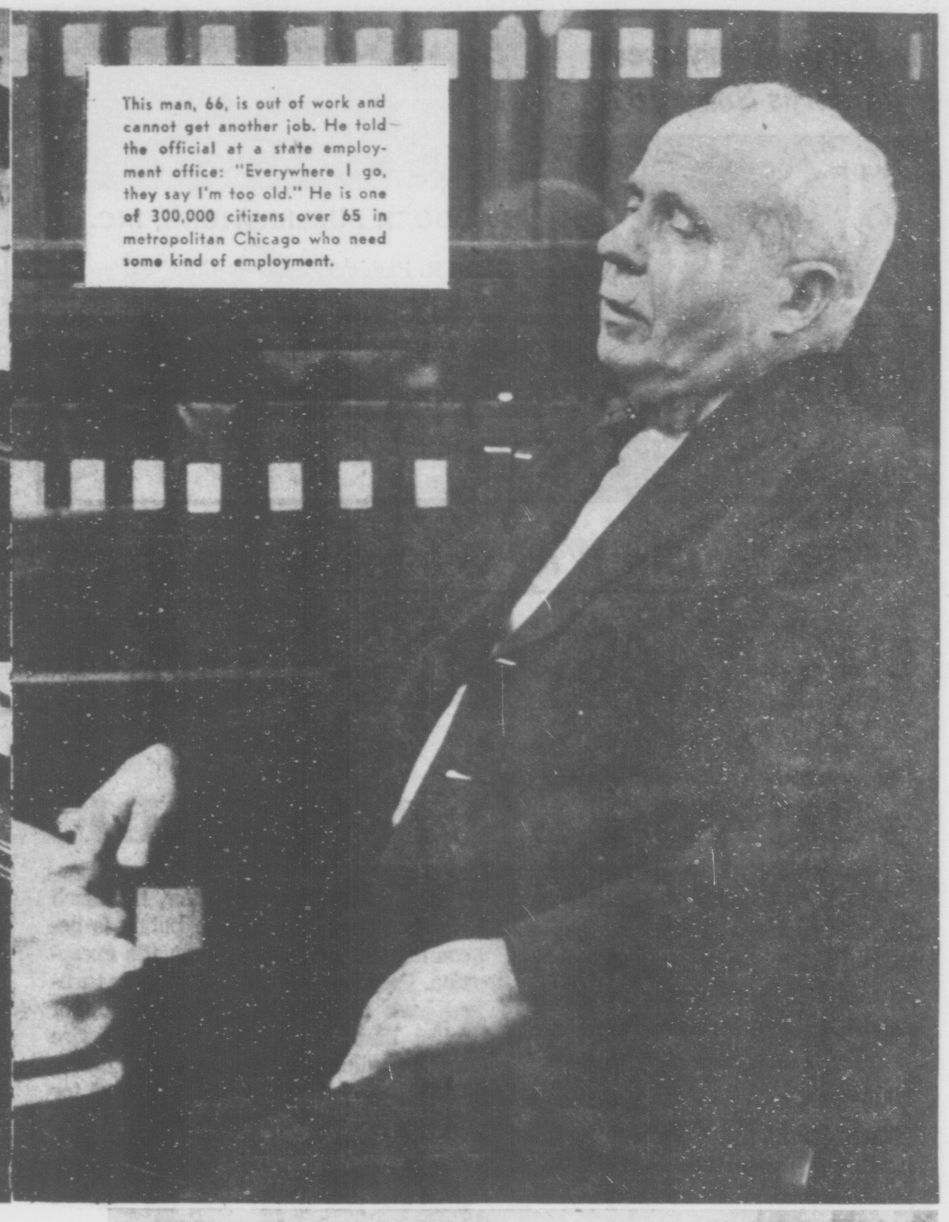


Despite all the proof to the contrary, the older worker is falsely classified by bromides: he is less productive and efficient, more susceptible to illness and lost time, difficult to adjust to new tasks, say all too many uninformed employers.

This is a generation which worked, scratched, bit and fought its way. It never played and doesn't really know how to play. The common core is work, and work is sinless.



For most of Illinois' million senior citizens, the problem is simply where to get enough money to live decently and comfortably. These public aid caseworkers in E. St. Louis handle some of the 68,491 aged who depend on the state for a subsistence income.



This man, 66, is out of work and cannot get another job. He told the official at a state employment office: "Everywhere I go, they say I'm too old." He is one of 300,000 citizens over 65 in metropolitan Chicago who need some kind of employment.

ROOMS

They sit in lonely rooms, the aged, some strong with a spirit of youth, some worn with passing years—the doors of employment shut to them. This is the story of these lonely years and these lonely rooms...

Bancroft, after 33 years with International Harvester Co., was left jobless when the McCormick Works closed last June. In the past nine months, he has applied for 50 jobs.

"Everywhere I go, they say I'm too old. You know how old I feel today? I feel like I'm about 35 or 40. But companies don't want to take a chance on me."

He is one of the 91 per cent of the men and women who retire at age 65 against their wishes; 56 per cent are forced out by employment policies.

Said a 61-year-old unemployed salesman from Wheaton: "I don't want pity, and I don't want sympathy. All I want is a chance to help myself."

A Villa Park woman, rebuffed in her jobseeking because of age, said: "It's not fair. I have to eat and live. I'm still capable of turning out work. I can do the work of two younger people, but they won't give me a chance to prove it."

A recent survey of 71 employment agencies in Cook County revealed that more than 15 per cent of their applicants were older workers. Yet 59 per cent of the agencies said this age group was "impossible" to place with jobs.

Automation, company mergers, and plant movements shake out many older workers too young to retire.

Ken Rutherford, 65, is one of the 37 per cent of long-term jobless in Illinois who are in the older age brackets. Deprived of his livelihood because his skill is outdated under the impact of automation, he pleads: "I must go on living. I must eat and keep a roof over my head. How am I going to do it? How?"

I found that prejudice against hiring older people has created human waste and neglect. The capable older worker seeking employment faces almost hopeless problems. We are not only neglecting a valuable source of loyal, steady employees in ignoring these people, we are hastening them down the road to dependency and despair.

Badgered by economic worries, our senior citizens are in dire need. Among our million elderly, poverty is commonplace. And many of them cannot work.

Violet Stanley, 83, of E. St. Louis, is on relief. "Our government just gives us our needs. I have to scrimp." Her eyesight has dimmed since she disregarded the doctor's warnings and supplemented her meager relief check last year by sewing aprons, which she sold for 80 cents. Now she is nearly blind. "I didn't know how else to help myself besides sewing," she told me.

Mrs. Maggie Stinson, 68, is a Negress who worked as a housemaid until a blood disease caused her right leg to be amputated. Now she's on public assistance. "I'm used to being independent all my life, and I'd like to work again. Only thing I miss is not working, but I guess the Lord knows best. Though it's tough to make ends meet."

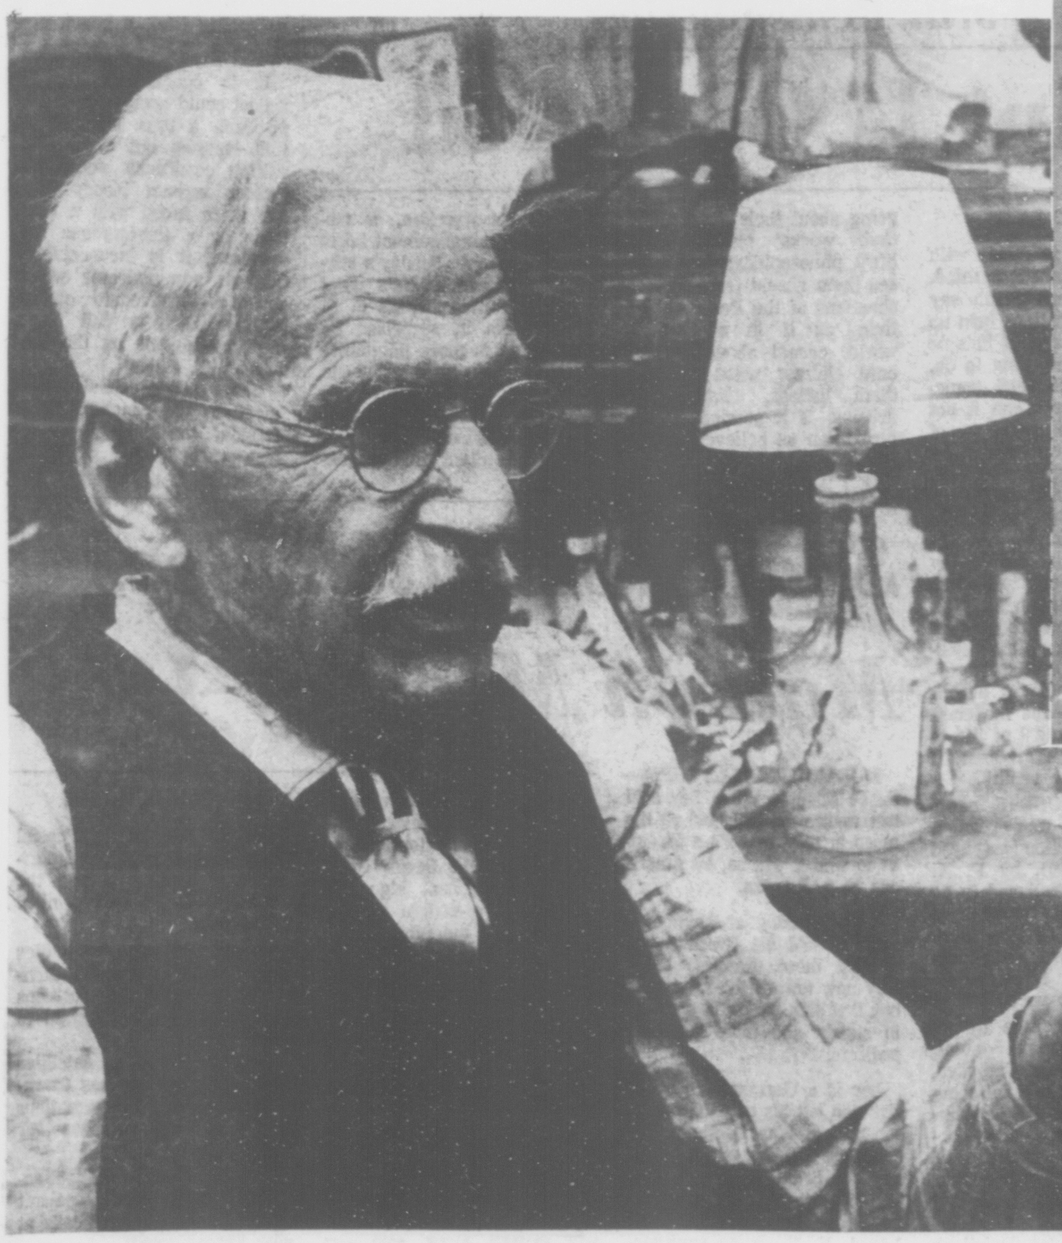
The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that a retired couple in the Chicago area needs an income of $3,666 a year for "a modest but adequate level of living." Sixty per cent of the aged have less than $1,000 cash income; half have $500 or less in liquid assets. The median income is $966.

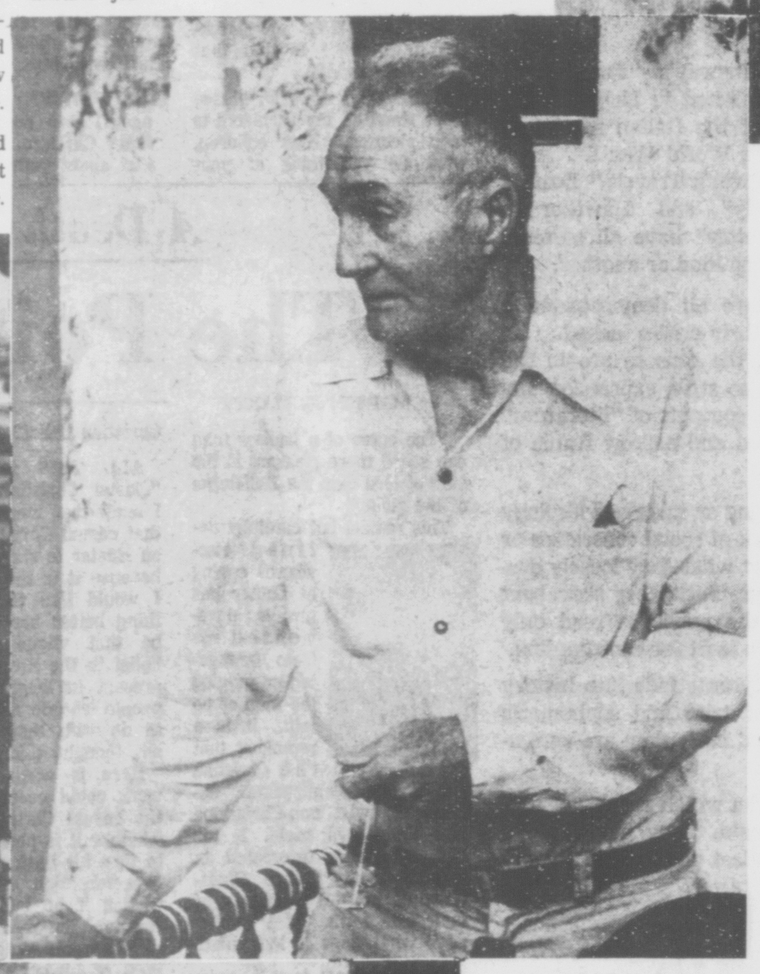
Chief sources of income are Old Age Assistance and Social Security benefits. For 68,491 OAA recipients in Illinois, the average monthly benefit is $36. For a half million on Social Security, the average benefit is $78 a month.

Neglect and injustice are allowing our older population to live in poverty.

The older person, once out of work, just does not get another job.

"It's tough to make ends meet," said this former household worker, 68. An amputee, she can no longer work and must depend on a meager Old Age Assistance check in order to survive in abject poverty.





Neglect and injustices allow Illinois' older population to live in poverty in times of super-abundance.

The older person — not without resentment and bitterness — is forced to accept a role as member of a second-class, tolerated, declining segment of society.

This woman, desperate, has come to a state employment service office seeking work. Rebuffed by employers because of her age, she is part of a group classified by 59 per cent of Cook County's employment agencies as "impossible" to place.

The Way We See It

Taxpayer Revolt Is Gaining Momentum

The recent primary elections just concluded demonstrate that even the highest and mightest of politicians are not secure in their power. In the final analysis, they draw strength from either the interest or apathy of the people.

There was no apathy apparent in Chicago voters' refusal to approve passage of $66 million in bond issues for some projects dear to Mayor Richard J. Daley's heart.

The voters' repudiation of this method of financing predictably followed the trend in the suburbs, where taxpayers have recently revolted against what used to be considered a "sure thing." Further disenchantment with the way in which the Democratic machine is doing business was shown when Lar (America First) Daley drew 25 per cent of the vote away from Rep. Sidney R. Yates, the party leaders' choice to oppose incumbent Republican Sen. Everett Dirksen in the general elections this fall. After the bond issue defeat, this amounted to rubbing salt in the wounds.

Mayor Daley blamed the taxpayers' balking to a "public resentment to taxes generally." Since the primary was held a scant five days before the deadline for filing tax returns April 15, such logic seems sound.

It appears to us, however, that such careful accounting by the public is becoming the rule rather than the exception. Proposals for new schools are turned back if there is any suggestion of frills; library, municipal hall and fire station building plans are rejected unless there is a "clear and present" need for such facilities demonstrated.

The couple buying a home go into a state of shock upon comparing tax bills from one year to the next; the pensioner who has retired to tend his garden is dismayed at the way taxes — along with the spiraling costs of living — are nibbling at his savings.

All around them, hands are outstretched in an ever-widening circle from a multiplicity of taxing bodies, some newly-formed, others archaic.

Add to this major scandals involving tax dollars — from defense contract profiteering to township manipulations — and the "resentment" that is mentioned is brought to a boil.

There are only two constants in the world, it is said: death and taxes. But while our protests against death are feeble feints against the inevitable, the collective voice being raised against taxes is gaining volume.

When we speak of revolts, it is possible that the next major one of our time will be made by the long suffering taxpayer.

The Endurance of Truth

The observance of National Library Week just passed is a reminder that famous literature has a way of outlasting its detractors.

Almost every literary work of merit has had its banners, burners, and self-appointed censors. Yet the works have endured, and in time, many have become classics. "Huckleberry Finn" and "Tom Sawyer" were censored by Mark Twain's wife, who scissored out profanity and other passages of an earthy nature.

"Alice in Wonderland" was criticized in the Hunan Province of China in 1911 on the grounds that animals should not use human language; it was disastrous to put animals and human beings on the same level.

Voltaire's "Candide" was seized in that citadel of censorship — Boston — in 1929 as it was being transported to a French literature class at Harvard. As late as 1944, the post office would not allow a copy of it to be offered for sale in a dealer's catalogue.

Shakespeare's "King Lear" was banned from the English stage from 1788-1820, perhaps out of deference to George III's known insanity, literature conpoisseurs say.

Three copies of John Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath" were burned in St. Louis in 1939; the book was banned from Kansas City and some locales in Oklahoma.

Ernest Hemingway's "Farewell to Arms" was prohibited in Italy because of its account of the Italian retreat at Caporetto during World War I.

Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," Dante's "Divine Comedy" and Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter" have all suffered suppression of one kind or another.

But they have all demonstrated a resiliency that their critics lacked.

Even today, the censors are in full cry, attempting to stifle expression and mold everyone's concepts of "literature" to a preconceived and narrow frame of reference.

Whether seeing an imagined ideology present in a work of social conscience or being offended at what they loosely describe as "pornographic," they seem bent on permitting the public to read only what they ordain is fit for consumption.

Such petty tyrants fade into history as the pages of trite and sophomoric works yellow and curl; they are assigned to obscurity.

But the works which speak "beauty and truth" remain. They have always been able to outlast and outlive Pygmy mentalities and tastes.

Some Cooperation, Please

It must be spring, even if the weather is mulish about cooperating. A reader writes in to relate how her dismay with the season brightened when she viewed the appearance in the woods of spring beauties and blood root.

From London comes a dispatch of a Jane who studied the habits of chimpanzees in equatorial Africa. Cambridge Graduate Jane Morris-Goodall, who undertook the expedition without a Tarzan, says she can't wait to get back to the jungle. "I prefer it to civilization," she is quoted as saying.

Even our photographers have been stung by the return-to-nature bug. A photo which recently crossed our desk portrays a spring scene which they recorded on their lunch hour — without prompting from the front office.

Despite all our mechanical toys and modern conveniences, we still seem to be stirred by nature's many moods — no matter how capricious or unyielding she becomes.

Now, with all this in mind, will the weathermen please start cooperating.

Coaches Have No Easy Job

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

Many people, too many, attack the efforts of the high school coach without fully understanding the problems he faces every day.

Coaching is not an easy job.

Most coaches put more extra time into their profession yet receive more unfavorable comments than those in any other vocation.

The coach must discipline when disciplinary action is required. When an athlete breaks training rules, a coach must face up to the problem regardless of what effects it will have on the strength of the team.

FRISK

A coach must cut his squad down to a workable size, arousing the ire of the boys involved and their parents who cry "foul" or "rotten deal, he never had a chance."

COLLEGE AND professional coaches always occupy the publicity spotlight. However, they also have taken their collective lumps from influential alumni and various other sources of pressure, particularly those collegiate groups fond of hanging and burning effigies.

Simultaneously, the high school coaches, some of whom verge on wizardry in their ability, have been going about their tasks in obscurity, rarely with more than an infrequent pat on the back from sportswriters.

Yet from the results of their craftsmanship come the products that have made a success of many less talented college coaches. The high school athletic program is the foundation which develops many top-notch players who will later achieve stardom in collegiate circles.

WHEN YOU consider the operations of the high school coach, you have to realize that he is operating under a limited and decidedly stringent budget. He is obliged to stay within the bounds of his school system and draw upon the resources therein in his attempts to form a representative team.

This is as it should be.

He isn't supported by an active nucleus of wealthy alumni. The college coaches can "recruit" the cream of the prep crop and offer these boys certain monetary advantages in the form of scholarships and light work around the athletic department for attending their respective schools.

It is the high school instructor who performs magical feats in converting raw material into a refined substance. He provides the young, inexperienced player with the fundamentals, and other coaches are lauded for their skillful handling.

MANY PEOPLE also feel that the life of the high school coach is an easy one.

They're under the impression that the coach spends the day polishing headgear, working crossword puzzles, and manicuring his nails, and that he really doesn't start to work until his players report for practice.

The coach puts in a full day's work before he conducts practice drills.

IT IS required that a coach be a bona fide member of the faculty; in other words a teacher first, a coach second.

It is conceivable that a school could assign the teacher-coach a light load of actual classes, but under prevailing conditions when the patrons scream bloody murder when faced with a bond issue or a tax-increase referendum, it is inconceivable that an administrator would approve a schedule calling for less than a full day's work by anyone on the faculty.

The critics should re-evaluate the coaching profession, particularly on a high school level.

Coaching is not an easy job.

'Ugggh' in American Means

A Zest for Life

by DICK HOFFMANN
Associate Editor

REPORTER: Ah, children, how do you like Rome, our eternal city?

CHILDREN: Ugggh.

PRESS AGENT: The children mean that it has inspired them beyond description.

REPORTER: What do you think of our magnificent ruins, St. Peter's, the cafes?

CHILDREN: Ugggh.

PRESS AGENT: The youngsters were telling me the other day how they were enthralled with the Appian Way. They think Italians have a real sense of history in preserving such monuments to the past.

REPORTER: (writing furiously) They said that?

LITTLE GIRL: (Whispering to brother) Is that that old brick road?

REPORTER: Mario, please don't stand on my shoulders to take pictures. Now children, what do you think of your mother's friend?

LITTLE BOY: (To his older brother) Which one?

REPORTER: Children, I mean the man who plays opposite your mother in the movie.

LITTLE GIRL: (Whispering) Is he the one who clanks around in all the armor?

PRESS AGENT: The children are delighted with him. They were telling me the other day how they empathize with him.

REPORTER: (To press agent) How do you spell that? Children, how do you feel about your ... ah, father's departure?

LITTLE BOY: (To older brother) Which one?

PRESS AGENT: The youngsters realize that their father has commitments elsewhere.

LITTLE GIRL: (Whispering to brother) Was he the one who was always singing?

REPORTER: Ah, children ... Mario, please don't hang from that tree to take pictures. You're stirring up the pigeons. Children, what do you think of the movie your mother is making?

CHILDREN: Ugh.

PRESS AGENT: The children realize that this film will be their mother's greatest triumph. This is one of those movies that only comes along once in a lifetime. It's an unsurpassed epic. We have a cast of thousands ...

REPORTER: I know all that ...

PRESS AGENT: ... the costumes, settings, the recreating of the Nile River (our pump cost millions), the acting. It's going to be a real milestone in film-making ...

REPORTER: Yes. Ah, little girl. You are beautiful. You look just like your mother. Wouldn't you like to be a movie star some day?

LITTLE GIRL: Ugggh.

PRESS AGENT: We've already worked her into this film. She plays Cleopatra as a young girl and Cleopatra as an old woman. The rushes on her have been terrific. As a matter of fact, the studio wants to star her next in a movie about a little girl and her horse.

REPORTER: That's nice. Mario, you're going to get killed trying to take pictures of the house on top of those stilts. Children, is there any one final thing you'd like to tell our readers about your impressions of Rome?

CHILDREN: Uggh.

REPORTER: (To press agent) How do you spell that word and what does it mean?

PRESS AGENT: It's an old American expression. It's used to express exurberance. A zest for life. But I don't think I can translate it into a comparable Italian word.

A Death Worth Remembering

The Point Is Obscured

by MARTIN E. MARTY

"The curse of a godless man can sound more pleasant in the ears of God than the Hallelujah of the pious."

This radical but carefully defined (elsewhere) saying of Luther has always prevented me from haranguing or judging the man of no faith. It is a reminder that the Christian should not straitjacket, coerce, or twist non-Christians into their own mold. I, for one, am more interested in reminding my fellow Christians of the involvements of their own faith. "If I believe ..." what does it look like?

MARTY

AT NO TIME is this question more urgent than at the end of Lent, in Holy Week.

This column, like one at one or two other seasons each year, is devoted primarily to that large majority of readers who are professedly Christian and Church-related.

In effect it begins by saying: for the moment let us stop worrying about Communists and secular Americans, and whether our nation has or should have religous values.

Instead, what would things look like if Christians stopped anguishing about those who do not believe; what if we might concentrate on consistency in our own beliefs? Have we begun to taste, to relish, to bask in the richness of Christian belief?

ALL THIS is said with "Easter Christians" in mind. I know that many people say that casual Christians turn up on Easter to show off hats or because it is the thing to do. I would like to read something better here: can it not be that vague stirrings of belief in the Resurrection are present in large numbers of people who do not know what to do with them, who have not thought things through?

Here is where missionary work could occur: to pursue the casual Christian and ask whether it is possible for him to turn his back on the weekly celebration of the Resurrection if he believes at all. Resurrection means the complete rearrangement of life in light of history's greatest, if mysterious, new reality.

THESE THOUGHTS came to mind as I was reading "The Resurrection" (Sheed and Ward, $6.00), by F. X. Durrwell. It is believed to be the finest single book from the revival of Catholic biblical studies. It is a profoundly moving book, from which Protestants also would profit.

I introduce it here to underscore the main point. Durrwell says that Catholics, in focusing on the suffering and death, the merit and satisfaction of Jesus, have obscured the event that makes the death worth remembering: Easter. Catholics are not alone.

When you look at Christians going about their days' work, their weeks' pursuits, this life's philosophies; when you see them absent from the celebrations of the Resurrection, living as if in a hopeless world, casual about the solemn claims; when you see them listless, disapproving, drifting—is it possible to picture them as believers in the Resurrection?

IF I BELIEVE: if I believe in the Resurrection, a tremendous rearrangement takes place. That one Sunday's stirrings becomes a life's quiet passion. I may be, as C. S. Lewis calls it, surprised by joy. There is more possibility in that than in a thousand harangues against the person who has professed no belief. There is, instead, a contagion which he might find attractive.

Space Scientist Sees Man on Moon by 1968

MONMOUTH, ILL., (UPI)— Space scientist Willie Ley said last week man will land on the moon in 1968, and it's a toss-up as to who it will be, an American or a Russian.

Ley, speaking at Monmouth College, said the Russians are making more dramatic headway now toward the moon trip but that this nation is engaged in steady and more profound projects.

Ley is a German-born scientist who left his native land before World War II. He was a colleague of rocket expert Wernher Von Braun. The two pooled their talents in projects and books. Ley, who lives in Long Island, N. Y., is an engineering consultant with private industry on space projects, and engages in lecture tours.

HE SAID the Soviet Union will take the next big giant step in space with a manned flight around the moon within the next two years. However, the United States will have pulled ahead when the time is ripe for a moon landing, he predicted.

Ley also made another prediction — a landing on Mars by 1975.

He said the U. S. is outreaching the Soviet Union on the broad uses of space and not just concentrating on manned flights. This nation's prestige will expand along with our broad programs, he said.

HE LISTED three "useful space projects" which Americans are pushing beyond the efforts of the Soviet Union. These were:

—Project Transit, satellites which would allow space navigators to secure their positions and thus be an infinite aid to travel.

—Project Nimbus, satellites with television cameras to relay pictures of cloud formations and allow long-range weather forecasting.

—Project Communication, satellites which would permit trans-oceanic telephone calls at near instant speeds.
